Bank of OC bond will fund Berlin's 'Tyson' purchase

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Jan. 14, 2016) Following nearly two years of discussion, along with several communitywide meetings, an audit and studies on feasibility and environmental impact, Berlin finalized its plans to buy the former Tyson's Chicken plant this week.

On Monday, the Town Council voted unanimously to approve a 30-year, $3 million bond from the Bank of Ocean City to purchase the property on Old Ocean City Boulevard.

Berlin plans to convert the 68-acre site into a multiuse public space dubbed "Berlin Falls." Amenities could include an indoor/outdoor swimming facility and a hub for an excursion train station.

Mayor Gee Williams said the town ended up with four "very competitive bids" for the bond, including proposals from Hebron Savings Bank, Shore Bank and PNC. He said the council, the finance director and a bond counsel reviewed the proposals and came to a unanimous agreement.

"We were very pleased with all the loan agreements, but the Bank of Ocean City's was clearly the most favorable for the town," he said. "That's the one we chose, and all of that should be squared away and we should settle on the property by the end of January."

Williams said the Bank of Ocean City offered the lowest guaranteed interest rate, 3.5 percent, through Dec. 1, 2030. After 15 years, the rate will be adjusted to the latest prime rate announced by the Wall Street Journal, plus one percent.

"We also can pay it off at any time without penalty," Williams said. "We've paid a lot of loans off early, and that was important to us."

Town Administrator Laura Allen said Berlin was on schedule to take possession of the property on Feb. 15. After that, she said the town would "tidy up" the property, and work to improve access and new signs.

By spring, Berlin Falls could be open for "passive park use," including walking, hiking and biking.

"Other than that, I think I'll keep it a secret," Allen said. "We'll hold off on [revealing] that and we'll surprise people."

Winning lottery ticket sold in Berlin

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Jan. 14, 2016) While no one has yet won the more than $1 billion national Powerball prize, one lucky person did purchase a winning $1 million ticket from the Berlin Food Lion last week.

The Maryland Lottery announced that the winning "second-tier" ticket was sold on Jan. 9 in Berlin to a 51-year-old Worcester County man, and a father of four, who asked to remain anonymous.

According to a press released issued by the Maryland Lottery on Wednesday, the man stopped at the Food Lion in search of "affordable limes." It was his second stop, having passed up purchasing the citrus at another grocery store, "because they were too expensive."

"While his significant other waited in their vehicle, the Powerball player ran into the Berlin Food Lion to grab the limes and – at the last minute – a $6 Maryland Lottery Powerball Quick-Pick ticket," the release stated.

The man apparently learned of his winning ticket late Saturday night after watching the NFL playoffs. He tried not to wake up his significant other, but by 4:30 a.m. he broke down. He told her no one had won the Powerball jackpot, but added, "We still won a million."

He later placed the ticket in a safe until he could claim his prize at Maryland Lottery headquarters in Baltimore on Tuesday. He was one of 28 second-tier winners nationwide in the Jan. 9 Powerball drawing.

Maryland Lottery's Director of Communications Carole Everett said million-dollar tickets "rarely" went unclaimed in the state.

"We tell people, please check your tickets, because even if you don't win the jackpot or the second tier there are lots of other prizes on the tickets," she said. "Also, sign the back of your tickets – if you lose it and somebody else picks it up, it's theirs unless you sign it."

Last year, eight people won second-tier $1 million Powerball prizes in Maryland. During the last fiscal year, 20 people won $1 million playing all Maryland Lottery games.

For selling the winning ticket, Food Lion receives a $2,500 bonus.

"Food Lion is a longstanding retail partner with the Maryland Lottery. We offer a number of services to shoppers, including the lottery, and we are very proud that one of our customers purchased a $1 million winning ticket," Benny L. Smith, Food Lion Media and Community Relations manager, said in an emailed statement Tuesday.

As of Wednesday, the national Powerball jackpot jumped to $1.5 billion, including a $930 million cash option.

According to Maryland Lottery, if the winning ticket were sold in Maryland the winner would net $616.1 million after taxes. If the winner chose the annuity option, they would receive a minimum $14.9 million per year for 29 years in graduated payments, with the state receiving $1.9 million in tax revenue.

Powerball is operated by the Multi-State Lottery Association (MUSL), a nonprofit association owned and operated by member lotteries in 36 U.S. states and territories. Profits from MUSL games are retained by the state lottery and used to fund projects approved by the individual state legislatures.

Pines bank robber enters guilty plea

Jeff V. Hare faces 25 years, plus 'up to life' sentence for crimes; sentencing April 12

(Jan. 14, 2016) The Ocean Pines man who held up a branch of BB&T bank last March pleaded guilty last Friday, U.S. Attorney for Maryland Rod J. Rosenstein announced Monday.

In a release from his office, Rosenstein said Jeff V. Hare, 53, pleaded guilty to armed bank robbery and brandishing a firearm during a crime of violence.

According to his plea agreement, Hare entered the Racetrack Road branch on March 13, 2015, wearing a ski mask and wielding a handgun.

He told the bank tellers in the bank's lobby that he had a gun and was robbing the bank.

He demanded that the tellers give him only 50- and 100-dollar bills, and that they not give him any dye packs. Hare moved through the lobby from employee to employee, pointing the handgun at each and demanding money.

Hare also demanded each teller give him their car keys and purse, but the tellers told Hare they did not have them available. Hare stole approximately $2,850 in cash from the bank.

Hare admitted that after robbing the tellers in the lobby, he found a bank employee who had locked herself in a back room of the bank. He forced open the locked door and demanded her car keys and her purse. The employee gave Hare her purse, which contained cash and personal effects, and the keys to her car, a 2007 Kia Spectra, which was parked in the bank's parking lot. Hare exited the bank and fled in the stolen 2007 Kia Spectra, which he abandoned at a nearby business.

Hare was arrested later that evening at a residence in Ocean Pines. At the time of his arrest, he was still in possession of the money stolen from the bank.

He has been detained since his arrest. During that time, Hare attempted to impede the investigation of the armed bank robbery and carjacking by seeking to arrange for the disposal of evidence of the crimes.

On May 1, 2015, an associate of Hare visited him at the Worcester County Detention Center in Snow Hill, Maryland. During that visit, Hare told his associate that he was being framed and that unidentified persons had a box of garbage that would incriminate him. Hare asked the person to retrieve the box from an address in Ocean Pines, which was Hare's former residence.

On May 6, 2015, Hare called his associate and asked him, "By going to that address, did you get rid of the trash?" referring to the box Hare had asked the associate to retrieve. The box contained the ski mask Hare wore during the robbery and carjacking, a .38 caliber revolver believed to have been used during the robbery, and the purse Hare stole from the bank employee, including her driver's license.

Hare faces a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison for armed bank robbery and a mandatory minimum of seven years and up to life in prison for brandishing a firearm during a crime of violence. U.S. District Judge James K. Bedard has scheduled sentencing for April 12 at 9:30 a.m.

United States Attorney Rod J. Rosenstein praised the FBI, Worcester County Sheriff's Office, Maryland State Police and the Worcester County State's Attorney's Office for their work in the investigation and prosecution. Rosenstein thanked Assistant United States Attorneys Zachary A. Myers and Matthew J. Maddox, who are prosecuting the case.

Berlin park will be built in phases

Berlin has an internal committee working on Berlin Falls' development, and Allen said its focus has been to review a number of preliminary designs created by architectural firm EDSA Inc.

"EDSA had a sub-consultant that was doing an economic analysis and there was still some work that she needed to do. We needed to identify the particular types of activities or events we wanted her to focus on for a drill-down-deeper economic analysis. The committee did that," Allen said. "I've got her proposal and we're just working on the specifics of that."

Williams said he was pleased with the process so far, and looked forward to the project's phased development.

"Every hurdle we thought might be a problem did not happen, so I'm elated that we're able to move forward. Now we just have to figure out what to do and in what phases," he said. "This is not a panic situation. We're taking a property that's been dormant for over a decade. Now it's going to be something very special, but it's probably going to take another decade before its full potential is immediately obvious."

"I think it will make Berlin an even more special place for our residents and guests," Williams added. "I know it's going to be a lot of work, but I think it's going to be enjoyable work."

jj Fish closing doors, but Fishers plan to keep creating work

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Jan. 14, 2016) For 15 years, husband and wife John and Judy Fisher have run the jj Fish Studio and Fine Craft Gallery shop on Main Street in Berlin. By spring, however, John and Judy plan to close the shop for good and – unofficially – retire, although they will continue making and selling original work to outside shops and galleries.

Berlin was a quiet place when they first opened the storefront, essentially a workspace for a wholesale business that operated as a gallery almost as an afterthought.

“There weren’t very many shops other than the antiques when we first came here,” Judy said. “During the summer you’d look out on the street, and if nobody was around you’d close up and go to the beach. You can’t do that anymore.”

John started making his own jewelry in 1972, and started selling his work seriously about four years later.

The couple spent years building relationships with artisans and crafts people in the region, attending trade shows each summer, and decided to sell that work along with their own in the building, a former clothing and consignment store.

“Made in America handcrafts,” as John put it.

“It’s quality work and we know the artists,” he said. “I call it a ‘gathering of friends’ because a lot of the work comes from people we’ve known for 25 years.”

“We work really hard to kind of put a personality on the work and the art, so you see the effort that went into making it,” John continued. “A lot times the best art is effortless. It doesn’t look like somebody’s really labored at it, but it’s 1,000 hours of apprenticeship that gets you to that point. A lot of people don’t realize that.”

The name of the shop came from John and Judy’s first initials, along with the “Fish” in “Fisher,” and the now-iconic lowercase lettering on the sign was meant to look like two fishhooks, according the John.

John and Judy Fisher will close their Berlin shop, jj Fish, this spring after 15 years in business. The couple will continue making and selling work to galleries and gift shops across the country, and plan to keep running their website, www.jjfishstudio.com.

Judy then found the “happy fish” stamp that became the backdrop of the logo. Occasionally, she said, they get a call asking what kind of “fish products” they sell.

The shop was “dark and murky” when they first opened, John said, and it took a great deal of renovation, including installing track lighting and making improvements to the front window, to turn the space into a proper gallery. Even after six weeks of hard work and sweat equity, it certainly wasn’t a safe bet that the business would last in a sleepy town on the way to the beach.

“I think the over-and-under betting line was that we wouldn’t last six months,” John said. “People didn’t understand that we were selling to a lot of other gift shops and galleries, and if we didn’t do a lot of retail we still had a big part of the business that nobody saw.”

Judy said much of the early foot traffic in the store came from children, who enjoyed playing with the bubble wand just outside the front door on Main Street – a star attraction that remains to this day.

“That could be our legacy,” John quipped. “It was a little thing that, if nothing else, it made people happy.”

He credited Michael Day – the former Berlin economic development director, now in Snow Hill – with “getting the merchants together” and helping revitalize the town, from the quiet borrow he came to in 2001, to the vibrant downtown that’s gained national attention during the last several years.

“Since the economy’s gotten better, so has Berlin, and Berlin has figured out how to merchandise itself,” he said. “‘America’s Coolest Small Town’ certainly helped.”

He believes that success is sustainable in Berlin, partly because Ocean City is still, well, Ocean City, and partly because all the downtown shops feed off of each other.

“There’s no open retail space,” he said. “Other small places are trying to revitalize their downtown and it’s hard, because shops aren’t full. You kind of need a critical mass of businesses, and things here are diverse enough that it’s a draw.”

Asked about their plans, John mimed sleeping.

“A big, long nap,” he said. “It’s been a great run. We enjoyed the heck out of it, but it’s time.”

Their work will continue to be carried at An American Craftsman Galleries and Rockefeller Center in New York City, Madeleine’s Dream in upstate New York, Grovewood Gallery and With These Hands in North Carolina and Dennison Moran Gallery in Naples, Florida, among other places. They have also sold to the San Francisco Museum of Art, Birmingham Museum of Art and the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C.

“I don’t make things as quickly as I used to, but we’ve had some of these wholesale accounts since the early 1990s,” John said. “There are still galleries that we enjoy working with, so we’re going to limit what we do and take care of old accounts and old friends.”

The store’s website, www.jjfishstudio.com, will also remain active.

Picturing his life after jj Fish, John said he would miss talking to people in Berlin the most.

“It’s the people contact,” he said, adding, “This is not a business that you can replicate. You just don’t pick up the phone and order 1,000 T-shirts for delivery.”

“We’ll miss all the artists and craftspeople that we’ve met whose work we sell – that’s a family that you’re supporting in a small way,” he continued. “We’re going to miss adding another helpful layer to the economy. Over 70 artists, so you think of that as 70 families.”

The Fishers said they did not know who would be taking up residence in their storefront later this year, but John offered a few simple words of advice.

“Be nice to people,” he said. “Enjoy the space – it’s a good one. We had no idea when we took on the storefront and rented it that it was such a great location. We just fell into this one [with] blind, dumb luck.”

Berlin, Snow Hill, OC receive state grants through DHCD

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Jan. 14, 2016) Governor Larry Hogan announced late last month that more than $11 million in grant money had been awarded to local jurisdictions through three state programs: Community Legacy, the Strategic Demolition fund and the Baltimore Regional Neighborhoods Initiative.

Locally, Worcester County received $275,000, including $50,000 for facade improvement in both Berlin and Ocean City, $50,000 for a “green building initiative” in Ocean City, and $125,000 in Snow Hill for a building improvement program.

“My administration is committed to revitalizing Maryland’s older communities,” Hogan said in a press release issued Dec. 29. “These grants will help local communities make necessary improvements while paving the way for additional public and private investments in their neighborhoods and along their streets.”

Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development Secretary Kenneth C. Holt said the state would rely on “community leaders and organizations to indicate their most pressing needs and we will respond with quick and effective support.”

In Berlin, Economic and Community Development Director Ivy Wells said she had been anxiously waiting for the extension of the Community Legacy program. Wells used similar funding to help improve several businesses in and around the downtown area last year.

When that money was exhausted, Wells wrote a new grant application on behalf of the town.

“I had several applications on hold because I didn’t have any money yet,” she said.

To start, the grants will help several new businesses in Berlin, including one planned by Chef Toby Gilbert, who aims to open a small operation attached to Bruder Hill on Commerce Street, and another by Brian Robertson, who will be opening a print shop above Ta Da on Main Street.

Previous grants helped Uncle Jon’s Soaps, Art in the Fields, Jeffery Auxer Designs and Church Mouse.

“I think that it’s really encouraging that DHCD is continuing this program, and the businesses are really looking forward to maintaining the facades of their buildings and improving them with some grant money,” Wells said.

Berlin Chamber Installation Dinner Wednesday, Jan. 20

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Jan. 14, 2016) The Berlin Chamber of Commerce will induct its new president and preview the coming year during an installation dinner at Touch of Italy on Wednesday, Jan. 20.

Reece Cropper, insurance broker and founder of the chamber, will speak, and awards for “New Business of the Year,” “Volunteer of the Year,” “Business Philanthropy” and “Bright Idea” will be announced during the annual function.

Donna Compher, named president-elect last year, will officially take over for current president Natalee DeHart.

Executive Director Larnet St. Amant and Administrative Assistant Morgan Coulson oversee day-to-day operations at the chamber.

“It has been an exciting year of growth and change, and we have been fortunate to have two dedicated staff members that have helped us to get to this point,” DeHart said. “I am looking forward for all that is to come in 2016, with our positive momentum.”

She added that a growing board of directors could also help the chamber during the new year.

“We’ve had an immensely supportive board of directors and are very excited for Donna Compher to become president,” Coulson said. “She’s been such an integral part of what we do here and we look forward to what her new leadership will bring.”

Coulson added that the chamber was already gearing up for the 2016 slate of events, which includes Spring Celebration on April 9, the Jazz and Blues Bash on June 4, the Bathtub Races on July 15 and the Fiddler’s Convention Sept. 23-25.

Amant promised “new and exciting” things in the coming year, including several seminars and a re-invigorated business after-hours series.

“We’re ready for a good year,” Amant said. “Morgan and I have it dialed in.”

Tickets for the event are $43 each and include one alcoholic beverage and “Nonna’s Sunday Dinner,” a longtime tradition at Flavors of Italy consisting of an Italian salad, a meat-heavy traditional pasta dish and dessert.

A vegetarian option is available, and a cash bar will be provided. Space is limited to 75 people, and the event runs from 6-9 p.m.

“It’s a great way for everybody from the community and the Berlin Chamber to be together and enjoy some time to socialize and network and have fun,” Amant said.

Touch of Italy is located on 67th Street in the Holiday Inn, in Ocean City.

For tickets or more information, call 410-641-4775 or email chamberinfo@berlinchamber.org.

Caroline Forrester and Brian Robertson will open a new art studio in Berlin this spring. Forrester will sell jewelry, made in the studio, and Robertson will create and sell prints.

Printmaker, jeweler to open shop on Main St. in Berlin

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Jan. 14, 2016) Two new artists are moving onto Main Street Berlin, and in one convenient location.

As soon as next month, the doors are expected to open on 16 North Main Street, upstairs, between JJFish and Ta Da, on Brian Robertson's Berlin Printery and Caroline Forrester's CFD Fine Jewelry shop.

Robertson, a graphic designer for a local marketing firm, will both create and sell his work in the space using a pair of vintage letterpresses. He described his work as "retro," drawing inspiration from old architecture and the art deco movement, but with a "contemporary twist."

"I'll do some posters and some vintage post cards and prints. I'll be building inventory this whole entire year basically," he said, adding that some of it would be "Berlin-related."

"It could be hand-cut linoleum, screen-printed posters, or something that looks like an old map of Berlin," he said. "Stuff like that."

When Robertson heard Forrester was eager to make the move from a similar background in design to more handmade fare, he envisioned her as a perfect partner for a collaborative shop.

"I knew her through the graphic design circle and some mutual friends," he said. "Somebody told me she was making jewelry now instead of doing design, and I said, 'perfect!' Jewelry – printmaking – it should go together well," Robertson said.

Forrester formerly worked at Burley Oak as the lead graphic designer, creating everything from band posters to the artwork currently seen on cans of Burley Oak beer.

"I'm excited to have a space to work in, because I've grown out of my garage," she said. "I'm really just developing my first line. That's why I'm so excited to get into this space – to just finally sit down and make my first jewelry line."

Her primary media are silver and metalsmithing. She "loves" working with gold, but is often deterred by the high cost of the materials.

"I've always loved metal," Forrester said. "I remember in grade school we had a project to recreate a famous work of art, and the teacher was expecting watercolor or pencil or something, but I made an Alexander Calder sculpture out of sheet metal."

Forrester said she would take custom orders, but hopes the majority of her income derives from her own line of original jewelry.

Both artists hope to be open by February or March – the sooner the better.

"It's just a matter of finishing painting the walls, getting my jeweler's bench set up and I can go to town," Forrester said.

For Robertson, the goal is to become sustainable in his original creations.

"Make a living selling art – that's the main goal," Robertson said. "I have no idea where we go in the future. We'll see, I guess."

"Berlin is a good place to be," he continued. "It's starting to build an identity around the arts and get more of a reputation. More people are moving in and younger business owners are taking over. It's a fun time, and it's opening up more creative avenues for artists."

Forrester has similar, if albeit slightly loftier goals.

"Ideally, I'd love to have my stuff in boutiques across the world," she said. "There are certain shops that I love in New York and San Francisco and Seattle and all over that host all these other jewelers that I'm obsessed with at the moment. My goal is to be amongst them."

Newark's WCDC to partner with gift basket biz

(Jan. 14, 2016) The Worcester County Developmental Center (WCDC), which empowers individuals with intellectual disabilities to achieve economic and social independence by providing work opportunities and supports, has recently partnered with Gifts Fulfilled, a new business in Worcester County, to have the clients assemble gift baskets at the Newark, Md. center.

Gifts Fulfilled is new to the Eastern Shore, but owner Kim Shanahan is an industry expert with more than 17 years of experience in the gift industry. Having spent the last seven years visiting Ocean City each summer for family reunions, Shanahan was thrilled when her husband's next military move got them close enough to Ocean City to live there permanently. Finding out about the WCDC through her local business networking group (BNI) was the icing on the cake.

"I first started thinking about employing disabled adults five years ago when I was pregnant. As a mature woman in pregnancy there are more risks and I began to wonder how I would help my child if it were born with a disability," she said. "I realized my business could be set up in such a way as to employ disabled people and the fire was lit in my heart to make that happen."

"The partnership with the WCDC has been amazing," she continued. "Having the extra hands during the holidays helped us fulfill over 100 orders for our Holiday Favorites gift box that would have been impossible to get done without them."

Next up for the WCDC and Gifts Fulfilled will be Valentine's Day gifts created with love by the clients at the WCDC.

For more information about Gifts Fulfilled, contact Shanahan at 877-800-2665 or at Kim@BookBouquet. For more information about WCDC and its programs, contact Jack Ferry, executive director of WCDC, at 410-632-2809 ext 117 or ferry@wcdcservices.org.

Restaurant Week in Berlin continues through Sunday

By Kara Hallissey
Staff Writer

(Jan. 14, 2016) Berlin’s inaugural Restaurant Week is in full swing, and diners have a few more days to catch deals throughout town.

During the event, more than a dozen restaurants are offering special prices on select menus until Sunday, Jan. 17.

“Berlin has never had a restaurant week, and it’s a way to give back to locals in January,” said Ivy Wells, Berlin’s economic and community development director. “For a small town, we have a lot of restaurants who serve breakfast, lunch and dinner.”

Participating restaurants include Siculi, Leaky Petes, Main Street Deli, Blacksmith, Crush N Crab, Berlin Coffee House, Baked Dessert Café, Drummers Café, the Globe, the Burley Inn Tavern, Raynes Reef, Burley Oak, Maryland Wine Bar and On What Grounds.

“It is good to be proud of what you are and we have good food in this town,” said Ruth Koontz, owner of Main Street Deli. “Go someplace you have never been before, be daring and try something new.”

For lunch or dinner, the Main Street Deli will offer $8 sandwiches including pulled pork, pulled chicken, buffalo chicken, chicken parmesan or meatball with a soft drink and chips.

The chicken parmesan sandwich was introduced to the public for the first time during the promotion and meatball sandwiches are the most popular item, Koontz said.

Blake Lindenberger has been a cook at Raynes Reef for five years and raves about the fresh ground beef cheeseburgers the restaurant is offering for lunch or dinner with fries for $7.50.

“All local business is the backbone of this area and you will be greeted with a smile by friendly staff who enjoy coming to work every day,” Lindenberger said. “We take care of you. All the restaurants in Berlin need to work together to promote business and help each other out.”

Denise Cooper, general manager of Siculi, agrees.

“Everyone in town is participating, and it’s all about community in Berlin,” she said.

The $10 lunch options being offered at Siculi include a choice of a house or Caesar salad, a one-topping small pizza and cannoli, or a cup of soup, a half chicken salad sandwich and a cannoli.

“Our thin crust pizza has won the [Delmarva Media Group] People’s Choice award the past two years,” Cooper said.

For dinner, patrons pay $20 for three courses, including an appetizer, choice of house or Caesar salad and an entrée.

Appetizer choices are eggplant parmesan, meatballs or garlic shrimp. Diners choose between three entrees: filet mignon with two grilled shrimp, potatoes and vegetables, eggplant parmesan with pasta, or tortellini in a lobster cream sauce.

“Our tortellini is homemade; all our sauces are made from scratch and it makes a big difference,” Cooper said.

The Berlin Coffee House will serve $6.95 Belgian waffles with or without sausage, and a house coffee or tea.

Leaky Petes will offer a grilled cheese sandwich with Swiss cheese, apples and Dijon mustard, in addition to a bowl of cream of crab soup for $10.95 during lunchtime. For dinner, a pork osso bucco over creamy grits, demi-glace and root vegetables will be available for $23.95.

Drummers Café at The Atlantic Hotel has a chef’s grilled cheese with a choice of soup or side salad and lemon lust for dessert as a lunch option for $14.50. Dinner starts off with a garden salad followed by a five- to six-ounce lobster tail, a crabcake and two fried oysters served with a starch and vegetable. Diners will have lemon lust for dessert and the meal is $36.

Local realtor Cam Bunting came up with the idea to show the variety of restaurants in Berlin. Wells also pitched in, setting up a Facebook page where most of the menus are listed.

“Berlin is thriving, and it’s an opportunity to experience all the new restaurants we have and make it worth their while,” Wells said.

Organizers are also having a contest where the winner will receive $100 and gift certificates to participating restaurants. To enter, diners must check in or mention the restaurant on Facebook, Instagram or Twitter or upload a photo of your meal and tag it as #EatBerlinToWin and #BerlinRestaurantWeek.

Make sure all posts are public, there is one entry per person and the winner will be announced next week.

A second installment of Restaurant Week is in the works for spring, although no date has been confirmed.

Burley Oak builds beer in Berlin with Dogfish Head

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Jan. 14, 2016) When Burley Oak Brewing Company founder Bryan Brushmiller moved from home brewing in his garage to a commercial operation in Berlin, he turned to Dogfish Head owner Sam Calagione for help and advice.

Four years later, the two breweries released their first official collaboration at a daylong celebration in Berlin, Jan. 2. They began working on the beer last month.

“Sam and I have been friends from the beginning. He always kind of helped me out,” Brushmiller said. “I reached out to him and said, ‘Hey, let’s make a beer together’ and we decided to go uber-local.”

The “uber-local” recipe included beach plums and wheat from Delaware, and rye grown by Brushmiller himself. They added a lactic acid bacterium for tartness and the result was a sour rye stout dubbed “Pants are Cumbersome.”

One of the largest craft breweries in the world, Dogfish Head made a name for itself by using both bold flavors – and off-center names – in its beers.

“Sam came up with the name, and as soon as he proposed it to me I loved it,” Brushmiller said. “It’s very Dogfish and we were all wearing shorts around here anyway.”

In honor of the new beer, Burley threw a “No Pants Party,” drawing hundreds of people to the small brewery on Old Ocean City Boulevard in Berlin.

During the event, Brushmiller was able to sample his work for the first time after carbonation and declared it a “wonderful beer” with the sweetness of the plums balancing out the sour notes.

For Brushmiller, the event was a chance to celebrate independent breweries, as well as to sample a new, limited-release concoction.

“We’re really excited to showcase indie craft beer, from one end of the spectrum to the other,” he said. “You have Sam and Dogfish – one of the largest craft breweries in America, he’s independently owned. He’s turned down offers from corporations like Anheuser-Busch several times – to me on this end of the spectrum, where we’re super-small. The one thing that unites us is we’re both independent, family-owned breweries.”

Despite Dogfish’s size and stature in the marketplace, Brushmiller said he still considers the Milton, Del.-based company a “local” brewery.

“I feel like Dogfish is the epitome of local. They’re just a larger local business,” he said. “What they do for the craft beer industry is amazing in and of itself. They’ve spearheaded the effort to really push craft beer [into the mainstream] and they’ve really propelled the notion of independent craft beer more than anybody I’ve seen.

“You’re going to see that in the coming months, where independent craft beer is going to be the new buzzword,” Brushmiller added. “You may have local, and you may have craft beer, but they may be owned by a multinational conglomeration. That’s something that distinguishes us from everybody else, and the same goes for Dogfish.”

JOSH DAVIS/BAYSIDE GAZETTE
Burley Oak’s new collaboration with Dogfish Head, dubbed “Pants are Cumbersome,” was released to the public during a pajama party at the Berlin brewery on Jan. 2.

'Valentines for Veterans' program enters 16th year

(Jan. 14, 2016) Start the year off by thanking a veteran for his or her service with a Valentine card. For the 16th year, cards will be sent to four veteran rehab medical centers to thank them for their sacrifices and to let them know they are loved, appreciated and not forgotten. All area schools, clubs, businesses, organizations and individuals are invited to participate with purchased cards (no youth cards), but homemade cards are particularly appreciated. No postage is necessary, and the card is addressed to "A Veteran." Through the generosity of Linda Dearing and the Copy Central staff, the cards, plus some candy, will be delivered to Charlotte Hall Veterans Hospital, Baltimore Rehab Center, Baltimore VA Medical Center and Perry Point Hospital. Drop-off locations are: Shamrock Realty Group, 11049 Racetrack Rd., Ocean Pines; Copy Central, Cathell Rd., Ocean Pines; the Ocean Pines Library, the Ocean Pines Community Center and Recreation and Parks building, and other locations as they become available. The deadline is Wednesday, Jan. 27. For more information, call 410-641-8138 or email worcester.row@verizon.net or call 443-614-3957 or email louetta@mcclafflin.com. # Decatur's Arts R Magic Festival slated for Jan. 14

By Katie Tabeling
Staff Writer

(Jan. 14, 2016) Budding local artists will cast a spell on the community during the Arts R Magic Festival at Stephen Decatur High School, Thursday, Jan. 14.

Students in grades 9-12 will showcase their creative efforts in visual photography, painting, drawing and crafts. There will also be dance and music performances as well as literary readings.

But according to event organizer and art teacher, Mary Ann Fardelmann, the magic in the semiannual festival isn't in the art work, it's in recognizing student's talents – whether in the fine arts or in non-traditional activities.

"We take a look at talents that are school appropriate. We just want to showcase a variety of things that students are talented with," said Fardelmann, who has been involved with the event for four years.

In the festival's six years, students have performed hip-hop numbers, juggled, choreographed rifle routines, read short fiction and perform in a band. According to Fardelmann, one student even made a variety of paper airplanes and hosted paper-folding demonstrations during a past festival.

"We just said, 'go for it.' Anyone who wants to get involved in any way, we promote that," she said.

The Arts R Magic Festival started six years ago, when English teacher Dawn Russell-Marriner wanted to celebrate student's artistic talents not only in the arts departments, but school wide. Russell-Marriner spearheaded the project, with assistance from other teachers in the event's first year, Fardelmann said.

This year, 40 to 50 students are involved in the event, including students that help coordinate the event. Teachers recruit students by putting up flyers in hallways, making announcements and talking with them about their individual talents.

"It's also word of mouth, really. [Students] start talking with their friends and that's how we get some bands involved," Fardelmann said. "Ms. Marriner is very enthusiastic about the arts. Two years ago when we were promoting it, she wrote and performed a rap about Arts R Magic and performed it on morning announcements."

Visual art displays and singing performers will be located in the main hallway near the front doors and the media center. The black box theater and the auditorium will also be used for events.

There will be a map of venues, and a brochure of 10- to 15-minute performances for attendees. Students will also go down hallways and alert attendees of scheduled performances.

"Attendance varies each year, so it's going to be interesting to see how turnout goes this year," Fardelmann said. "But I think this year is going to be great."

The Arts R Magic Festival will be Stephen Decatur High School, off Route 50 at 9913 Seahawk Road, on Jan. 14 from 6-8 p.m. Admission is free.

Bravo to Berlin's bold approach to its future

Congratulations to the Town of Berlin, again, for continuing to go after opportunities that should bear fruit over the next few years, rather than focusing exclusively on projects and needs that deliver an immediate return.

While there's no such thing as a risk-free deal, the town's pending purchase of the former Tyson chicken processing plant sets the stage for improvement no matter how the project turns out a decade from now.

As Mayor Gee Williams observed this week, the plant has been sitting vacant and more or less unattended for years, offering nothing to the town except a spoiled view.

At least under town ownership, the property can be made to look better now and possibly overwhelmingly good at some point down the road.

Time, patience and a willingness to invest in a vision has become something of a tradition in Berlin, going back to the day when local investors resurrected the Atlantic Hotel.

Although local government has followed that path for years, most notably transforming the downtown into a postcard-quality entity with a solid commercial foundation, this latest act promises to be the town's next big thing.

So many small towns have been their own worst enemies, as they pursue no greater goal than fiscal stability in the face of declining commerce, dwindling populations, the loss of opportunity and identity. That, of course, just makes their problems worse.

Berlin, however, has been aggressive in its pursuit of a future that builds on its current success. That's not only rare, it's truly impressive.

Coastal Hospice thanks 'angels'

Editor,

I would like to personally thank all of the angels who contributed so generously to Coastal Hospice's annual "Be an Angel" fundraiser. Our wonderful supporters — 1,156 of them — contributed nearly $91,000 to help fund the charity care we provide.

Last year, Coastal Hospice cared for 1,096 patients and families in the four counties on the Lower Eastern Shore and provided more than $650,000 in charity care to patients who lacked the resources to pay for the care they desperately needed.

The average gift this year was nearly $77, which will have a significant impact on the care Coastal Hospice provides. For example, $75 can pay for one month of medical equipment for a patient at home.

We sincerely thank everyone who generously donated to our "Be an Angel" drive.

Alane K. Capen
President
Coastal Hospice &
Palliative Care
Salisbury, Md.

'Be a Santa' successful

Editor,

On behalf of the staff at Home Instead Senior Care, a provider of nonmedical home care to seniors in their homes, we wish to thank everyone who participated in our "Be a Santa to a Senior" program.

Through the generosity of those who purchased the gifts, this year the program was able to bring joy to the lives of 358 seniors in our communities during the holiday season.

We would also like to thank our community partners who helped supply the names of deserving seniors, as well as those that provided space for our Gift Trees.

Those partners include Apple Discount Drugs, Snow Hill Pharmacy, Ocean Pines Community Center and Salisbury Chamber of Commerce, along with MAC Area Agency on Aging, Worcester County Commission on Aging, Worcester County Department of Social Services and Worcester County Health Department.

We thoroughly enjoyed working with all of them and appreciate their help in making this wonderful program a success. We can't wait until next year.

Corrie and Don Boger,
co-owners

Berlin

In ‘world gone mad,’ food can be comfort

Lemmy and David Bowie are dead, the market is crashing, OPEC is holding secret meetings, Iran has detained 10 of our sailors, and watching the news is akin to watching the psycho-thriller movies of the '80s. Do you remember those flicks; the ones that we always thought we'd never live to see? I guess we were wrong, but then reminiscing the way we dressed and wore our hair in the '80s, we were wrong about a lot of things.

By Paul Suplee,

What in the world is going on? Is this the “new normal?”

In a world-gone-mad, it's nice to know that we can look around us and see the good if we choose to do so. I see it every day in the faces of my cats (even the “Evil One”), the swagger of my aging dog, the triumphs of my children and the strength of my wife.

I can be in the worst mood, which is only exacerbated by any of the news stations out there – take your choice, they're all pretty much the same – but I turn around pretty quickly when I see one of my kids spend quality time with their mother or Felix the cat. Felix is our gentle giant, and you just can't be mad when you're around him. He's an old soul.

And as all of this races through my head, I go back to last Saturday night, when two of my children helped me, as they often do, cater a Children's House charity dinner. I feel it's important for them to contribute a little, and I certainly count my lucky stars every day; hence, I love cooking these dinners. If I can teach my children that they, through their actions, can bring a little love and happiness to a child and their family, I've done my job.

Which brings us to the salad of the party; one small part of the larger event, but a critical one nonetheless. There are some pretty funky things in here, all available online. Feeling adventurous? Try it all; nothing is complicated, but you'll have some new ingredients in your pantry.

Just enjoy yourself and make a salad that fits your personality – a meal that makes you happy. After all, I think we could all use a little of that these days.

Boston Bibb Salad, Goat Cheese, Black Garlic

Serves 6

3 heads Boston Bibb lettuce
6 cloves black garlic
6 slices herbed goat cheese (recipe follows)

2/3 cup Pickled onions (recipe follows)

2/3 cup Orange-Pomegranate Vinaigrette (recipe follows)

1/2 cup Candied walnuts (recipe follows)

3 Tbsp. Olive oil powder (recipe follows)

1. Arrange neatly on the plate, ensuring to showcase the olive oil powder and black garlic, as these are fairly new ingredients in the food world

2. Serve and enjoy

Herbed Goat Cheese

Six slices

1 log fresh goat cheese
2 Tbsp. Chopped fresh Italian parsley

2 Tbsp. Chopped fresh basil
1 tsp. Cracked black pepper

1. Spread herbs and pepper evenly on cutting board and roll goat cheese gently back and forth until herbs and pepper have coated the log

2. Keep chilled until ready to serve, then slice with a warm knife

Pickled Onions

Makes about 1 cup

1 med. Red onion, julienne
1 cup Good quality Champagne vinegar

1/4 cup Sugar, or to taste
1 tsp. Kosher salt

1. Combine ingredients and allow to sit for at least two hours

2. Keep chilled until ready to serve and then drain before placing on salad

Orange-Pomegranate Vinaigrette

Makes about 2 cups
Juice of 2 oranges

1/2 cup Pomegranate juice (Pom®)
1 tsp. Cracked black pepper
1 tsp. Kosher salt
1/2 cup Grapeseed oil
Xanthan, as needed to thicken

1. Combine all ingredients, except for the Xanthan in a container, that will accommodate an immersion blender

2. Blend thoroughly and add some xanthan to thicken. Add this in very small doses (per manufacturer's instructions), as this additive gives a vinaigrette an amazing, velvety mouthfeel ... Up to the point that you overdo it. I won't tell you what consistency it takes on then; you probably won't even try it

3. Adjust seasoning to taste and keep chilled until service

Candied Walnuts

Makes 2 cups

2 cups Walnut halves & pieces
3 Tbsp. granulated sugar

1. Toss walnuts and sugar and sprinkle a little water on

2. Add just enough water, while rubbing sugar on the surface of the walnuts, to get the sugar to stick to the walnuts. Too much water, and the nuts become messy

3. Bake in a 375 oven for about five minutes, turning them a few times with a spatula

4. Keep an eye on them. Some ovens will take less time while others take longer. If you're turning them every two minutes, you'll have no problem

5. When they are a nice golden caramel, remove and allow to cool. They will be a little tender until the cool down; then they'll be crispy

6. Keep in an airtight container for up to a week

Olive Oil Powder

Makes 6 Tbsp.

2 Tbsp. EV Olive oil
Tapioca Maltodextrin, as needed

1. Add TMD by the tablespoon until it has absorbed the oil. It will turn into a powdery mass

2. Keep away from moisture until you are ready to use it

3. Sprinkle on a dry part of the plate. When the guest eats it, it will dissolve and have a sweetened, wonderful flavor

Two at AGH earn doctorate degrees in nursing practice

(Jan. 14, 2016) In 2010, the Institute of Medicine (IOM) issued a set of eight recommendations regarding the education of nurses in the U.S., made in large part to address the increasingly complex nature of healthcare and improve the level of care coordination provided to patients to help them better navigate the healthcare world.

Atlantic General Hospital took those recommendations – among them to increase the proportion of nurses with a baccalaureate degree to 80 percent, and double the number of nurses with a doctorate by 2020 – and ran with them.

“It has been well documented through research that the level of nursing education in a healthcare organization is directly proportionate to quality of care and patient satisfaction with that care,” said Colleen Wareing, vice president of patient-care services at Atlantic General Hospital. “The higher the percentage of nurses with an advanced level of education, the lower the incidence of mortality and potentially avoidable complications.”

Notably, two Atlantic General Hospital nurses earned their Doctorate in Nursing Practice this year.

Lisa Bayles, DNP, CRNP, RN, MSN, was awarded a Doctorate in

Nursing Practice from Wilmington University in May 2015. Her doctorate study was titled “Implementation of Readiness to Change and Self-Efficacy: Impact on a Nonsurgical Weight Loss Program.”

Bayles has been serving as a nurse practitioner, specializing in women’s health, in Worcester County for more than 20 years. Her focus is in gynecological services for adolescents, adults and geriatric patients.

She pursued her nursing education at Salisbury University and received her medical practice training in Salisbury. She is board certified in women’s health and family medicine.

A trained colposcopist, Bayles is a member of the American Society for Colposcopy and Cervical Pathology.

Althea Foreman, DNP, RN, CCNS, CEN, FNE A/P, was awarded a Doctorate in Nursing Practice from Wilmington University in May 2015. She received her BSN from Wilmington College and her Master’s Degree from Liberty University as a Critical Care Clinical Nurse Specialist (CCNS).

The focus of her doctorate capstone was “Emergency Department Recidivism as it Relates to Health Literacy.”

Althea has been an ER nurse for 27 years, employed at AGH since 1997, and the Emergency Department Nurse Manager for the last five years.

Atlantic General Hospital and Health System has been recognized for having the lowest percentage of healthcare-acquired conditions of any hospital in the state three years in a row, and has the highest patient-satisfaction rating for hospital care on the Lower Eastern Shore. Initiatives related to nursing higher education have contributed to these accomplishments.

These include:

The James G. and Nancy W. Barrett Scholarship Program, offering full tuition, books and healthcare benefits to recipients who wish to pursue a Bachelor of Science in Nursing and attain their registered nursing certificate. Scholarship recipients are required to work a minimum of 12.5 hours a week while maintaining full-time status in the educational program. Upon completion of their studies, nurses assume a position as a registered nurse at Atlantic General Hospital and Health System for 12 months for each school year in the scholarship program.

The Associate RN-BSN Scholarship Program, offering assistance with tuition and required course books specifically to employed registered nurses who wish to pursue their Bachelor of Science in Nursing. Recipients are required to work for Atlantic General Hospital and Health System for a specified time period after graduation.

Creation of an Education and Work Environment Council to further the continuing education and higher learning efforts of clinical staff at Atlantic General Hospital and Health System. A Professional Nurse Council leads the effort in making higher education and achievement of the IOM aims a reality.

Partnerships with Wor-Wic Community College, Sussex Tech, and Salisbury University to train clinical leaders at Atlantic General to assume nursing education roles to train additional bachelor-prepared nurses.

Beginning in 2016, nurses newly hired at AGH will be asked to complete their BSN within five years of hire.
