High Heel Race, Jazz and Blues, bring big crowds

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) Despite the intrusion of a little rain Berlin drew big crowds with two big events last weekend, raising money for a local charity and keeping the momentum from last year's 'Coolest Small Town' nod alive.

On Friday evening the streets were bathed in pink, as stiletto-tipped racers faced off in the third annual High Heel Race, benefiting the Worcester County Chapter of Women Supporting Women.

Berlin Mayor Gee Williams, wearing his trademark top hat, was unfazed by Pocomoke Mayor Bruce Morrison's bright yellow tutu and won their head-to-head showdown in the mayor's race.

Gene Spout won the men's race, while Tabita Enciu took the women's cup for the third consecutive year.

"It was great to see so many gals and guys standing tall in high heels to participate in this year's race to fight breast cancer," Williams said. "The turnout of

GM Thompson tapped to take over Sandpiper talks

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) Ocean Pines Association General Manager Bob Thompson will be the primary negotiator in an attempt to restart the stalled talks with Sandpiper Energy, the OPA Board of Directors decided last Wednesday.

According to several sources on the board, the decision was made following a closed session discussion.

Sandpiper, which converted existing propane lines in Berlin and West Ocean City to natural gas last year, hopes to do the same thing in Ocean Pines. The community, however, is believed to have a list of demands that include a new franchise agreement, repayment of legal fees and a turnover agreement.

"Bob Thompson will be back in the lead and can hopefully get things moving with Sandpiper," a source said. "We haven't heard from Sandpiper in six months, so it's time for us to reach out to them."

Thompson would inform the board on any significant progress via email, according to sources. The general manager would also provide an update during a closed session later this month, with a tentative deadline for an agreement set for July.

Chesapeake Utilities Vice President Jim Moore, who oversees Sandpiper, said the company is happy to work with whomever the board chooses to delegate.

"Bob is certainly a capable representative and we've enjoyed working with him in the past," he said last week. "We continue to be optimistic that we will ultimately resolve all of our differences and an agreement will be reached. Based on the ongoing nature of the negotiations, we do not have any further comment at this time."

The board would be required to approve any contract, if negotiations go that far.

Sandpiper and the Ocean Pines Association have not had formal communications since Dec. 16.

spectators brought both enthusiasm and fun to the entire event.”

On the following day vendors, two beer gardens and a stage closed off the streets in Downtown Berlin for the annual Jazz and Blues bash.

Turnout was high early before a cloud-burst quickly sent the event indoors to the Globe, where the Shrapnels played to a large crowd, and at Burley Oak Brewing Co., where the Larks closed off the evening.

Economic and Community Development Director Ivy Wells said the impact from both events was clearly felt in local shops.

Berlin Chamber of Commerce President Natalee DeHart praised the turnout and thanked Joe Wilson of Merrill Lynch, the headline sponsor of the Jazz and Blues festival, adding that Wilson and his family moved indoors with the crowd to watch the Shrapnels.

Williams said it was “only about the third time in the past decade” that rain interrupted an event in Berlin.

“As a community we are blessed to have good weather so regularly for our local festivals and fundraisers,” he said.

Pines to host candidate draw

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) Ocean Pines will hold a candidate draw in the OPA Board Room at 239 Ocean Parkway at 3 p.m. on Thursday.

The seven candidates, vying for two spots on the board, will draw for position on the ballot and seating at the June 24 Candidate’s Forum.

This year’s candidates are newcomers Thomas Herrick, Cheryl Jacobs and Carol Ludwig, former board members Terri Mohr, Ray Unger and Bill Zawacki, and Slobodan Trendic, who ran, but dropped out, during last year’s race.

The two candidates receiving the highest numbers of votes will be elected for three-year terms.

Berlin approves $17.2M budget for fiscal year 2016

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) The Berlin Council unanimously approved the fiscal year 2016 budget at its Monday night meeting. The $17.2 million budget represented a 12 percent increase over the previous year's spending package. Despite the rise, Berlin Mayor Gee Williams said property taxes would hold steady, and residents would not face increases in stormwater, wastewater or utility fees. The electric fund decreased by three percent under the new budget, while water, sewer and stormwater funds all rose. Stormwater spending, up 69 percent, was largely tied to grants from the Department of Natural Resources, Housing and Urban Development and FEMA. "I believe the overall goal of the fiscal '16 proposed town budget enables the town of Berlin to maintain a financially stable [budget] ... with continued incremental improvements in municipal services, while allowing the town to continue to invest in infrastructure and property to provide permanent benefits to the community in the future," Williams said. A public hearing was opened and closed without comment and Councilmember Troy Purnell made the formal motion to approve the budget.

Council members weigh in on Bay Club annexation

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) A week after word leaked that an annexation proposal involving the Bay Club was pitched to the Berlin mayor and council during a closed session, several members of the council are coming out with varying stances. The proposal involves turning all or a portion of the golf course into a development of 300 luxury homes. According to Berlin Mayor Gee Williams, Hugh Cropper, an attorney representing the Carl M. Freeman Companies, floated the idea and made the presentation to town officials. Last week, the Gazette reported on comments from Councilmember Thom Gulyas, who opposed the idea because of what he saw as a lack of information. Gulyas also objected to the potential burden on the town's infrastructure, as well as the fact that the property is nearly two miles outside of current town limits. Councilmember Lisa Hall echoed Gulyas' statements this week and said the public had already expressed its opinion when it rejected the matter during the strategic planning sessions held earlier this year. "The county had this property in their comprehensive plan," Hall said. "At one of the comp meetings, this property was discussed in great detail: how far do we want Berlin to go up Liberty Town Road, and it was discussed about the Bay Club and what if they stopped wanting to be a big golf course? What if they want to build houses out there? Do we want to annex that? And we decided, no, we wanted to greenbelt (leave it undeveloped). Hall said Seahawk Road, recently annexed for a new townhome complex, and was also in the greenbelt. "All this property [the mayor] is trying to shove in Berlin is in the county comp plan, not Berlin," Hall said. "When I moved into Berlin 22 years ago, I think there was 2,400-2,600 people here. Now, 20 years later ... we've doubled our size in 10 years and we have a lot of growing pains and we've made a lot of errors. "We've got [developer] Rinnier doing the apartments on Seahawk Road, we have the Cannery Village going on, we have the stormwater utility trying to fix all the stormwater issues, we've got the Tyson plant acquisition and what we're going to do with that, and [the mayor] keeps talking about building a new $2.5 million police station ... there's a lot going on," Hall said. Councilmember Troy Purnell, on the See PURNELL Page 6 other hand, said it was too early to make a firm decision on the proposal.

Purnell admits annexation in earliest stages

“I want to hear all the arguments for and against,” he said. “This is just basically a ‘Hey, what do you think?’ I don’t think anybody is pushing for it or against it. And I think the mayor really wants to hear from the townspeople before he really weighs on either.

“There’s not any type of, ‘Okay, we’ve already made a decision on this,’” Purnell said. “It all depends on what they are bringing to the table. If they’re bringing tax dollars and no maintenance [on behalf of the town], well, that would be a good thing. It’s the very early stages and I think we all need to find out some details on it and realistically find out what the taxpayers think.”

Williams weighs in on Bay Club

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) Berlin Mayor Gee Williamson on Monday sought to clear up what he said was a misrepresentation of his position on the Bay Club development proposal.

Citing a story published last week in the Bayside Gazette, Williams said it implied he was in favor of the project and its annexation by the town, when that was not the case.

“I think it is proper that I speak on my own behalf,” Williams said at the close of Monday night’s mayor and council session.

“At this very early stage of discussion, if I were to have a vote, which I do not, I do not know where I would stand on this idea,” he said. “I can say without reservation that I would be much more favorably inclined, if the Bay Club was immediately contiguous to the town’s existing western boundary, but it is not.”

The idea of the club’s possible redevelopment was given to the mayor and council in closed session. Theoretically, such a project would entail the construction of 300 luxury and the question at the time was whether town officials might be amenable to bringing that property into the municipal fold.

When word of the proposal became public, a debate ensued over the growth of the town, and whether continued growth should be viewed positively or negatively.

“For many citizens, the idea that Berlin has significant potential for growth, has not yet become a reality,” Williams said Monday. “But it is real and this is just one more idea that shows that legitimate, well-financed developers are taking a serious look at Berlin.”

He added, however, that town officials and the community in general should discuss the size, scale and direction of the town’s development.

“Such a community decision with such potential permanent impact as this, I maintain, must be based not just on opinion, but informed opinion. And to that end, in the new fiscal year, I will be proposing to the council, a process that involves interested citizens and a variety of unbiased experts from throughout the United States, to help all of us to understand our growth options and the consequences of those options on our town.”

Pines residents remember beloved wild goose, ‘Martha’

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) Residents gathered at the South Gate pond on Monday morning as Martha, a beloved snow goose, was laid to rest in Ocean Pines.

Believed to be more than 10 years old, the goose was struck by a car near Food Lion on Friday. Residents remember her as the friendly white waterfowl with the broken wing.

“She’s an icon,” Tammy Fultz said. “People have so many photos of her and she’s been on the cover of local newspapers. I didn’t know her name was Martha – we just called her ‘bad wing. I think everybody had little nicknames for her. She’s been here since I could remember.”

Fultz, who moved to Ocean Pines in 2006, heard about the incident online on Friday just after 3 p.m. Worried that children might see her, she drove her pickup truck to the scene and recovered Martha, storing her in a spare freezer until a proper burial could be arranged.

A few hours later she received a phone call from General Manager

Bob Thompson, giving her permission to bury Martha in an area just off the hiking path near the South Gate.

More than a dozen people attended the brief service on Monday.

Kristen Wood, who moved to the area in October with her husband, Rob, and their 21-month-old son Silas, said she was heartbroken when she heard the news.

“We’ve been here since Halloween night and we love walking around here,” she said. “We live just down in South Gate and we come down here all the time to watch the geese. Silas loved her.”

“Martha was special,” resident Donna Dillon said. “She was loved by many. She will not be forgotten, and now that she has a special place here it will be assured that she will be remembered. Rest in peace sweet Martha.”

Fultz said she hoped the incident would help change the perception of the local goose population.

“The more I thought about it the more I thought about what’s going on

Berlin Chamber hires new executive director, assistant

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) Looking to improve its services to membership, the Berlin Chamber of Commerce last week announced the addition of two new faces to run day-to-day operations.

Ocean Pines resident Larnet St. Amant, a sales representative at Bruder Hill, took over as the new executive director in May, while Salisbury native Morgan Coulson, a photographer and frequent contributor to the Bayside Gazette, took over last week as the new administrative assistant.

St. Amant said she heard about the job through Chamber President-Elect Donna Compher.

“Being here in Berlin, working in retail, I wanted to know what else I could do for the town,” she said. “I started coming to merchant meetings when I first started working at Bruder Hill and saw the excitement for the town and I wanted to know what else I could do to help. When this position became available, it was attractive to me. It’s exciting and there’s a lot that can be done.”

While Coulson, 26, grew up in Salisbury, she said she’s always been drawn to Berlin.

“Recently Berlin has had an artistic and cultural boom that’s really unrivaled in any area around here,” she said. “It’s really important for me, especially for people my age, to enhance as much of the artistic and sort of bohemian lifestyle as possible. We just got named ‘America’s Coolest

St. Amant, Coulson to ‘work together’ for Berlin Chamber

Small Town’ and we might as well feast on that and use it to our advantage.”

The chamber had previously operated with a board of directors and a single staffer. With St. Amant and Coulson working side-by-side, the organization hopes to be able to expand its offerings across the board.

“I think it will be great,” St. Amant said. “I feel like with my business contacts here in town and in Ocean City, and being here for 30 years, I feel very comfortable reaching out to businesses and being a part of that. I feel like Morgan is that, plus the young, hip tech-savvy person who’s going to keep me straight and keep us going in the right direction.”

“It can be overwhelming and it can be a lot to take in, but if you have two people doing it, we can check on each other, which will be great,” St. Amant added.

The chamber at this juncture is run by almost exclusively women, with Compher, Chamber President Natalee DeHart and Secretary Nicky Chavis. With St. Amant and Coulson, the chamber has two more women promoting local business.

“I think of Berlin as more of an artistic location, and women especially seem to have a more of that delicate touch when it comes to the finessence of having to sell around here,” Coulson said. “Boutiques are very popular, and I think you have to have that kind of ability to market to a certain group, and men don’t seem to be encouraged to do that so much.”

St. Amant agreed.

“Women understand each other and it’s easier to find a connection with other women. I think it’s a great thing to be a part of,” she said, adding that she also immediately clicked with new town Economic and Development Director Ivy Wells. “We all want to be here. I’m always here doing something, and I love being here. We’re very lucky.”

DeHart said she was excited to have both women on board.

“I think it will be a positive transition for the chamber to have two part-time staffers that can work together and bounce ideas off of each other,” she said.

“Larnet will oversee membership and events and Morgan will be handling the communications and the marketing within the office. The two will work together along with the board to improve upon our member benefits and offer some new member events for the future,” she said.

Pines opens pool, returns summer movie, concerts

(June 11, 2015) Summer is heating up in Ocean Pines as several popular events offered by the Recreation and Parks Department return for the season.

Monday Movies in the Park returns for its second season beginning Monday, June 15 at 8 p.m. in White Horse Park. A different free family-friendly movie will be shown every Monday through Aug. 31. Concessions will be for sale. Visit OceanPines.org for movies.

The Yacht Club pool will open up for families Wednesday evenings June 17-Sept. 2 from 6-8 p.m. Games, contests and music will be part of the fun. Food and beverages will be for sale poolside. The cost is $3 for swim members, $5 for Ocean Pines residents and $7 for non-residents.

Only those swimming pay a fee.

Ocean Pines’ summer music series, Thursday Concerts in the Park, begins Thursday, June 18 from 7-9 p.m. Free family-friendly musical performances will be held weekly through Aug. 27 at White Horse Park. Family games, food and more will be featured. Visit OceanPines.org for scheduled performers.

Events are open to the public. For information, call the Recreation and Parks Department at 410-641-7052.

Information on additional programs is available at www.OceanPines.org.

BERLIN BRIEFS

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) The Berlin mayor and council discussed several issues during a public meeting at Town Hall on Monday, June 8.

Sandpiper speaks

Steve Ashcraft and Charlie Russell from Sandpiper Energy updated the mayor and council on the recent conversion of Berlin gas lines to natural gas. According to Ashcraft, the company placed more than 100,000 feet of plastic pipe in Berlin, completing the conversion of more than 800 residential homes and 100 businesses in July 2014.

Russell said there was excellent coordination with the town and emergency responders during the conversion process. He added that there were no cast iron or bare steel pipelines in Berlin and spoke to the council about system integrity, leak survey dates and procedures, construction standards, and the company's public awareness campaign.

"We're pleased to be here, happy to be a part of the community and looking forward to growing with you," Russell said.

Bond refinanced

The council voted 4-1 to refinance the Electric 2004A series of infrastructure bonds, a move Finance Director Natalie Saleh said would save the town approximately $250,000 over the next 19 years.

Saleh said the savings would be produced by a decrease in interest rates. At the same time, the town's credit rating would increase and the duration of the term of the bond would decrease.

At-Large Councilmember Thom Gulyas was the lone "no" vote. Gulyas said he was denied access to specific numbers by the bond company and wondered if the town could take out a low-interest loan and prepay the bond. According to Gulyas, a local bank quoted him with a $500,000 savings over the same time period.

Under the bond program the town took out in 2004, Saleh said, the town would not be able to prepay the bond down. If the town delayed, Saleh added, it would have to wait six months to reapply and would almost certainly face a different interest rate.

A public hearing was opened and closed without comment, and District 4 Councilmember Dean Burrell made the motion to approve the refinance.

Berlin becomes HEAL town

The council voted unanimously to approve a resolution to join the HEAL (Healthy Eating Active Living) campaign.

According to the organization's website, the HEAL cities and towns campaign "provides free technical assistance and support to local elected officials and their staff to adopt policies that stem the obesity epidemic and create healthy, prosperous communities in Maryland and Virginia."

"The essence of this resolution is the town will be recognized for 11 activities we've done and continue to do," Berlin Mayor Gee Williams said. He cited the town's efforts to enhance parks, build sidewalks, its support of the Walkable/Bikeable Berlin initiative and its support of youth programs through Worcester Youth and Family Counseling Services.

Memorial funded

After considering a pair of options, the council voted to approve the funding of the Dr. William Henry Memorial using money from the existing parks budget.

Under a different option, the town would have waited to fund the memorial and would have applied for a grant. Burrell made the motion to immediately fund the memorial at a cost of $4,500 using already budgeted funds.

Outage outed

Electric Utilities Director Tim Lawrence said a brief power outage last Thursday was caused by a tree that fell behind Adkins Hardware. The tree was 15-20 feet from the power lines, he said.

Lawrence blamed the recent heavy rains for downing the rotten tree.

Planning notes

Planning Director Dave Engelhart said on June 3 the Berlin's Historic District Commission approved one residential addition, one commercial addition and two utility sheds.

Engelhart added that six new home permits had been filed during the last three weeks, a spike in activity driven in part by an upcoming change in the fire code disallowing sprinkler system exceptions in homes not considered new construction.

On June 10, Engelhard said the Planning Commission would hear a proposal to annex a small parcel contiguous to an existing property in Berlin, and would get a first look at the concept for a new Arby's and Royal Farms in Berlin.

Dollar General update

Commenting on the news that developer Oxford Chase intended to take the denial of a Dollar General site plan to circuit court, Engelhart said he had not received anything in writing as of Monday.

Town Attorney David Gaskill estimated a court date, should the suit take place, would be four-to-six months away.

Two new restaurants

Economic and Development Director Ivy Wells said Leaky Pete's had opened in Berlin, replacing Tex Mex and Country Cookin' on 119 North Main Street. Wells added that the Cambridge location of Leaky Pete's would close during the next few weeks.

Crush and Crabs, Wells said, would open within the next two weeks, filling a long-vacant property on the corner of Route 113 and South Main Street.

Herrick brings independent edge to OPA Board race

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) While several of the candidates in this year’s Ocean Pines Association Board of Directors race have experience on the board, the crop of seven also includes a number of newcomers.

Thomas Herrick, 61, is a member of the latter group.

Born in Brooklyn and raised on Long Island, Herrick spent 28 years on the New York state police force before moving to Ocean Pines with his wife six years ago.

“Ocean Pines has everything we wanted,” Herrick said. “We wanted an active life style, we wanted amenities and a sense of community, so this fit perfectly for us. And we’re only four and a half hours away from my three boys who are still up in New York.”

Herrick quickly became an active member of the homeowner’s association, buying a small boat, taking up platform tennis and making good use of the community’s golf course. It was that involvement, he said, that led him to run for office.

“I’m very active and I talk to a lot of people with the amenities, and I saw some policies that were being made that were discouraging the residents from using the amenities, and I thought that was an injustice,” he said. “I realized we could do better and promote these activities and promote these amenities and make them more affordable and have more of the people who live here use them.”

Herrick said he watched as several of his friends, discouraged by some of the community’s policies, moved away. Others, he said, simply started using facilities outside of Ocean Pines.

“I belong to two outside golf groups and I would say 85-90 percent of them are former members here, and they’re all golfing elsewhere,” he said. “Our resident rate was $62 and at five or six golf courses around here it’s $45 with a group rate – we have the biggest group on the Delmarva Peninsula. The people own the golf course. Treat it like an HOA golf course and give the people who live here the added value. That’s what they’re paying for.”

‘Unfair policies’ spurred Herrick to run in OP

Herrick also said unfair policies also caused a number of Ocean Pines groups to book major functions outside of the community.

“Why are you overpricing the people who paid for that building?” Herrick asked. “I feel like there are some injustices and I think the policies of the board and management have to be more friendly, make the amenities more affordable, and bring in more of our membership to use it – not so much people from the outside, but our people that own them.”

The proposed new facility use rules, which would either charge groups a fee to use amenities or require a certain amount of volunteer hours, is not the solution, according to Herrick.

“I don’t see how that benefits the welfare of the community, and the amenities are here for the welfare of the community,” he said. “Are [the new rules] making it affordable and enjoyable for the people who live here? I don’t think so. I think it’s misdirecting what the amenities should really be for.”

Herrick also took issue with the way the board and the general manager work with each other.

“The board responsibility is to adopt, publish and enforce rules and regulations governing the use of our amenities. The manager should manage those policies,” he said. “The problem is that some board members – past and present – don’t understand those guidelines. I think that’s what leads to the dysfunction between the board and the manager. If they both understand the guidelines and they both realize what they have to do and they work together as a team, the community can reach its full potential.”

Herrick said he’s paid more attention to the board in the last year, either attending regular meetings, or else watching the live streams online.

“I started seeing the policy problems, I started seeing the nickel and diming that I think we can do better with, I started seeing the dysfunction, and I see the venom spill out in the newspapers,” he said. “That bothers me because it just shines a bad light on the community as a whole, and I don’t think they’re really thinking about the community as a whole. I think they’re thinking about some special interest groups, and they’re fighting for those special interest groups.”

Herrick said he would be an independent voice on the board, voting on individual issues rather than siding with factions within the body.

“I believe you look at each issue, debate it – that’s why there’s seven people on the board, because you want different views – and you need to learn to compromise and have an open mind,” he said. “Depending on what the issue is I will do in my heart what I feel is the best for the community as a whole, not for one group. That’s why I’m running as an independent.”

Ultimately, Herrick said, it’s “up to the community to put the right people in there.”

“That’s really what has to happen, and I hope it does,” he said. “I’m giving it a shot because I feel strong enough about this community that I want to try. I’m not a politician, but I feel like I can help.”

Worcester ranks 11th in health

By Brian Gilliland
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) Of the 23 counties and Baltimore City, Worcester ranks 11th in “health outcomes” according to a recently-released annual report compiled by the Robert Wood Johnson foundation and the University of Wisconsin Population Health Institute.

The full report, found at www.countyhealthrankings.org, breaks out six major areas and ranks counties versus their states and the top performers in the country. Worcester does well in certain areas, coming in first in the state in “physical environment,” but the county falls to 20th place in social and economic factors, and 15th in health behaviors.

“Premature death is the one most troubling to me,” Michael Franklin, CEO of Atlantic General Hospital said. “It’s the one we’re all worried about.”

Defined as “years of potential life lost before age 75 per 100,000 population, Worcester ranks 20th in the state with almost 7,300 years of potential lost life, almost a millennium more than the state’s average of 6,439.

Franklin said, in analyzing the methodology to determine these results, that 40 percent of the factors contributing to the premature loss of life were behavioral.

“We’ve got a lot of work to do as a region behaviorally and socio-economically,” he said.

The county’s high unemployment rate, 11.2 percent according to the study, along with 22 percent of children living in poverty as well as a relatively high income inequality rate of 4.2 percent, all contribute to Worcester’s low score in this area. Social associations are high at 17.3, nearly double the rest of the state, so there are a lot of private interactions within the county without a lot of results.

“I see significant issues that directly relate to the social and economic factors, which are the biggest driver of the other items,” Franklin said. “I’m concerned with the obesity, smoking and drinking rates.”

According to the study 18 percent of adults smoke and 31 percent are obese, each three percent higher than the state average. Excessive drinking, physical inactivity, alcohol-impaired driving deaths and the teen birth rate are all slightly higher than the state average. Worcester ranks 15th in the behavior section.

It’s not all bad news, though. Worcester ranks eighth in quality-of-life factors including reported amount of poor physical or mental health days and low birth weight.

In clinical care, or access to medical professionals, the county ranks fifth.

“There is still a need for providers,” Franklin said, and the numbers bear him out. Despite the county’s high ranking, ratios of patients to providers are significantly higher than state averages. The state average for a patient to primary care physician ratio is 1,131 to 1. In Worcester County that ratio is 1,433 to 1. Dentists are even more scarce with a state average of 1,392 to 1 and a Worcester County ratio of 1,912 to 1. Diabetic screenings and mammography rates are also well above state averages.

Where Worcester shines is in its physical environment. The county is ranked first in physical environment. While most, 82 percent, drive to work alone, only a few, 29 percent, drive more than 30 minutes. The county has recorded zero drinking water violations, while the state average is 16 percent, and there is a lower amount of air pollution than elsewhere.

“All of this together tells a story, not about a program or a specific message, that needs to get out there. This is what creates the whole picture of population health,” Franklin said.

Mancini speaks during Wor. Prep academic awards

(June 11, 2015) Worcester Preparatory School alumnus Chris Mancini, ‘03, was the featured speaker during Academic Awards Convocation at the school on May 20.

He talked to award winners and their parents about his days at Worcester and the excellent preparation he received noting that it all began in Pre-Kindergarten with his mother, Jeanie Mancini, as his teacher.

After graduating from Worcester, Mancini attended Washington College where he earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in Business Management. While there, he was a Dean’s List student, played on the men’s lacrosse team for four years, and was project manager for Students in Free Enterprise.

He moved on to the University of Baltimore School of Law where he earned his Juris Doctor degree. In the years since earning his law degree, his experience as a trial attorney has taken him into the areas of Criminal Defense, Real Estate Law and Wills and Trusts.

Oyster bar and chophouse, Leaky Pete's, opens door

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) The wait for Leaky Pete's is almost over, as the new Berlin restaurant continues a string of soft openings en route to a formal opening date expected during the next few weeks.

Owner Terry Feehley brings a solid pedigree to the oyster bar and chophouse, having worked 5,000 hours under a certified executive chef at Renaissance Harbor Place Hotel during his tenure at Anne Arundel Community College and earning "Chef-Apprentice of the Year" honors upon his graduation in 1995.

Feehley also served as executive sous chef at Oriole Park at Camden

JOSH DAVIS/BAYSIDE GAZETTE

Oyster bar and chophouse, Leaky Pete's, located at the north end of downtown Berlin on Main Street, enjoyed success during a soft opening last weekend. The restaurant will likely host a grand opening during the next two weeks.

Chef/owner Feehley to focus on Berlin spot

Yard before moving on to open his own restaurant, the original Leaky Pete's, in Cambridge five years ago.

Opening in Berlin was not originally the plan, but the veteran chef said he's excited about the opportunity.

"I was looking to go down to the beach actually, and a friend of mine mentioned that this place was available," he said. "When I looked at it I liked it, and here we are. It's a beautiful little town."

The concept behind the restaurant, Feehley said, is to serve different kinds of oysters, from wild harvested to farmed, with the latter finding favor because of its sustainability.

"I like the sustainable product and we try to support it," he said. "I like it with fish, I like it with shrimp. They haven't figured out how to do it with crabs yet, but they'll get there."

Six types of oysters are available on a sushi-bar-like menu, priced "per each," along with top neck clams, lobster claws, Jonah crab claws, oyster and clam shooters and shrimp cocktail.

Leaky Pete's heavy emphasis on seafood also shows up with dishes such as baked rockfish, scallops au gratin and lobster mac and cheese, while there also will be 16-ounce grilled "cowboy" steaks and chipotle pork chops. The bar will feature local craft beer, as well as a large selection of white, blush, red and bubbly wines.

"We're supporting a lot of local, Eastern Shore brewing companies," Feehley said. "Right now we have Fordham out of Delaware, Evo, Burtle Oak, 3rd Wave and Assawoman Bay. We also have Natty Boh, and I'm doing an Allagash White out of Maine that's a real good, drinkable beer."

Feehley is betting heavily on Berlin, going as far as closing the Cambridge operation.

"We're going to focus our efforts here in Berlin and see how it goes," he said. "We haven't officially opened, but we're probably going to do a grand opening in about two weeks. We did a soft opening last weekend and it wasn't bad. The blues festival got rained out, but we did okay."

The restaurant is hiring. For more information, call 410-973-2311, or visit Leaky Pete's at 119 North Main Street.

Blue Angels and Breitling Jet Team to perform in OC

By Kara Hallissey
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) Ocean City's eighth annual Air Show takes off this weekend bringing international performers, World War II bomber planes and numerous other acrobatic displays to the resort.

"We've pulled off the air show version of a hat trick with the addition of the F-22 Raptor Demo Team. We have three of the biggest acts in the air show industry, all performing in the same year [U.S. Navy Blue Angels and Breitling Jet Team]," OC Air Show President Bryan Lilley stated in a press release.

Although the show does not officially begin until Saturday, events have already kicked off, including breakfast with the performers starting at 8 a.m. today, Friday, at Layton's Family restaurant on 16th Street.

"Layton's is kind enough to offer breakfast to our performers who love the opportunity to mingle with all the fans in Ocean City," said Cathy Bassett, press officer for the show. "Depending on the day and time you go, you could bump into a member of the Blue Angels team, a pilot from the Breitling Jet Team from France, or Mike Wiskus or John Klatt, our two aerobatic pilots, and get an autograph signed."

Tonight, a free and open to the public

SUBMITTED IMAGE/BAYSIDE GAZETTE

During the Ocean City Air Show this weekend, John Klatt will fly the Air National Guard MX-S, which can reach speeds of up to 250 mph.

Jack Daniels Fire Take Off Party will take place at Cowboy Coast on 17th Street beginning at 7 p.m. It will feature musical entertainment and a chance to meet pilots, jumpers and flight crews.

On Saturday, the Ocean City Air Show launches with performances by the U.S. Navy Blue Angels, B-25

Mitchell "Panchito" WWII Bomber, an L-39 Albatross Cold War era jet and more high-flying acts.

The display village lining the Boardwalk from 13th to 19th streets will open at 9 a.m. for guests to visit various information booths and talk to military recruiters about the Blue Angels and other performances.

Weather permitting, the air show will officially start at noon with the Blue Angels taking to the sky at 3 p.m. for a 45-minute performance.

"This is the first year that the U.S. Navy Blue Angels are performing in Ocean City and with our close proximity to Annapolis and the Naval Academy we know there is a lot of hometown support for these amazing pilots and their entire support team," Bassett said. "We think Ocean City will be amazed by the show they put on."

For the first time, the Ocean City Air Show will feature an international jet team, Breitling, who has made Ocean City a stop on its first U.S. tour, she added.

"I have never seen the Breitling Jet Team and there is just a powerhouse of a line-up," said Jonathon Billie, who will fly the F-22 Raptor in the show this year. "With the Blue Angels, it's going to be a really good show."

Billie will give a single-ship demonstration with the F-22 Raptor to show audiences what it can do. He said that although it's a large aircraft, audiences will see it perform tricks expected of only smaller planes.

"You will see the superior maneuverability of the aircraft, moving fast and slow, going from 90 to 600 knots," he added.

‘Famous Storms’ program June 13

AIA to host return of popular series to park’s island education center

(June 11, 2015) Assateague Island Alliance (AIA), the Friends Group of Assateague Island National Seashore (ASIS), will host the popular “Famous Storms of Assateague” program at Assateague Island Environmental Education Center on Saturday June 13.

Coffee and refreshments will be served at 9:30 a.m. prior to the program which begins at 10 a.m. Discover how Mother Nature shaped the fate of Assateague Island National Seashore; eliminated plans for development and led to the creation of the National Park we know today.

Presenter Christopher Seymour, retired National Park Service ranger who spent 20 of his 33 years as a naturalist/park interpreter at Assateague, will revisit three major storms of the last century and their impacts on the island: 1) The August 1933 storm that wiped out seven blocks of the southern part of Ocean City, created the inlet, and resulted in the jetty system that has been starving Assateague of sand for more than 80 years; 2) The Ash Wednesday storm of 1962 that destroyed most (but not all) of the developer’s houses on Assateague Island; and 3) the 1992 Nor’easter, the effects of which caused the park to close for three months.

This program is presented by the Friends Group in conjunction with the yearlong 50th anniversary celebration of Assateague Island National Seashore which was created in 1965.

Due to the popularity of this series, this event will be held in a larger venue at the Assateague Island Environmental Education Center (old visitor center) located at 7206 National Seashore Lane, Berlin, Md. 21811. Overflow parking will be available next door at the new Assateague Island Visitor Center.

Assateague Island Alliance (AIA), a 501(c)3 organization, is a Friends Group to benefit Assateague Island National Seashore. AIA financially supports educational, interpretive, scientific and recreational programs. All funds raised by AIA are for the direct benefit of Assateague Island National Seashore. Donations are tax-deductible.

To grow or not to grow: Berlin facing big decision

It's far too early in the conversation about the possible development of the Bay Club outside Berlin for anyone to take a definitive position, other than to express a willingness to listen.

The prospect of a project that would entail the construction of 300 or so luxury homes and, perhaps, the town's annexation of that parcel, might sound like too much too soon for some people, because they imagine it happening all at once.

That, of course, won't happen. No builder puts up 300 homes at the same time, just as 300 buyers won't show up overnight and then descend on the town en masse. Like everything else that has occurred in Berlin over the past decade, this would happen in steps.

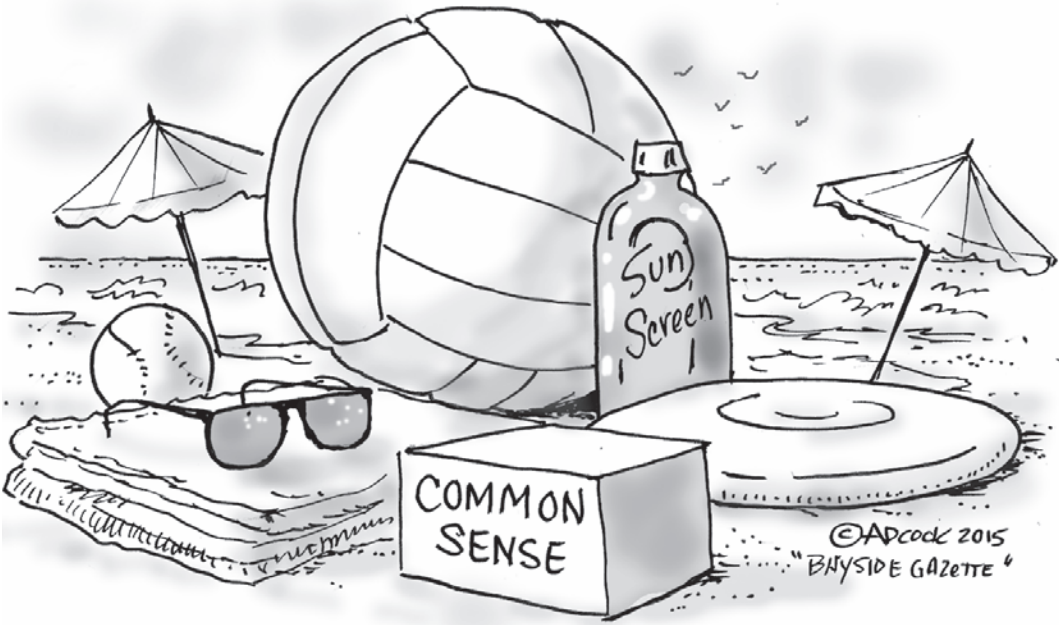

The greater issue in the discussions that will follow, however, is not necessarily whether the town should grow, but what could happen if it doesn't.

Although remaining the same might sound like a solid option, other Eastern Shore towns – and, no doubt, many communities throughout the country – that have strived to maintain the status quo have failed in some regard.

Either they began to lose the vibrancy that propelled them to their current circumstances, or they became surrounded by growth over which they had no control, or they became increasingly expensive places to live, as costs and prices reflected a corresponding rise in exclusivity.

The reality is there is only one reasonable way to go and that is forward, while exercising as much control as is fair and prudent. The Bay Club will be developed some day no matter what the Town of Berlin does, just as other nearby areas will grow.

The decision Berlin officials and residents will have to make in the coming months is whether they want to stand by and watch growth happen on the town's perimeters or be in the position to influence how it happens.

Memorial Day parade successful

Editor,

The Old-Fashioned Memorial/Decoration Day Parade Committee would like to express a heart-felt "thank you" to all who helped make the annual Memorial Day Parade on Flower Street in Berlin a total success.

We would like to personally thank the Town of Berlin, Mayor Gee Williams, Councilman Dean Burrell and all of the town council members. The committee thanks the Bayside Gazette and the Ocean City Today for their exceptional coverage of the Memorial Day parade.

We also thank our many sponsors who have supported the growing number of participants and spectators at the parade.

However, most of all, we would like to thank each individual, family, or group who came out to see the parade and show their love in honor of those veterans who gave their lives for our country. Thank you.

“Afternoon at the beach,” taken in 2013 by Bishal Poudel, will be on display at Baked Dessert Cafe in Berlin during 2nd Friday, June 12.

Photog Poudel brings Nepal to Berlin

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) Born in Nepal, 28-year-old photographer Bishal Poudel grew up surrounded by beauty, living more than 20,000 feet above sea level in a region of famous mountain ranges.

In 2005, he moved to the United States to attend college, arriving in Louisiana just days after Hurricane Katrina sent the area into a tailspin of confusion.

“It was two days after, but it was still chaos,” he said. “The traffic was stuck, and people from New Orleans, people from Shreveport, were in the college dorms because they didn’t have anywhere to go.”

Ironically, it wasn’t either locale that inspired him to turn his eye to art, but rather Ocean City, where Poudel was drawn to the beaches during summers off from college.

“I went back and forth [from Louisiana to Ocean City] for about four years,” he said. “I was working up in the fishing pier for a summer job and it was beautiful outside.”

With a little help from his boss, Poudel bought a Nikon D60 camera and “started to shoot the beach.”

“It got me and I had to keep working

OC Air Show Performer Party at Ocean Downs

“Nothing can compare to the power and noise of the F-22 Raptor as it screams across the beach and demonstrates what this most advanced fighter jet can do in the sky,” Bassett said.

After Saturday’s Boardwalk activities, an Air Show Performer Party will take place at Ocean Downs Casino, off Route 589 near Ocean Pines, starting at 7 p.m. and will feature a twilight jump by the Lucas Oil Parachute Jump Team and a fireworks display at dusk.

“The Air Show Performer Party will be the place to meet all the teams as they mingle with the crowd outside at Ocean Downs,” Bassett said.

The air show continues Sunday at noon with more performances by the Blue Angels, World War II P-51 Mustang, C-130 Fat Albert and other favorites.

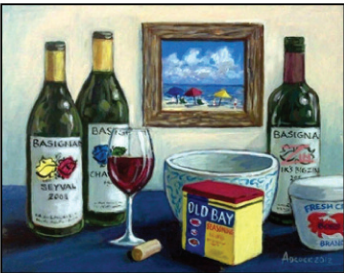

The public will have a rare opportunity to take rides in the B-25 Mitchell “Panchito” WWII Bomber during the air show. For a $425 donation to the Delaware Aviation Museum Foundation, visitors will get the experience of what it was like to fly onboard the B-25 Mitchell Bomber “Panchito.”

The flights will take off from the Ocean City Airport today through June 14. The plane can seat up to five people

In addition, the Coast Guard will bring along its MH-65 Dolphine helicopter to demonstrate search and rescue missions for the crowd.

Every year, thousands of people watch the Ocean City Air Show from the Boardwalk, hotels, on the beach or on a boat in the ocean, Bassett said.

"The 2015 event will be our best show yet," Lilley said. "With the inaugural performance of the U.S. Navy Blue Angels and the Breitling Jet Team we expect to have record crowds."

"Everyone should come out, and I speak for the team, we are really excited to show Maryland what we do," Billie said.

At the Air Show's "Show Center" on the beach at 16th Street, spectators can hear commentary and enjoy great views from most spots along the Boardwalk and beach. Others take their boats on the water to catch a seaside view.

Some special packages are still available for the Air Show, but they are selling quickly. Tickets start at $22 for a "Drop Zone" seating and $109 for a Flight Line Clubhouse ticket. The VIP Penthouse is sold out for Saturday and Sunday.

"We just want to thank Ocean City for their continued support of this air show and we ask everyone to please come early and stay late, and wear plenty of sunscreen as they kick back and enjoy an amazing day of flying right over the beach in Ocean City," Bassett said.

on it,” he said. “This is what I want to do. From here, it’s the beach and in Nepal it’s beautiful everywhere you go.”

His work, mostly landscapes, takes inspiration from everything from the sunrise along the Ocean City pier to the scenic highlights of Nepalese mountains and temples.

“I love taking pictures, but I don’t really have a theme,” he said. “I just want to go with the flow, I guess.”

Poudel will display several photographs at Baked Dessert Café in Berlin during second Friday on June 12. He plans to donate 20 percent of proceeds of sales of his work to earthquake victims in Nepal.

“I have to do something,” he said. “I was there last November and the place where the temple was sitting down there [where he used to visit] was just gone.

“I hope people can take the memory from where I’m from and from other places, like Ocean City,” Poudel continued. “If they take something home, they’ll be helping some people and it’s almost like taking my place into their place. Hopefully, that makes them happy, and I feel happy for giving.”

Berlin’s 2nd Friday festivities feature more than a dozen art displays in shops throughout the downtown area, along with sales and specials in area restaurants from 5-8 p.m.

Berlin brings back free concert series

(June 11, 2015) The Berlin Heritage Foundation announces that Taylor Bank will sponsor the first performance in the 2015 Concert on the Lawn series on Sunday, June 14 at 6 p.m. at the Calvin B. Taylor House Museum, 208 North Main Street.

“Such Fools,” a trio of Mickey Justice on mandolin, Todd Smith on bass and Dick Morris on guitar, will perform during this first concert.

“For at least 18 years, the Foundation has been sponsoring these free concerts on the side yard of the Taylor House and they continue to be one of our museum’s most popular community events,” said curator Susan Taylor. “We’ve had some talented musicians perform on the lawn and we look forward to another exciting season featuring all new new groups this year.”

Bring a chair and a picnic to enjoy these free concerts on the lawn of the Calvin B. Taylor House Museum. Concerts in the series are always held at 6 p.m. on the second Sunday of June through September.

The Taylor House Museum is open from Memorial Day weekend through the end of October on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays from 1-4 p.m. Group tours are available anytime by appointment.

For more information, contact the museum at 410-641-1019 or visit www.taylorhousemuseum.org.

‘Antique Capital’ hosts Road Show

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(June 11, 2015) Bill Outten, who operates three antique stores in Berlin, held Berlin’s first Antique Art Mart in April in the parking lot of Uptown Antiques.

Outten will stage a similar event this Saturday, an Antiques Road Show or sorts, in cooperation with the Atlantic Hotel.

These events, Outten said, typify the fact that Berlin is truly “the antique capital of the Eastern Shore.”

“The road show is where we have an antique appraiser come in and they evaluate people’s treasures and give them a fair market value for it,” he said.

Charlene Upham and her husband, Steve Blumenauer, who run an appraisal business in Mardela Springs, offered a similar service during the art mart in April. Proceeds from the event went to Berlin Main Street.

“That went really well,” Outten said. “We actually had an overflow of people, and [Upham] only had about five minutes of rest that whole time – she worked for four hours straight.”

Upham will return on Saturday for the road show, which will be held as part of the Atlantic Hotel’s year-long 120th anniversary celebration.

“They’re celebrating and they wanted to hook up with some of the merchants and see what we could do, so this was one of those things,” Outten said. “It should be a great event.”

Outten said customers can browse several vendor booths, including area shops Bruder Hill and Uncle Jon’s Soap & Sundries, while waiting to have their items appraised.

“It’s part of the celebration of the Atlantic Hotel’s 120th anniversary, but in my perspective it’s also in conjunction with the ‘antique capital of the Eastern Shore,’” Outten said. “This is just another one of those examples of the antique capital being right here. You can come here and either spend the whole day here or blaze your trail outward. We have lots of cool shops and restaurants, and we’re trying to put all of the flavors of Berlin in this little event.”

The Antique Road Show runs from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. outside the Atlantic Hotel on 2 North Main Street. For more information, call 410-973-2054.

Black garlic spread goes great with lox

What a whirlwind the past two weeks have been. It's nice to be back behind the wheel again, not managing anyone or anything and just cooking; well, shucking is more like it. And deciding that I didn't have enough to do, I accepted an invitation to work with some good friends of mine, chefs up in Rehoboth, as we cooked lunch for 400 kids at the Sussex Academy. After cooking and shredding two hundred pounds of beef and chicken, we were still looking forward to eating it; that's precisely how good it was.

By Paul Suplee,
CEC PCIII

Done with the school lunch, it was time to get back to work. Yes, finally, it was time to pull out the lox that Chef Jason Diettrich had been curing for a number of days. They look delicious and we're excited to see how they came out. Of course we knew that the salmon would be delicious, but when you cure anything such as lox or bacon, there's so much idle time that you can't help but to think of the little things that you may not have done correctly. Suffice it to say that the lox were perfect, and running them on the special board will delight anyone who orders them.

The plate is garnished with a black garlic puree, and I can already feel the hooves on the horses in the pony express as they deliver the hate mail from readers who don't know what it is or where to get it. So please allow me to explain.

Black garlic is a fermented garlic, cared for meticulously, and the end result is a jet-black, sweet piece of garlic that is spreadable and has a taste profile that borders garlic and dried black currants. It is a fantastic foodstuff and fun to work with. It also works great on pasta dishes. There are plenty of buying options through Amazon, and the prices are not too much higher than what we pay wholesale for them. It's worth the investment.

The dish that the chef came up with has classical flavors of cracked black pepper (in the cream cheese), gherkins (sliced super-thin) and of course good old toast points.

For the cracked black pepper, I like to put mine in a mortar and pestle, or crush them on the tabletop by rolling the edge of a pan back and forth on them. What this gives you is true blue cracked peppercorns. Otherwise, you'll have a good amount of ground pepper in with your cracked pepper. I like to do it the classic way. It might take a few minutes longer, but I know that the pepper is correct. Plus, it will keep the cream cheese from taking on too much of the pepper sludge, a common mishap when the peppercorns are pulverized in a spice grinder or a blender.

So now that my latest batch of graduate classes has begun, the summer has kicked off and our kids are almost done with school, all I can say is that I'm grateful to be a line guy again; no managing and few headaches, if any. That's a nice place to be.

Homemade lox on toast points

(Makes enough for a small army)

For the lox

- 1 side salmon, skin on
- 2 c. Kosher salt
- 1 c. Brown sugar
- 1/4 c. Fresh dill sprigs
- 3 Tbsp. Cracked black pepper

Remove any pin bones from salmon with a pair of tweezers or needle nose pliers

Lay out some cheesecloth so that it is in four layers. Make sure that you have enough to wrap all around the salmon

Combine all ingredients (obviously except the salmon itself) and sprinkle about a cup on the cheesecloth

Place the salmon on the dry spice mix skin-side down and ensure that there is a decent coating underneath

Rub the remaining cure on the rest of the salmon and wrap tightly with the cheesecloth

Place in a pan large enough to have it lay flat, and refrigerate for five days

Every day, flip the salmon, since water will be released from the meat as it cures (the very point of curing, after all)

At the end of five days, remove the salmon and rinse thoroughly, patting dry with a paper towel

Slice and serve. This will keep in the refrigerator for a couple weeks or it can be frozen indefinitely. You'll know how long you'll have before you have to worry about it. These might be so good that they'll be gone in a week. Who knows?

Black Pepper Cream Cheese

- Makes about 1 cup
 - 8 oz. Package good cream cheese
 - 3 Tbsp. Cracked black peppercorn
- Combine ingredients thoroughly and set aside until ready to assemble

Toast points

- Texas toast, as needed
- Cut the crust off the bread, then cut the bread into four even triangles
- Place in a 350F oven for about 15-20 minutes or until they are golden and very dry and crumbly. Do not pull them out early or they could stale quickly and/or be soggy

Black Garlic Puree

- Makes about 1 cup
 - Black Garlic (can be purchased online)
 - Olive oil, as needed
 - Salt & Pepper, to taste
- Peel the garlic and blend with a little oil, and season to taste. This will go a very long way and is a wonderful accoutrement for many things, including pasta, cheeses and salume
