Hogan buzzes through Berlin biz

By Josh Davis

(April 28, 2016) Berlin capped a busy week of high-profile Republican visits, with a brief stopover Friday by Gov. Larry Hogan.

Berlin was one of several Eastern Shore sojourns for the governor, who also visited Salisbury, Princess Anne, Crisfield, Ocean City, Newark, Snow Hill and Pocomoke last week.

On Friday, he met with Mayor Gee Williams and Sen. Jim Mathias in Town Hall, and was joined for a quick walking tour of several small businesses with an entourage that included his wife, Yumi, Delegates Mary Beth Carozza and Charles Otto, County Commissioners Bud Church and Jim Bunting, and town Councilmember Elroy Brittingham.

At A Little Bit Sheepish, a yarn shop on Main Street, Hogan shook hands with owner Brenda Trice, walked through the historic two-story building, and cracked wise about signing up for knitting classes.

He stopped for a few photos with lunch guests at the Atlantic Hotel, and presented a proclamation at Rayne's Reef, which he called, "a well-deserved tribute to celebrate and honor more than 100 years of success here in Berlin."

Owner Michael Queen said the framed citation would be hung on the wall of the popular restaurant.

Outside, Hogan looked over the future site of Fathom, a new clothing store next door to Rayne's Reef, still under construction. Queen, who owns the building, said he was having issues with state highway, securing a right of way.

"We'll try to see if we can't get that fixed," Hogan said, sipping a milkshake.

After posing for pictures with employees outside Calvin B. Taylor Bank, Hogan strolled north down Main Street and ended his visit at Sea La Vie, talking with owners Devin Bostic and Hunter Smith while his wife did a little shopping. Bostic and Smith also own Fathom.

Williams, on behalf of Berlin residents and businesses owners, thanked Hogan for his visit.

"It means a lot," he said. "We know that you're not just here when you're here — you have us in mind, and you care about the Shore."

"Thank you so much. Thank you, everybody. We're going to come back next time and spend money," Hogan said, with a laugh.

Hogan, led by security detail, climbed into a car and headed for his next scheduled appearance, in Newark, while Williams and others returned to work at town hall.

Walking back to his office, Williams said the governor's visit helped to reinforce all the work business owners have done to revitalize Berlin.

"His recognition noted that this town has come a long ways," he said. "It's taken multiple generations, and I think today's visit was a perfect sort of analogy for that."

"He and his wife have been visitor's here for years, so he's not a stranger to Berlin," Williams added. "Now, instead of being a guest, he's our governor too. That's cool."

Thousands flock to see Trump stump at Stephen Decatur

(April 28, 2016) They parked in cornfields and waited by the thousands for several hours outside Stephen Decatur High School, last Wednesday evening, all for the opportunity to see, hear or even catch a glimpse of Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump.

Some would and some would not, as the size of the crowd was roughly three times greater than what the school could hold.

The lines wrapped around the enormous makeshift parking lot, tucked between farmland and a former Harley-Davidson store, now gone out of business. State and local police guided traffic — cars and people — and swept the area with German shepherds.

At around 4 p.m., the first Trump supporters filed in through the school towards the gymnasium, which, on a good day, can hold maybe a thousand people.

Tickets given out for the event were said to be in upwards of 20,000, and police estimated 10,000 attended, and 3,000 were let into the building. Some of the overflow was taken to satellite locations inside Decatur, where, through streaming video, they watched the first presidential candidate to speak in the area since John F. Kennedy in 1960.

Inside the gym, supporters, many carrying signs and cheering as they walked through the double doors, climbed into the bleachers. Others formed a standing-room-only crowd around a small stage set up toward the scoreboard end of the gym.

Protests had been talked about all week on social media, but little of that materialized on the day of the event, with the exception of the well-behaved placard holding crowd lining Seahawk Road. A handful of high-schoolers were escorted from the gym just after 6 p.m., although hardly anyone seemed to notice, and the kids themselves didn't seem to take their removal all that seriously, as they laughed their way out the door.

State police said three arrests were

Primary results: Trump, Clinton take Worcester

Rep. frontrunner wins big, Democrat race closer in state; Ireton out in senate

By Brian Gilliland

(April 28, 2016) The presumptive Republican nominee for President and anti-establishment juggernaut Donald J. Trump steamrolled through the Maryland primary Tuesday night, winning 62.8 percent of the vote in Worcester and 54.6 percent statewide, according to unofficial results provided by the state.

Trump won every county in the state, according to the State Board of Elections.

Across the aisle, Hillary Clinton won 63.1 percent of the vote statewide, while challenger Bernie Sanders garnered 32.2 percent. In the county, however, the vote was much closer, with 51.6 percent for Clinton and 41.1 percent for Sanders.

The Republican also-rans finished in a virtual dead heat, with John Kasich edging out Ted Cruz 18.2 percent to 16 percent, or 19,252 to 17,011. Trump, by comparison, collected 66,592 votes, according to unofficial results.

On the Republican side, Maryland is a "winner take all" state, with Trump collecting 35 pledged delegates to the convention. The remaining three delegates are required to support Trump, but not until the convention, according to Ballotpedia.

For Democrats, the pledged delegate allocation is proportional. Of the 95 available, Clinton earned 53, while Sanders took 24.

In the Congressional District 1 race, incumbent Andy Harris won big, again. He collected 77,112 votes, or 78.4 percent.

His next-closest competitor, Michael Smigiel, won 10,597 or 10.8 percent of the voted.

Jim Ireton, former mayor and current Salisbury city councilman, won the battle but lost the war against Joe Werner, taking the county 3,318 to 1,426 but coming up about 2,000 votes short statewide, losing 28,546 to 26,602 or 51.8 percent to 48.2 percent.

Hogan announces funding to finish dualizing Rt. 113

By Brian Gilliland
Associate Editor

(April 28, 2016) When his office announced Gov. Larry Hogan’s schedule for his Eastern Shore Tour last week and noted a transportation press conference at the Board of Education building in Newark, the topic of conversation could only have been Route 113.

The governor announced $86.4 million in funding for the fourth and final phase of the Route 113 dualization project, with construction expected to begin in early spring next year, and opening to traffic two years later.

Worcester County’s major north-south highway has been the county’s priority transportation project for decades. Despite changes in nearly every other facet of life on the shore during that time, one of few constants has been continued support to expand the highway to four lanes for its entire run through Maryland.

“Worcester County did it right,” Jim Ports Jr., deputy secretary of operations for the Department of Transportation, said. “Route 113 was put in as a priority and never once went off. This has been through several governors, but this governor is getting it done.”

Currently underway is Phase 3, which runs from Massey Branch Road as the northernmost junction down to Five Mile Branch Road in the south. Construction began in 2015, and this section is expected to be open to traffic in 2018.

Bicycle and pedestrian improvements will be included, according to the state.

During the offseason, according to information provided by the state, this section of road carries 9,250 to 13,000 vehicles, and a couple hundred more daily during the summer. By 2035, the state estimates traffic will increase significantly.

This section is expected to cost $50.4 million, the lion’s share of which is to come from federal sources. The state’s share is reported to be $14.2 million.

Phase 4 is a 4.3-mile stretch between Five Mile Branch Road in the north to Public Landing Road to the south, and is the final section of road to be converted from two-lane to four-lane highway. Construction will be advertised later this spring, and traffic estimates for this section of road mirror those of Phase 3.

According to figures provided by the state, the federal government will cover $67.2 million of $86.4 million total cost, with the state picking up the balance.

The highway safety project does have a Phase 5, but it is an overpass at the junction of Route 113 and Snow Hill Road and involves no road construction. The completion of Phase 4 signals the end of major expansion efforts on the road.

“I inherited an infrastructure that had largely been ignored,” Gov. Larry Hogan said. “Transportation funds had been syphoned. State funding was slashed 96 percent. Local roads will get $6 million more in the coming fiscal year, and I’m going to commit $2 billion to infrastructure. We’re moving forward with every highest-priority item in the state — all 86 of them.”

Local advocates and officials were pleased by the announcement.

“The county wants to thank Gov. Hogan. We’ve traveled a long road to get here. Route 113 was once a dangerous road and there were too many lives claimed. The project started in 1999, and there’s one more phase to go, which is now going to be completed. Thank you governor,” County Commissioner President Jim Bunting said.

Ports, serving as emcee, then introduced Bob Hulburd, president of CRASH (County Residents Action for Safer Highways, who spearheaded the local push to expand the highway after his cousin Lee Figgs was killed on the highway in 1994.

“The community advocated for this for decades,” Ports said. “The

Controversy follows Gov. Hogan during brief Snow Hill stop

By Brian Gilliland

(April 28, 2016) Small town politics came into play during Gov. Larry Hogan’s visit to Snow Hill, likely unbeknownst to the governor himself, as a downtown business owner took to social media decrying Mayor Charlie Dorman for allegedly leading Hogan past her shop.

Ann Coates, owner of downtown anchor Bishop’s Stock Art Gallery, wasn’t shy about the perceived cold shoulder.

The governor’s walking tour of Snow Hill was by no means exhaustive, as the schedule left very little wiggle room, and most of the downtown shops along Snow Hill Road were skipped. But along Green Street, where Coates’ shop is located, most of the stores were visited by the Hogans’ entourage. Those stops included Harvest Moon and the American Legion, which bookend Bishop’s Stock.

“The mayor took the visitors to every other business but seemed to snub Bishop’s Stock. Guess we have CRASH team deserves credit for keeping the pressure on us.”

Hulburd took the podium in the Board of Education meeting room where he had spent a decade as a member.

“I’ve never been accused of being speechless but I might be today,” he said. “It’s a red letter day ... the community had had enough — 97 people died in the 20 years we’ve pursued this. It became a question of ‘people preservation,’ and lives have been saved today — maybe yours, or someone you love,” Hulburd continued.

“Thank goodness for what we have. Thank goodness for the people who came before. I hope to live long enough to see it completed,” he said.

Hulburd said he expects to walk on the completed road with SHA district engineer Donnie Drewer.

Drewer, who will retire in October, said he intends to keep the promise.

JOSH DAVIS/BAYSIDE GAZETTE
GOP Presidential frontrunner Donald Trump stops to sign autographs after a rally at Stephen Decatur High School in Berlin, April 20.

Berlin police tout involvement during Trump visit last week

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(April 28, 2016) GOP Presidential frontrunner Donald Trump averages 15 arrests at each campaign stop. That’s according to Berlin Police Chief Arnold Downing, who reviewed Trump’s April 20 campaign rally at Stephen Decatur High School for the mayor and Town Council Monday night.

On that day, just three arrests were made.

“I can’t say any more about pre-planning,” Downing said. “We would have loved to have more notice, of course, but we had our law enforcement partners sit down and do in two days ... what presidential contingents [normally] take weeks to go ahead and plan for. If the president was here, it would have been a lot easier.”

Downing said police had to play “alphabet soup,” meaning they had to work with multiple acronymic agencies such as the FBI and TSA.

Secret Service oversaw the effort, although Downing said the most of the work was done by local law enforcement, including the Worcester and Wicomico county sheriff offices, the police departments of Berlin and Ocean City and the Maryland State Police.

The Berlin Fire Company and county fire marshal also assisted, and Downing said property owners adjacent to the school granted full access to their land.

More than 10,000 people came to the event, arriving in more than 5,000 vehicles.

“It could not have been done without town staff. They went ahead and provided services with one phone call,” Downing said. “I don’t know if it would have happened in any other locale. They did it in short notice, and they did wonderful jobs.”

One worker pitched in during what should have been a day off to mow the grass of the massive field that police turned into a parking lot for the occasion.

“We found out from the fire department, if you parked a whole lot of cars running on that [field] you could have a big fire,” Downing said.

“A whole lot of folks checked their egos at their door. That included Secret Service. They came back and told us what they thought, and we laughed at them and said, ‘No, that’s not the way,’” Downing said. “Our input was very valuable.”

Mayor Gee Williams said the event was “a good reflection on the town and on the region,” that largely went off with an incident.

“This whole idea of collaboration and partnership – I think this is a perfect example of what’s possible when folks willingly support each other,” he said.

Councilmember Elroy Brittingham noted that residents on Flower Street were stunned to see Trump’s motorcade traveling down that road, towards the high school.

“And by the way, they were speeding, led by state police,” he said.

“We’ll go ahead and send them tickets later,” Downing said.

Trump handily wins Maryland primary, earning 35 delegates

■ TRUMP continued made during the entire day, all related to disorderly conduct.

At about 6:45, Decatur student Heather McDonough, a senior, sang the national anthem. Just after, chants of "U.S.A." and "build that wall" briefly erupted, then dissipated.

The New York businessman and television celebrity arrived a half-hour late, at about 7:30 p.m., having flown into Salisbury airport and traveled by escorted motorcade down a cleared Route 50 to Berlin. He spoke for just less than 45 minutes, starting with the topic of his decisive primary election victory in New York, the day before.

"We had a great night last night," he said. "The media was saying you can't get over 50 [percent]. Very hard to get over 50, even if you're really against two guys who don't have what it takes. Yet, we got 61."

He went on to predict a decisive general election win against former secretary of state and senator Hillary Clinton.

"Crooked' Hillary Clinton will not have a chance. She's not bringing jobs back. She doesn't know about the economy. She makes bad decisions ... she's got bad judgement. We are going to beat her so badly," he said. "It's going to be something that you're going to watch and really enjoy watching."

Trump said Clinton "should not be allowed to run" for president, and declared that the statute of limitations would still allow her to be prosecuted for her actions while serving as secretary of state.

"What's she done is terrible," he said. "So many people, for doing so far less – whether it's General [David] Petraeus or others – they've suffered dearly for doing just a small fraction of what she did."

He promised, as the theme of his campaign has gone, to make "our country great again." and said, as president, he would create new jobs.

"Honestly, you either have that instinct or you don't," he said. "I happen to be born with that ability. Jobs [are] being moved to Mexico for no reason whatsoever," Trump continued.

"The Hispanics are great people. The Mexicans are great people. I employ thousands ... of Hispanics. They're great. The problem is, the Mexican leaders are too smart, too cunning, too sharp for our leaders, and they're ripping us so badly – and I don't blame them. I blame our leaders. I don't blame them. My hat's off to them if they can get away with it. With me, they're not getting away with it."

The crowd erupted into another chant of "build that wall" at the Mexican border. When Trump asked who would pay for it, the crowd screamed, in unison, "Mexico."

"Hey, is it fun being at a Trump rally?" he asked. "Do you think this happens with lyin' Ted Cruz? First of all, the crowd would be about 25 people, then they'd start falling asleep listening to this guy."

Trump vowed to make the military "strong again," erase trade deficits with China, Mexico and Japan, and lower taxes for the middle class and for businesses.

"Right now we're the highest taxed nation in the world, and the most regulated nation in the world," he said. "We're going to knock the hell out of the regulatory [systems]."

He proposed imposing a 35 percent tax on goods sold by American businesses that set up shop overseas.

"One of two things will happen; they'll either pay the tax and we'll make a fortune, or, mostly likely, they won't leave ... that's probably more likely," he said.

"We're going to be tough. We're going to be smart. We're not going to be so politically correct," Trump continued. "And we're going to bring our jobs back."

At one point, Trump introduced staffer Kevin Chmielewski, a Stephen Decatur High School graduate, class of 1998.

"I don't know what they produce at this school, but this guy is a champ," Trump said. "He's great. He's been with me right from the beginning and he's tough as hell."

The crowd briefly breaking out into chants of "Kevin! Kevin! Kevin!" as Chmielewski approached the microphone, chewing gum and appearing more than a little flummoxed.

"Thank you guys," Chmielewski said.

"He's a great speaker too," Trump said, deadpanning.

"You're going to remember this evening when you look back ... when you go to vote," he said, referring to Maryland's primary election on Tuesday. "You're going to vote and that's when our country will have started, because that vote is very important."

"The vote from Maryland is very, very important. "We're going to do things that have never been done before. We're going to make, not only our country great, we're going to make our country better than ever before," Trump continued.

After he finished speaking, Trump stayed to sign autographs for hundreds of supporters who flocked around the staging area.

Others, no less energized, rushed outside, hoping to find their cars in the dark, in the cornfield.

Later that evening, Trump tweeted, "Thank you Maryland- what a great way to conclude the day! Will be back soon."

Full details of the April 26 primary were not available at press time, but unofficial results suggested Trump won the state, handily, carrying all 35 available Republican delegates. In Worcester County, he won more than 60 percent of the vote.

Gov. Hogan visit helps to put Snow Hill 'on the map'

■ GOV. HOGAN continued no value to the town,” she posted, in part, on Facebook. A flurry of support in the form of likes and comments ensued.

First Lady Yumi Hogan did visit Bishop's Stock and stood for a photo with Coates during the visit. Dorman was dismissive of Coates' complaints, and said it was part of an ongoing disagreement.

While this situation played out behind the scenes, at the forefront was Gov. Hogan, who stopped to talk and take photos with passersby and shop owners. In downtown Snow Hill, Hogan was flanked by numerous other elected officials, including Sen. Jim Mathias, Delegates Mary Beth Carozza and Charles Otto, the town's mayor and council but neither of the town's representatives on the county commissioners.

Commissioner Diana Purnell attended the governor's visit to Ocean City Elementary School and a lunch meeting in the north end of the county earlier in the day, but said she was unable to make the events scheduled in her district.

Commissioner Ted Elder, whose district also includes portions of the town, said he was unable to attend because of his responsibilities developing the county budget and his job as a school bus driver.

Commissioners Jim Bunting, Chip Bertino, Joe Mitrecic, Bud Church and Merrill Lockfaw had no such encumbrances and did attend.

While Gov. Hogan was conducting man-on-the-street interviews, it was the first lady who made purchases and visited stores away from the noise and bustle of the tour.

Other business owners visited by governor were supportive of the visit and the politician.

days ago and the governor here now is bringing more exposure to our town. The potential to grow is there,” Suzanne Timmons, owner of Sassy Girl Boutique, said.

Rick Smith, owner of the Corner Shoppe, agreed.

“Snow Hill is a sleepy little town, but when you see the money we spend on schools and buildings you can see so much potential for growth. The governor’s visit helps a lot,” Smith said.

Gary Weber, owner of the Blue Dog Café, appreciated the visit but also had loftier goals for the meeting.

“Hopefully he’ll get on board with the train, and it can bring Snow Hill, Pocomoke City and Berlin together. We need something like that to get us back on track,” Weber said. “We don’t want to be a bedroom community for Salisbury, we want to be the most important thing along Route 113.”

If the mayor did have ulterior motives, it was to show the Hogans to the town's train station, now used as a meeting hall, to press the town's interest in bringing an excursion train to town.

"The governor told me he wants to see the status of the train, and he was going to talk to [Department of Housing and Community Development Secretary Kenneth] Holt. I think it'll happen sooner or later — things move slowly," Dorman said.

After the whirlwind tour of the downtown, the mayor and governor spirited away to visit the train station.

Afterwards, Dorman gave his impressions of the governor's visit.

"He was very impressed with our little town. It was very positive. He told the downtown business owners 'help is on the way,'" Dorman said. "Know he knows where Snow Hill is, and I think it's good. At least it put us on the map."

Snow Hill downtown WiFi delayed, about two weeks

By Brian Gilliland
Associate Editor

(April 28, 2016) Though expected to be available and working last Tuesday, wireless Internet access in downtown Snow Hill has yet to happen.

“It’s for the public, tourists and other visitors,” Michael Day, town economic development consultant, said. “It’s another way for us to be friendly and welcoming to people. Salisbury already does this and Berlin did it a while ago.”

Four transponders have been installed: one on Green Street, two on River Street and another on Bank Street, Day said.

The coverage would include Sturgis Park and the Pocomoke River Canoe Company along the north edge of town and wouldn’t go much farther east, but would continue west to the area near the police station and likely as far south as Market Street, Day said.

Day said the system would support a webcam he hopes local broadcasters might use as part of their area show-cases.

Right now, the network, which Day said was operable in some places but not others, has a generic name, but will be listed as “Snow Hill WiFi” on appropriate devices once the system goes live. A password, Day said, will not be required.

Similarly, Day confirmed the town will be providing internet access as a service, and will not be collecting or sharing any data about users’ habits or locations as they use the system.

The town is picking up the cost of the installation, around $1,200, Day said. There is also a monthly charge for service, which is less than the installation charge but also includes phone service for the town.

Taylor Ballard, business account executive with Comcast, said the delay would last a maximum of two weeks. Ballard said the hitch stems from the adaptation of a new product offered by Comcast into an outdoor downtown setting.

“This product, Comcast Business WiFi Pro, just launched a month ago,” he said. “It’s more built towards a small business environment.”

Ballard explained the traditional method for offering WiFi to the public is to bundle the service with an existing high-speed connection.

“You buy a big pipe and also provide WiFi. We can do it all now through this new product,” he said.

Generally speaking, Ballard said, you also do it indoors.

“It’s all there,” Ballard said of the infrastructure, “we just need to direct it to the main site. We really had to think outside of the box on this one.”

Hogan awards Pocomoke citations

State champ field hockey, basketball teams, PHS principal and town gov't

By Brian Gilliland
Associate Editor

(April 28, 2016) After stops at Ocean City Elementary School, Assateague Island, Berlin and Snow Hill, and with the weather turning against him, Gov. Larry Hogan made his way down to Pocomoke to attend Fourth Friday and award the town four citations for its recent successes.

Rain forced the event inside the Delmarva Discovery Center, where a crowd in the hundreds was either waiting for the governor's arrival or browsing the art and other items on display.

First, Hogan issued a citation to Mayor Bruce Morrison and said the town really lived up to its slogan of "friendliest town on the Eastern Shore." He applauded the mayor for the community spirit he encountered and marveled at the success of the local sports teams.

Next, Hogan recognized two of those teams individually: the state champion field hockey and boys' basketball teams.

The awards were for the recognition both teams brought to Pocomoke City and the state as a whole, Hogan said.

Finally, Dr. Annette Wallace, principal of Pocomoke High School, was issued a surprise citation in recognition of an earlier honor, when she was named Maryland's Principal of the Year by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

This was Wallace's second such surprise honor for the award, as staff and students worked hard to keep her nomination secret.

Hogan said in all the touring he's done of Maryland's towns, he'd never issued four citations to a single location before.

Following the event, Gov. Hogan offered thoughts on his tour of the lower shore.

"I promised to pay attention to all areas and provide all the help we can to this beautiful part of the state. It's a shame we only get to see Ocean City, when there's a whole lot more to see on the shore," Hogan said.

Discovery Center Executive Director Stacey Weisner said she was thrilled to host the event on behalf of the town, and the center would continue to "do everything we can for the town."

Part of the reason the center would be able to do that, Weisner said, was through a $300,000 appropriation administered to the center from the state government during the most recent session of the General Assembly.

Preceding the Delmarva Discovery Center visit, Hogan joined Mayor Morrison, the Town Council and other dignitaries, including Del. Charles Otto and County Commissioner Merrill Lockfaw, for a quick stroll through the downtown as rain began to fall.

Similar to the preceding events in other towns and areas, residents and business owners were pleased to see the governor and first lady.

"He has done more for Maryland than anyone in the past," Joe Hilton said. "He's down with the people."

Katy Fleming, the executive director of the Mar-Va Theater, agreed.

"This is one of the poorest areas of the county, and coming downtown — coming to the Mar-Va is huge. We're privileged and honored," she said.

Amber Thompson, owner of Simply Sublime Massage and Bodywork, was impressed a public figure such as Hogan would even visit Pocomoke City, and called it "great for small town U.S.A."

Jennifer Procaccio, of the Enchanted Florist, was thankful for the governor's involvement in the issues facing smaller municipalities, and appreciative of the attention.

Pocomoke sets date for election do-over, May 31

By Brian Gilliland
Associate Editor

(April 28, 2016) Pocomoke City will begin advertising a new election this week in a contested race between incumbent George Tasker and challenger Sheila Nelson, five weeks in advance of the vote.

The new date was rumored to be May 31 as of last week, and was confirmed earlier this week.

Voting will run from 7 a.m. - 7 p.m., and will be held at the Pocomoke City branch of the Worcester County Public library. All registered voters in District 1 may participate. District 1 is located primarily on the eastern side of Route 13, and to the west of Route 113.

The term of the council member elected on May 31 has been shortened to coincide with the previous election's date of April 5. The winner will serve a 3-year term from that date.

The results of the previous election were contested because of an inconsistency in the results: 132 people were confirmed to have voted, yet only 127 votes were tallied.

City Manager and City Attorney Ernie Crofoot confirmed the same voting machines will not be used for the new election, and the town will return to the "tried and true" paper ballot method.

Berlin Fire Co. will get budget work session

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(April 28, 2016) Each year, during budget season, the town of Berlin holds separate workshops for the main part of budget, the general fund, and for the utilities portion of its fiscal year plan.

Now, it appears the Berlin Fire Company will also get a separate budget work session, Monday, May 2, at 6:30 p.m. in Town Hall.

Fire Company President David Fitzgerald, Chief Jim Corron and EMS Capt. Rona Schneck addressed the mayor and council on Monday, discussing reasons for an apparent increase in the annual town grant, while mostly shying away from specific dollar amounts.

Last year, Fitzgerald said 42 percent of calls to the fire company came from within town limits. Mandates from the National Fire Protection Association, and others, require costly upkeep and maintenance of equipment, including replacing pieces of apparatus every 10 years.

The fire company has a new ladder truck on order that costs $800,000, and still needs close to $500,000 to pay it off.

Station three, a new fire station, is also about $500,000 behind in funding. Located on Ocean Gateway near Stephen Decatur High School, Fitzgerald said the entire project would cost about $3.5 million.

“Our fire company is very, very reserved in what they want out there. We don’t want anything that we don’t need,” he said. “The consensus, so far, is just a basic station with several bays tall enough that we can work on our equipment.”

He said the new station could help reduce response time, and would serve an expanding Berlin that will soon include a major new apartment complex in that area.

On the EMS side, Fitzgerald said salary costs were escalating, and estimated they would be $1.4 million during the next fiscal year.

“This is a nationwide trend,” he said, adding that BFC had to restructure its pay scale in May. “We were losing people to Ocean Pines [and] Ocean City. We’re pleased to say, since we did that, we don’t feel that our employees are out shopping for pay, or benefits.”

Overall, Fitzgerald said the budget spreadsheet was “still fluid,” because the county commissioners also had yet to rule on the funding request.

Mayor Gee Williams said he still had questions, and suggested the fire company schedule a separate budget workshop.

“The numbers are getting significant, regardless of the size of the community,” he said. “We just think that, with this kind of money being requested that [a work session] would be the way to go.”

Also on Monday, the council unanimously approved a special permit for a fire company fundraiser, from 4-10 p.m. on May 14, at the firehouse on 214 North Main Street.

Tickets for the “Clam Bake and Pig Pickin” are $30, and include pork barbeque, clams and five beer tickets.

Trio of honors for Pocomoke High School, students

By Greg Ellison
Staff Writer

(April 28, 2016) Pocomoke High School had a moment in the sun at Tuesday’s County Commissioner meeting with a student, a sports team and a top administrator receiving honors for notable achievements.

First on the hit parade was Pocomoke High School senior Ethan Taylor, who just completed a stint as the Worcester County’s page to the 2016 Maryland General Assembly, which wrapped up this session on April 11.

Commissioner Vice President Merrill Lockfaw said Taylor’s service has brought pride to Pocomoke and Worcester County.

“I know you’re family is proud of you as well,” he said.

Reading from the commendation, Lockfaw noted the dedication to academic excellence and leadership potential exhibited by Taylor.

“You’re the future for us and we need more like you,” he said.

For his part, Taylor, blushing from the attention, expressed gratitude for the honor and quickly allowed the spotlight to shift to his peers.

“It was a great learning experience that I will take with me for the rest of my life,” he said.

Next up was the Pocomoke High School varsity boy’s basketball team, which last month won the 2016 Maryland Class 1A Basketball Championship.

On March 12, the Pocomoke Warriors defeated the Lake Clifton Lakers 64-56 in the 1A State Title game.

Coach Derrick Fooks, surrounded by his championship team, said his team deserved the recognition.

“This is a special group here,” he said. “We won the triple crown this year. That’s the Bayside Championship, regional and the state championship.”

On Feb. 24, the Warriors defeated Cambridge-South Dorchester 61-47 to win the Bayside title.

“It’s the first time we’ve won the Bayside since 2002,” he said.

Following that victory, the Pocomoke Warriors handily defeated Crisfield 71-43 on Feb. 29 to win the 1A Sectional Semi-Final. Next, the boys rolled over Washington High School (Princess Anne) 80-58 to capture the 1A Sectional Final on March 2.

Kent County also had no luck trying to stop the Warriors high-powered offense, losing the 1A Regional Final 80-62 on March 4.

To qualify for the state final, the Warriors won a playoff game against Clear Spring 86-65 on March 11.

“Being a long season from November to March, these student athletes stuck with their books and did everything that it took and worked very hard,” he said. “So we should be extremely proud of these young men for enduring those long months and coming out and winning the state title.”

Lockfaw said the entire county of Worcester could take pride in the teams’ accomplishments.

emplified the title warriors,” he said.

Also in attendance was Pocomoke City Council member Diane Downing who expressed her amazement at the recent state title.

“I’m a Warrior and I always will be,” she said. “I remember playing basketball. We were state champions back then.”

The final honor, for Pocomoke High School Principal Annette Wallace, was kept on a need-to-know basis until the meeting.

Now in her fourth year as at the helm of Pocomoke High School, Wallace was recently named the 2016 Maryland High School Principal of the Year by the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Apparently, surprising Wallace has become a trend, as her initial notification came by way of a secretly planned reception on March 21 in the high school library.

Lockfaw said Wallace’s statewide recognition as an exemplary administrator is well deserved.

“She inspires students of all ages, abilities and backgrounds to believe in themselves and to strive for excellence in all areas of their lives,” he said.

Exhibiting a humble nature, Wallace deflected the accolades.

“This award isn’t really about me, it’s about my amazing leadership team, my teachers and my wonderful students,” she said.

There could be further honors directed towards Wallace. Last Friday at the Maryland Association of Secondary School Principals annual banquet she was selected as Maryland’s representative in the NASSP National Principal of the Year competition to be held this fall.

“I really am the lucky one to just get to be their principal everyday and to get to give back to Worcester County,” she said.

‘Salad table’ demonstration to highlight Pocomoke garden

Nursery will grow lettuce for Discover Center; park to be renamed Corner Sanctuary

By Josh Davis

(April 28, 2016) Maryland 4-H Youth Development, a University of Maryland Extension program, will present a salad table demonstration at the Pocomoke Downtown Community Garden on Thursday, May 5.

The free program, scheduled from 5-6:30 p.m., will show participants how to create an elevated garden that can extend the growing season, as well as prevent interference from pesky vegetable pillagers, like rabbits and groundhogs.

Lettuce produced by the table, which will be constructed and planted during the demonstration, will then go to the Delmarva Discovery Center, just down the street, and feed some of its resident animals.

The event also will double as an awareness drive for the community garden, which is supported by the City of Pocomoke and numerous volunteer efforts.

Started in 2012, the garden provides fresh produce for the Samaritan Shelter, as well as other local food banks. Soon, however, the garden will be expanded and rebranded as the “Corner Sanctuary.”

“We’re calling it that, because we’re turning it into a healing garden,” organizer Neelam Strom said. “Besides producing vegetables, we want to create a sanctuary where disabled and elderly can come and get the benefits of the different kinds of therapy – we’re trying to do color therapy, we’re trying to do aroma therapy, so we’re having different sections of the garden that will cater to that group of people.”

Essentially, Strom said, the development will serve to transform an “empty lot into a nice park.”

Grants and donations have helped to fund the project, although Strom said volunteers mostly have driven the garden’s operations. Students from Pocomoke Middle School, Pocomoke High School and Worcester Technical High School in Newark also contributed to the garden, earning service hours.

“The community garden is here for the community, and it tries to bring the community and the people of Pocomoke together,” Strom said.

Pocomoke Downtown Community Garden is at the corner of Clarke Avenue and Willow Street in downtown Pocomoke City. Donations to the garden and the Corner sanctuary are tax deductible.

Search committee offers assistance

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(April 28, 2016) The Ocean Pines Search Committee has a message for anyone considering a run for the association's board of directors: we're here to help.

Last Tuesday evening, the committee held an informational meeting in the community center last Thursday evening with the hope that several homeowners might be enticed to file before the May 10 deadline.

In the audience were Bill Wentworth and Frank Danowski from the elections committee, along with current directors Pat Renaud, Cheryl Jacobs, Tom Herrick and Jack Collins.

Collins is up for reelection, and could run again, but no others at the meeting were apparently potential candidates.

"We happen to have a real, big, heavy turnout from our community. I have pages of all kinds of really insightful things to say," Search Committee Chair Martin Baer deadpanned. "Everybody presently [here] is either on the election committee, the search committee, the press or the current board."

Larry Perrone and Ray Unger declared their candidacies for the board earlier this year. Baer said he could not disclose the names of any other candidates who have filed until they have been properly vetted, although he hinted no others had filled out paperwork.

He said the search committee had been working on numerous fronts to find new candidates, placing road signs, sending press releases, and mailing letters to official Ocean Pines Association advisory committees, as well as to several "prominent" clubs in the community.

"Our effort is really to get the community aware and to participate," Baer said. "Once they submit applications, we, the search committee, simply give them over the secretary of the board (Tom Herrick). Between the secretary of the board and the OPA administration, they vet those applications."

That includes making sure candidates are homeowners, in good standing, without unpaid dues. Applications are then turned over the elections committee.

Jacobs, elected last year, said she was recruited to run by the committee, based on a recommendation by a homeowner in Ocean Pines. She asked if the committee had undergone similar efforts this year.

"I have received a number of individual names, and I've called those people and expressed to them that they have been strongly recommended," Baer said. "We can certainly provide the application and any assistance that's necessary."

Baer said that included helping a candidate write summary statements about his or her political views, and going as far to arrange a test audience to help prepare for various public speaking engagements.

He added that members of the current board would also be happy to help.

"I would urge our community, please consider getting involved," Jacobs said, adding that the search committee, and the letter of recommendation, convinced her to run last year.

"I know the [search committee] meeting that I went to, I was, I think, the only person there. They threatened to lock the door and not let me out until I put an application in," Jacobs said, with a laugh.

This year, three board seats are up for election. Tom Terry has served two consecutive three-year terms and cannot run again because of term limits. Seats currently held by Collins and Bill Cordwell are also on the line.

Baer speculated that Cordwell would not run, based on conversations he had with the director. Collins said he has not decided whether he would run again.

According to Baer, Ocean Pines by-laws require at least two more candidates than vacancies in order for an election to be held. If at least five people have not filed for office by the May 10 deadline, he said the search committee could file for an extension.

“We don’t have a whole lot of time,” Committee member Gary Miller said. “If any of you do have suggestions, please let us know. May 10 is right around the corner.”

“We are trying to find ways to reach out to the community. If anybody has any other ideas of things we can do, please share with any of us [on the committee]. We would only be too glad to pursue it,” Baer said. “It’s so very important to have representation to our community with regards to our board candidates.

“People are very hesitant about running,” Baer continued. “The whole idea of writing about their views that are published in the paper – people aren’t comfortable with that. People aren’t necessarily comfortable with talking to a group of individuals. That’s why I, and other members of the search committee, try to assure individuals we’ll work with them ... we’ll be only too glad.”

About 15 minutes into the meeting, Collins noted that there was a quorum of directors present. Jacobs volunteered to leave.

A candidate forum is scheduled for June 22. Ballots will be mailed July 7 and counted on Aug. 12. On Aug. 13, the association will hold its annual meeting and announced the winners of the election.

The Ocean Pines Search Committee was also scheduled to meet April 27, after press time.

(April 28, 2016) With just three of 12 Ocean Pines advisory committees sending representatives to the twice-yearly meeting of the executive council, the business portion of the session did not last long, roughly 20 minutes.

Public comments, however, doubled that runtime and focused on communication issues between the board of directors and its advisory groups.

Apparently there was some confusion about the meeting time and date, which had been on the board calendar for at least a week. The agenda, however, was only published on the day of the session.

Executive council meetings are meant to provide updates from each

Assateague Alliance hosts 'Archaeology' program, April 30

(April 28, 2016) Assateague Island Alliance (AIA), the Friends Group of Assateague Island National Seashore (ASIS), presents "Archaeology and History of Assateague and Sinepuxent Neck," Saturday April 30 at 11 a.m.

Meet for coffee and refreshments at 10:30 a.m. prior to the program.

Discover the rich history of these areas through the perspective of Aaron Levinthal, Maryland Environmental Service archaeologist and Rackliffe Trust Board member. Levinthal will present a slideshow and talk, highlighting some of the history of Assateague Island and Sinepuxent Neck that has been uncovered through his work in the area followed by a free walking tour of the Rackliffe House and grounds.

During the tour he will illustrate the results of the several archaeological investigations that have occurred in the vicinity.

This program will meet at the Assateague Island Visitor Center located at 11800 Marsh View Lane, Berlin, Maryland 21811.

All funds raised by AIA are for the direct benefit of Assateague Island National Seashore. Donations are tax-deductible.

committee to the president of the board. With Pat Renaud unavailable, Board Vice President Cheryl Jacobs ran the executive council and gave a short summary of recent work done by the communications committee, to which she is the board liaison.

Also attending were Director Tom Terry, the chairpersons of the racquet sports and recreation and parks committees, and Gary Miller from the clubs committee.

Racquet Sports Chair John McNult said his committee was almost exclusively focused on the Manklin Meadows improvements.

Timothy McMullen, chair of the recreation and parks group, spoke about the need for bike trails and a new gym floor in the community center, and gave an overview of summer camp offerings. He also said the committee "strongly" supported the vote to build new restrooms at White Horse Park, approved last month.

Miller said things were slowly improving at the association's yacht club, and gave an overview of committee requests that were – and were not – included in the fiscal year 2017 budget. The country club, he added, could use a good "deep cleaning."

Speaking on behalf of communications, Jacobs said Ocean Pines would hold a workshop on June 2. She also said informative committee orientation meetings were in the "draft stage," she said.

Joe Reynolds, a resident and creator of the Ocean Pines Forum, kicked off public comments by suggesting committee chairs attend the monthly board of directors meetings.

"It's different attending a meeting than it is watching it on video," he said. "When you want to get something done [don't] just send an email or a letter ... put together a package of some kind, in writing, specifically what you want to see happen. And you ask the president of the board, and he will give you the opportunity, no question, that you want to make a presentation at a public board meeting."

McNult said the working relationship between the various committees and the board was nonexistent.

"There is room for us to improve how the advisory boards work with the entire board of directors," he said. "I'm not sure I agree with doing it during a public board of directors meeting, as Joe suggested."

Relationship between board, cmtes., 'pretty much broke'

Instead, McNult said the board could hold quarterly meetings with the committees so, "the entire board of directors knows, first hand, what's going on with that particular advisory board."

"We need to change or improve the relationship between the advisory committees and the board of directors, which, I think is right now, today, is pretty much broke. I don't think it's getting the job done," he said.

McNult said his group has a better working relationship with General Manager Bob Thompson than it does with the board.

"We work with Bob Thompson and we work with his staff ... much more frequently than we ever worked with the board of directors. That's how we get things done," he said. "If we didn't do that, we wouldn't get anything done."

"Even though it's not the way the advisory is supposed to function, it is the de facto way we function," he added. "We ought to either make that the norm, or find a way to better work with the board of directors."

From his perspective, McMullen said advisory boards have a good relationship with the board, including with Jacobs, who also liaises with that committee.

Miller, however, said he never heard anything back from the board after the clubs committee turned in its annual report last year. He asked if the board reviewed those reports. Jacobs, who is in the first year of her first term as a director, said she could not answer, but is working to address some of the apparent issues.

"One of the things that the communications committee is working on is trying to do a better job of making the committees understand what they can and how to communicate better about their projects with the board," she said. "Sometimes the chairpersons don't really understand exactly what their function is."

Terry said it was by design that committees interacted directly with the various department heads in Ocean Pines, rather than the board itself. Many of those department heads attend advisory meetings.

"Having a direct connection to the staff person who is in charge of that part of Ocean Pines I think is something we need to maintain, and I think is very valuable," he said.

Terry said the committees used to give quarterly or monthly reports to the board of its activities, and encouraged the groups to get back to that.

"That is very helpful," he said. "When something critical is happening, you get on the [meeting] agenda – much to the chagrin of some – you get in there and make a presentation directly to the board on an issue you're faced with, and your liaison's got to be the person who sets that up."

John O'Connor, from the budget and finance committee, was a late arrival to the meeting. He said had only just heard the executive council was occurring, and could not speak on behalf of the others in the committee.

Still, he wondered why more committee members and chairs were not present.

"I think it's important that you have this kind of meeting," he said. "I don't know why all the committee chairmen aren't here. There should have been enough notice for all of them, and they should have either scheduled or had someone else come and participate in it ... so that you could get all together at one time."

"My concern right now is that table is not full of a lot of people, and it should be full," he said.

Pines cmte. still holding out hope for Manklin

Racquet Sports chair says full build of sports complex could still happen - or not

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(April 28, 2016) John McNult, chairman of the Ocean Pines Association Racquet Sports Committee, said he and others on that advisory board have worked hard to bring several planned improvements to the Manklin Meadows Racquet Sports Complex to light.

"We got the point where it went out for an RFP [request for proposals] and we got one response, which, in itself, makes the whole process invalid," he said, following an executive council meeting in Ocean Pines last Thursday. "It's null and void. It shouldn't have even been discussed."

That a roughly $750,000 bid came in for a project estimated to cost $250,000 was, however, discussed at length during several board of directors meetings.

In November 2014, the board voted 5-2 to approve a plan for Manklin, which included four new platform tennis courts, eight new pickleball courts, a community garden, a reorientation and rebuilding of the existing playground, and improvements to the parking lot – all at an estimated cost of $250,000.

General Manager Bob Thompson blamed stormwater and peripheral costs with the higher-than-expected – and only – bid. Most recently, in March, the directors voted 4-3 to approve an expansion of the parking lot at Manklin, repairing and relocated the existing playground, and installing fencing. The price tag was "not to exceed" $150,000.

As a stopgap, the board also directed Thompson to look into converting two of the 12 existing tennis courts at Manklin into pickleball courts, as well as building two new platform tennis courts, potentially utilizing used materials.

McNult said his committee still supports the original plan for the complex, adding, "that's still our main objective."

"The committee feels ... that plan can be implemented in a cost-effective manner," McNult said. "That one RFP we got back was just null and void. It was not a valid response."

He said the tennis community was not happy with a compromise that would, potentially, take two of their hard courts away.

"We would live with it if we had no other choice," he said. "One of the people I talked to about it, who has been an active tennis member for more than 20 years, said it's like, 'do you want your foot chopped off or your head?' You can live without your foot, but not your head, so we'll take the foot.

"We really would like to investigate getting the pickleball courts as they were discussed and planned," McNult continued. "We went through a lot of trouble to get to that point. It wasn't just a whim of someone saying, 'let's stick them up in the playground.'"

McNult said it's possible that could still happen, because the directors approved the first step of moving the playground. Whether the rest of the project – the actual racquet sports courts – could come to fruition is anyone's guess.

"We feel like it could be done in a cost-effective manner, much closer to the budgeted numbers that we all had [in 2014]," McNult said. "We don't want to end that quest. It may be ended for us, but that's the way it goes."

Dualization will be boon

Of all the economic development efforts being directed to mid- and lower Worcester County, nothing will be of greater benefit than the completion of Route 113's expansion to a four-lane highway.

To be sure, making the county's deadliest highway safer has always been the goal, and Gov. Larry Hogan's announcement last Friday that funding has been approved for the final phase of the project especially resonated with people such as Bob Hulbard, who led the decades-long campaign to do just that.

But there are other benefits of having a four-lane connection between the coast to Snow Hill and down to Pocomoke. One of them is that it eliminates the fear factor that caused motorists from the northern end of the county to avoid traveling south on Route 113 unless it was necessary.

Secondly, the 23-mile drive from Ocean City to Snow Hill will no longer involve the frequent frustration of being caught behind a slow-moving vehicle and having an extra 10 minutes added to the travel time.

The completion of the highway project also will make for an easy commute for northern Worcester County workers and business people looking for more housing options beyond what the visitor-driven real estate market offers.

In addition, Snow Hill's effort to reinvigorate itself after the fashion of Berlin is dependent on an increased flow of visitors, customers and residents, and nothing will encourage this to happen more than a hassle-free way of getting there.

While the project always has been about saving lives, this creation of a freer-flowing lifeline to more populous areas will bring other positive changes as well.

Delmar 12 Berlin Hurricanes 3

In facing what may be the toughest team in local Little League softball, the Hurricanes went down on a beautiful Tuesday evening, by a score of 12-3. Delmar's pitcher gave up one hit and struck out nine. For the Hurricanes, Abby Wesche struck out seven in a losing effort. Amaya Dischinger, Gianna Cauble and Rachel Perez drove in runs for the Hurricanes, and Zoe Rayne scored two runs.

Razorbacks 6 Bulldogs 6

After a seesaw battle back and forth, the Razorbacks and Bulldogs ended their game in a 6-6 tie. The Bulldogs struck first, scoring during the top of the first inning, but Razorbacks immediately answered, putting three runs on the scoreboard during the bottom of the inning, capped by an RBI triple by Nadia Bullock. The Bulldogs bounced back in the top of the second, scoring two more runs, but again the Razorbacks fought back, adding another run to grab a 4-3 lead. Morgan Sullivan had an RBI. The Bulldogs scored on a passed ball in the third inning, tying the game at 4, before Kiara Taylor again put the Razorbacks up, 6-4, with an RBI double in the bottom frame.

In the fourth, the Bulldogs scored two more runs, knotting the game at 6-6. During the bottom of that inning, the Razorbacks stranded two runners, and the game ended in a tie.

Intermediate Baseball

Mudcats 11 Lugnuts 0

The Berlin Mudcats Intermediate Baseball club won on Monday Night versus the Berlin Lugnuts, 11-0. Hunter Wolf was masterful, pitching a one-hitter with 11 strikeouts.

Offensively, Emmanuel Aroh, Houston Phillips and Hunter Selzer each had two hits, and Phillips also had three RBIs. Defensively, Deklan Mullaney flashed the leather with an outstanding play at second base.

Berlin Lugnuts 7

East Wicomico 3

The Berlin Lugnuts beat the East Wicomico team 7-3 in six innings of play on Wednesday, at East Wicomico. Evan Kinsey received the win, pitching four innings and allowing just two runs. Rafe Parsons pitched the final two innings, allowing one run. Evan Kinsey hit a bases-loaded triple in the second inning, scoring Parsons, Zack Tronosky and Nick Franklin.

Major League Baseball

Tigers 10 Blue Jays 5

Tigers pitchers Zach Powers and Evan Truitt controlled the game with 13 strikeouts, allowing five runs on four hits against the Blue Jays, Tuesday night. Tigers bats generated 10 runs on multiple hits by Ryan McLaughlin, Truitt, Powers and Trevor Short. The Blue Jays generated five runs on four hits, by Emanuel Aroh, Jonathan Mitchell and Sam Woodley.

Nationals 10 Royals 1

An ace performance by Kellen Catrino lifted the Nationals to a 10-1 victory. See BERLIN LITTLE Page 29

AGH, Cricket Ctr. make budget plea

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor
(April 28, 2016) Two more Berlin area nonprofits sought inclusion in town government's FY 17 budget Monday night by making presentations to the mayor and council.

Michael Franklin, president of Atlantic General Hospital, addressed the council first and reiterated the points he had made in a January presentation, when he talked about the hospital's improved operating margins, increased productivity and positive effect on the community.

Franklin said AGH was moving towards a system of coordinated care, something it had been building to for years. He also discussed better ways of "consuming" health care.

"What's driving that is the cost of health care," he said. "There is a lot of utilization of health care services that's unnecessary ... How do we drive these things out of the health care system?"

Readmissions to the hospital, which could have been prevented, were a large part of that unnecessary utilization. AGH works closely with the Berlin Nursing and Rehab Center, and Franklin said new telemedicine programs, launched last summer, have helped reduced readmissions there from 17 to eight percent.

State mandates called for reducing readmission to the acute care portion of the hospital to 53 percent. In six months, AGH was able to cut that number to just 15 percent.

The hospital is also working on preventative programs, including a health literacy initiative in grades one through five in local schools. Eventually, Franklin said, he would like to see that in place all the way through eighth grade.

A 2020 master facilities plan produced by AGH includes a "one stop" health care center for women, and expanded surgical services and emergency care.

Franklin said the hospital employed more than 850 people, with a payroll of more than $46 million, "bringing a rich, diverse medical community into the region, as well as creating a good economic engine."

Wendy Myers, program director at the Cricket Center, also addressed the council.

She said the nonprofit is one of only two accredited child advocacy centers on the Eastern Shore, and it addresses a crucial part of the population.

"National statistics are, before children turn 18 years old, one in five boys experience some form of child sexual abuse, and one in three girls experience some form of child sexual abuse," Myers said. "It is a crime of secrecy, so we believe part of our mission is to go out into the community and talk about abuse."

At the center, children who have been victims of sexual abuse can receive medical exams and trauma-based therapy, and benefit from a "multidisciplinary" investigation team, in one place, in a child-friendly environment.

During the last fiscal year, Cricket Center reviewed 81 cases, put in 495 "trauma hours" with victims, and identified 34 sex offenders.

It also helped produce, through partnerships with local police, 18 arrests in relation to producing or distributing child pornography.

All of the services at the Cricket Center are free to the victims and their families. The center is supported by grants and donations.

Williams said he hoped the facilities at the Cricket Center, which includes a specialized space where police and trauma counselors can interview and videotape victim testimony, would help keep children from having to face their abusers in court.

Under the current legal system in Maryland, defendants have the right to face their accusers in court – a law that extends to children.

"If a county has the facilities that qualify with the expertise, the funding and the technical capabilities you all [have], then the child should not have to be required to go to court," Williams said. "This is a good place, maybe, to begin that light."

Ocean Pines will host spring biking and skating event

Children ages 8 and older encouraged to participate

(April 28, 2016) Children ages 8 and older and their parents are encouraged to grab their bikes, skateboards or walking shoes and head to the Ocean Pines Recreation and Parks Department's second annual Spring Bicycle Expo, Skate Demo & Pedestrian Info Event Day on Sunday, May 1 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at White Horse Park in Ocean Pines.

This free event is being presented in conjunction with National Bike Month and will offer information and activities that celebrate moving around outside.

Bicycle League of America-certified bicycle instructor Cindy Morris will offer information about bicycle laws and safety. Participants may also bring a bicycle helmet or purchase a new one at the event and decorate it with a variety of craft supplies.

Other event highlights include demonstrations by local skaters, music, prizes, information booths, vendors and merchandise for sale.

Representatives from the Eastern Shore International Mountain Biking Association, Berlin Bike-Skate Unite, West Ocean City Pedal & Pedestrian Committee and Y Bicycle will be on hand to share information about their missions, volunteer opportunities and membership.

Event participants are welcome to bring bikes and skateboards to ride during the event. Parental supervision is required.

For more information, call the Ocean Pines Recreation and Parks Department at 410-641-7052. Additional recreational programs, including an online version of the Ocean Pines Activity Guide, are available at OceanPines.org.

Berlin Briefs

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor
(April 28, 2016) The Berlin mayor and Town Council discussed the following items during a public meeting at town hall on Monday:

Cannery update

Electric Utilities Director Tim Lawrence said all lots in Cannery Village, save four, now had electricity. Planning Director Dave Engelhart said certificates of occupancy had been issued for many of the homes at Cannery, and that he expected the remaining 23 to be issued during the next few weeks.

Parks meeting postponed

The Parks Commission meeting, originally scheduled for Tuesday, May 3, has been postponed for one week. The new meeting will run on Tuesday, May 10 at 5:30 p.m., at town hall.

Leash laws

Resident Pam Hay asked the council to reexamine its leash laws. Specifically, she said dog owners have been taking their pets for walks in the downtown area, unrestrained.

Feasting on dinner of tasty sirloin filets

(Reprinted from March 6, 2014 issue)

I love my children so much that I decided to call a snow day on our youngest daughter's 13th birthday.

By Paul Suplee,
CEC PCIII

Not only was it a great snow day, but it was in March. I'll do what I can to make my kids happy. I'm sure I'll have to pay the big guy back some day for the snow-storm, but by any means possible...

Unfortunately, her birthday also coincided with our annual 'tax day', the day on which we knock out a good amount of the dreaded deed of paying the Tax Man. This year, extenuating circumstances forced us to work things out on Gabbie's birthday, but it was still a day off and that's pretty amazing, I'd say.

The next day, however, it was time to get back to business and end the day with what we believe could have very well been the first meal of 2014 at our own dining room table. It is hard to believe that we are in March already, and shame on us for stepping away from our evening ritual of meeting, eating, sharing, laughing and enjoying each other's company.

There is little else that can bring the joy of the family table and for that I am eternally grateful. While we don't have the brood that sat around the table of my childhood, it is still a handful. In keeping with tradition, steak and crab legs were on the menu; one of my daughter's favorite birthday meals.

Combing the stores for tenderloin (filet mignon) I was shocked to find that the stores that had any only had that of questionable integrity so I opted for a steak that I had never worked with before; the sirloin filet. I have cooked the chuck tender with great aplomb and have thrown out other cuts that the beef board has tried to pass off as tender and delicious. If you're going to try something new, you might as well do it on an incredibly important day, right?

Coming in at a mere third of the price of beef tenderloin, they had all of the flavor of the sirloin cut with just a touch extra bite as compared to a tenderloin; I can give that up in return for the added taste. I love that butchers are working on new cuts; or maybe I have just never seen this before and I am happy about learning something new. Who knows? Either way, it's a great, value-added piece of meat.

Once the flames were doused, the dust settled and the smoke rendered its way out of the house, we sat back with bellies full and heads bursting with new memories as we welcomed our youngest daughter into her teen years; and may God have mercy on our souls.

We usher in a new era in 2014 in which we sit together to eat; and not in a minivan or in front of a television. Now that we have had enough snow, I have decided that it is now time for spring to commence. There will be no more snow this season.

Steak and Stuff

serves 4
4 to 5 ounce sirloin filets
Blackening seasoning, as needed
Clarified butter, as needed
2 lb. snow crab legs, steamed
Roasted red potatoes (recipe follows)
8 ounce each asparagus and broccoli, blanched
2 cups blender hollandaise sauce (recipe follows)
sautéed mushrooms

• Heat a grill or in my case a heavy duty grill-pan until smoking hot

• Season steaks and coat with some clarified butter

• Grill on both sides until done to the temperature of your liking and keep warm until service

• Steaming snow crab legs is as easy as it sounds. Just steam them until they are thawed unless the store was kind enough to thaw them for you

• Serve everything with a side of drawn butter and some Hollandaise Sauce to top it off

Roasted Red Potatoes

1 lb. red potatoes, quartered
1/4 cups olive oil
salt and pepper as needed
2 garlic cloves, minced
drizzle of butter

• Blanch the potatoes in salted water until they are tender

• Strain and dry for a few minutes by allowing the steam to dissipate

• Toss in the salt, pepper and garlic and roast until golden

• Drizzle with butter and keep warm until service

Blender Hollandaise

makes about 2 cups
2 eggs

1 tsp. lemon juice
2 tsp. white wine
1/2 tsp. chicken base
1 cup clarified butter

• The safest way to pasteurize eggs is to buy pasteurized eggs. However, if you want to try it at home, you can greatly reduce the amount of potential pathogens by performing the following steps

• Place the eggs in cold water and heat to 142F. Once it hits this temperature, let it go for three minutes and then cool the eggs. This is about as close to pasteurized as you're going to get without professional equipment, but if you eat raw oysters and sushi, you're probably in good enough shape to eat these eggs. If you're still afraid, just buy Egg Beaters!

• Place the eggs, wine, lemon juice and chicken base in a blender

• Turn on and slowly drizzle the butter until the vortex in the middle stops spinning. That's your sign that it's done

• Season and serve

Farmer's market opens for season next week

Snow Hill municipal lot to get back down to business, beginning Thursday, May 5

By Brian Gilliland
Associate Editor

(April 28, 2016) There might be farmer's markets with a wider array of vendors, or some that draw hundreds of buyers from surrounding areas, but the Snow Hill market makes a good argument for being the most relaxed. "Vendors aren't charged to set up and registration takes place on site on the day of the market, but I don't know who is going to show up and who isn't," Ann Gibb, town grant writer and self-styled "market master," said. Registration used to be handled by mail, she said, but that just led to lost forms and more trouble than anyone was willing to deal with. Gibb said all a vendor need do is call her at Town Hall beforehand, and she'll bring the form to the site herself. The market opens Thursday, May 5, in the municipal parking lot between Market and Green streets in downtown Snow Hill from noon to 5 p.m. and will be held each Thursday thereafter until the end of September. "We just want to ensure the vendors clean up after themselves," she said. At the same time, there are rules in place for who can set up shop in the lot. "We are an owner-produced market. We're not organic or natural certified, but we do want people to make what they sell. We're trying to avoid people going to a wholesaler, picking up a few crates of tomatoes from Florida and selling them at our market," Gibb said.

But that doesn't limit the market to produce only. "There is a baker we've had, and the Serenity Shoppe sells lotions and creams — those are allowed. We've had crafts. We're required to have at least one vendor who takes Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program funds, but we have two," she said. "We welcome organic certified produce, but we don't require it." There has been some interest from an organic farmer in Berlin and a seafood vendor, but Gibb said the proof will be in the pudding. "People tell us they're coming and not show, meanwhile others don't tell us and come," she said. During the spring, Gibb said the focus would likely be on bedding plants. May brings strawberries, peas and onions.

"We get such wonderful berries," she said. When summer hits, the produce will shift to tomatoes, cucumbers and corn. Come fall, gourds will be in season, as will greens. The market will be open until Sept. 29. "I'm not sure about eggs. Once you get into dairy, it can get pretty complicated, so it can't be promised," Gibb said. A more carefully curated market might draw more interest, Gibb said, but interest is expanding and opportunities are increasing. "I can't say it's the most popular market in the world, but it is growing. As the farm-to-table movement grows, so does our opportunity with this farmer's market," she said. Gibb can be reached at Town Hall at 410-632-2080.
