Hundreds attend Yacht Club ribbon cutting

GM Bob Thompson tells crowd new facility nine months in making

OCEAN PINES—Hundreds of people turned out Sunday afternoon for the ribbon cutting held on the second floor of the new Ocean Pines Yacht Club.

People toured the facility, sampled free food upstairs, ordered dinners downstairs, listened to live music and packed the bars of both floors.

General Manager Bob Thompson told those gathered on the second floor that the facility had been "nine months in the making" and the outdoor Tiki Bar was still a work in progress. Although some small items remain to be done, the first wedding was held May 17 as he had said it would and the Yacht Club had opened Memorial Day weekend, as he had said he would. He thanked the project team of Carol Terry, Carol Ludwig, Bill Rakow and Ted Moroney, who contributed countless hours to make the new Yacht Club a reality.

"What a change from the old Yacht Club, isn't it," OPA Vice President Sharyn O'Hare said before the ribbon cutting as she recounted the opening of the first Yacht Club 39 years ago. That opening featured a play by the Ocean Pines Players and a dinner.

Berlin Council OKs budget, but approval cautious

Town's property taxes set to stay unchanged

By Josh Davis Staff Writer

BERLIN- The town approved the proposed fiscal year 2015 budget during a Mayor and Council Meeting on Monday, June 9.

The fiscal year begins on July 1 of this year and runs through June 30, 2015.

Spending increased 15 percent over the previous year with a total price tag of $15.1 million. Grants for the police department, tourism and stormwater will fund $989,000 of the budget.

Included in spending was a 3 percent across-the-board pay raise as well as a one-time payment of $500 on Thanksgiving for town employees.

The only change in the budget following the introduction during a town meeting two weeks ago was the inclusion of Fire Company spending, which was previously unavailable due to a late audit provided by the company. A quarter of a million dollars in operating funds were added to the budget for fire services, as well as $150,000 for capital reserve. The $400,000 total represented the largest allocation for any one service.

Property taxes in the town will remain unchanged for the fourth consecutive year.

A public hearing on the budget was opened, but there were no comments from the public.

Councilmember Paula Lynch warned that the spending increase could come back to haunt the town. "Frankly, we can't sustain a budget like this," she said. "We're going into our piggybank for $661,000. This is not a sustainable process."

Mayor Gee Williams argued that the budget funded several essential projects that had previously been shelved.

"Some of these things have been put off forever," he said. "We have to bite the bullet.

"We are all counting on the fact that commercial development and housing development is going to build the tax base up," Williams continued, adding that the large increase in stormwater house at the Yacht Club Marina, a jazz brunch with a Bloody Mary bar and live jazz and lunch on the deck with more live music. The ribbon cutting and dedication featured hors d'oeuvres, live Reggae music, a few speeches and congratulations all around for a job well done.

OPA President Tom Terry told guests how the new facility came to be.

Various groups of people had wanted their favorite facility fixed first and various studies were done. Because of the need to "get out of the continuous loop of reports and studies, Bob [Thompson] created the Facilities Planning Group," Terry said.

That group ranked the community's facilities, created a campus management plan and "did a final review to determine once and for all what we were going to do," Terry said.

In what Terry called "an absolute miracle" in 2012, the OPA "absolutely did what we planned to do." It got recommendations about building a new Yacht Club or rehabilitating the existing Yacht Club.

Ideas were gathered during town hall-type meeting and tours were given at the facility so people could see how deteriorated it was.

In Jun e 2012, the board of directors voted in an unusual unanimous vote to have a referendum to ask property owners if they thought constructing a new building was a good idea.

"Many just knew it would not be approved," Terry said, but more than 60 percent of the property owners voted and their votes were overwhelmingly in favor of a new Yacht Club. Then, he said, it fell to the general manager, the OPA team and the board of directors to move it forward.

Last fall, ground was broken for the new facility and Thompson said it would be open for Memorial Day weekend.

"The Yacht Club team was poised downstairs " ready to start work in the kitchen on Friday, May 23. It had been announced that the new Yacht Club would be open for business at 4 p.m. that day.

Three hours before we were to open, we finally got the go-ahead [from the county]," Terry said.

When Terry asked the crowd if they had tasted the food in the new Yacht Club, he was met with applause.

He then thanked two men "who have the highest level of commitment" to Ocean Pines. Ted Moroney was active in the planning group and continued to provide his knowledge of construction throughout the work to build the new facility.

"He tracked every single dollar spent on this project," Terry said.

Terry then thanked Thompson, who, he said, was driven and dedicated in his commitment. He oversaw the entire project and showed "excellent leadership and top level guidance," Terry said. When he thanked Thompson for his effort "on behalf of all of us," he was met with thunderous applause from the appreciative crowd.

OPA could officially close boat ramps to general public

Difference between written document, sign causes area controversy

By Nancy Powell

Staff Writer/Ocean City Today

OCEAN PINES - The Ocean Pines Association could officially close its boat ramps to the general public sometime this summer.

The board apparently made a mistake during a special meeting to discuss boat ramps Aug. 10, 2011 when its members talked about removing them from the list of amenities that are open to the public. Somehow, the ramps were not removed or found their way back into the final draft by accident. The board made a mistake in not deleting them, board President Tom Terry said during the board's June 5 work session.

"It just didn't get removed from the list," board President Tom Terry said.

"The video tape clearly says ramps were not supposed to be on there," Terry said.

"It missed the cut," Director Marty Clarke said. "It was an accident.

"People are going bananas over the fact that we opened it to the public and we did not," Clarke said. "It's a private boat ramp that's being trespassed on."

Speaking on behalf of neighbors on Carriage Lane across from the White Horse Park boat ramp, Dan Peletier said they are the people who know what goes on at the ramp.

That includes, he said, inappropriate use of the docks. People fish, crab and sun bathe there. Also, large groups of people sometimes show up with one personal watercraft and take turns all day riding it up and down in front of residences. The ramp area is also popular with teenagers, he said, who smoke, drink and throw rocks.

"Now is the time to put in a gated entrance or a person with a clipboard to get registration or some ID about OPA membership, he said.

Peletier and his neighbors want the board to take action to get control of the White Horse Park boat ramp area. Their suggestion is to make users register and put the registration info on a swipe card. A person would be at the boat ramp to swipe the card on weekends or three days per week.

OPA General Manager Bob Thompson said usage at the ramp has been monitored at least twice, with the result being that most of usage was by OPA residents or their guests. Fewer than 5 percent were not related to the OPA in some way, he said.

Carriage Lane resident Gene Ringsdorf countered that the survey takers did not verify whether the users were OPA members. They simply tracked what they were told.

"I wouldn't put a nickel into policy based on that survey," Ringsdorf said.

Ringsdorf added that Ocean Pines required proponents of a dog park to contribute half of the cost and the same for the skate park. The OPA requires contributions for the capital cost or payment for using every special purpose amenity except for the boat ramp, he said. Use of the boat ramp has been free to anyone.

The issue arose after a Bayside Gazette article that started that Director Sharyn O'Hare told the Worcester County Commissioners in March that the boat ramps were open to the public, but a sign at the White Horse Park boat ramp states it is for the use of property owners and guests.

The By-Laws and Resolutions Committee is expected to discuss the issue during an upcoming meeting.

Twisters Gymnastics can't vault divided Town Council

Owner asks panel to defer fees in effort to move, expand facility

By Josh Davis

Staff Writer

BERLIN- A potential expansion by Twisters Gymnastics hit a snag when the Mayor and Town Council were divided on how to help the developing business.

Owner Carmella Solito asked the council to defer or suspend required impact fees as well as property taxes. It was determined that altering impact fees would violate town code, and officials were split over the kind of message suspending property taxes would send to other area businesses

Solito has been attempting to move Twisters, located on 9026 Worcester Highway, for five years.

"It would be by Burley Oak on the property that's across the street from the old Tyson plant," she said. "I think (the council) wants to help me. I know they've done similar things for others in the past - I'm just trying to get there and build a bigger place. We're at a level where we have kids that need a bigger training facility. I've been trying to make it work any which way.'

Several gymnasts who train at Twisters are currently training on the Junior Olympic-level.

We just recently got back from California at the Junior Olympics and our gymnasts qualified in the Junior Elite division," Solito said. "In the whole nation only 35 kids qualified one in Maryland; two in our region and that's the division that they pick their Olympians from."

The gym's Future Stars program currently has six children enrolled; two were invited to train in the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo. in November. One student finished sixth on the floor, meaning if he had been of age he would have been chosen for the Olympic team.

"We're training kids at a national level," Solito said. "We're the only facility within a few hundred miles of here – outside of Gaithersburg – that have kids at this level.

"We're going to bring a lot to the town and hopefully at some point we'll be financially stable enough to give back to the town," she continued.

"We have people looking at us and looking for us to bring an Olympian in the next eight years. We have everything except the facility to do it in and the place to put it."

Funding is close, Solito said, but she could use another small push from the town.

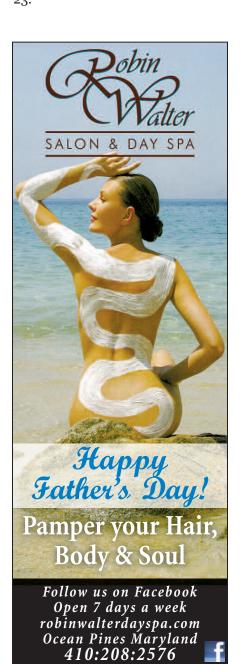

Several months ago the council agreed to help finance the required EDU fees.

"I was hoping to have an answer so we could get moving," she said. "I'm sure they'll figure out a way to help us get there and make the right decisions.'

Solito estimated between 20-30 new jobs could be included in a possible expansion, which would include programs for beginner and amateur child athletes as well as Olympic hopefuls.

Berlin Mayor Gee Williams asked town officials to look into ways to help Solito secure the additional funding she needs to move and expand the business.

Town officials said they would have a plan in place by the next Mayor and Council meeting on June

Fourth Big Truck Day to roll out plenty of fun, enjoyment By Josh Davis everything is safe and secure." Staff Writer Nonprofits including Kiwanis Inter-OCEAN PINES- The Ocean City

Air Show will dominate the skies this weekend, but Big Truck Day looks to provide plenty of action on the

Dozens of cranes, tractors, military vehicles and other four-wheeled fiends will be on hand for the fourth annual event held at Veteran's Memorial Park from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on June 14.

Sonya Bounds, Recreation and Parks Director, came up with the idea after seeing a similar event where local businesses and private citizens showed off their biggest and best vehicles in a family friendly atmosphere.

"We have such a vast variety of businesses in the area," said Vicki Magin, a spokesperson for Recreation and Parks. "There's Cropper's Towing, Choptank Electric Services, Royal Plus has their mobile disaster recovery unit that just got back from Pensacola they all bring their big vehicles out. There's a local guy who has army trucks, there are local mud boggers. One gentleman has a truck you can comfortably stand underneath."

Ashley Diehl, Recreation staff, said there are plenty of activities to keep families busy for the four-hour duration of Big Truck Day.

'You can come and you can spend the whole 10-to-2 because you're going to walk around, you're going to get food if you're hungry, and it's right be-fore Father's Day," she said. "That's something really cool for the dads; you get to bring your kids and it's something special to bond over."

Magin compared the experience to a large jungle gym with trucks.

"Everything is off; the emergency brakes are on; nothing is mobile," she said. "When you have little kids climbing over stuff you want to make sure national and civic organizations like the Ocean Pines Fire Department will be on hand, and a deejay will provide music. Admission is free and open to the public. Food and beverages will be available for sale.

Guests are also allowed to bring outside food.

"Bring a blanket and have a picnic," Magin said. "Last year Perdue brought Frisbees and you had people having lunch; it was a very community-oriented picnic, fun day.

Last year's Big Truck Day drew more than 1,000 people and had upwards of 60 vehicles on display.

"It's just a good old fun time for the family, and the next time you need a table moved you might call the guy that you met at Big Truck Day who came out and used his time and his resources so you kids could play," said

"All the participants who come are truly just coming to be a part of the event, and that's so awesome, said Diehl. "It's really nice to have participants who aren't expecting anything they're just doing this to help the event grow. That's a big thank you to the community."

Magin hopes the event helps to build awareness of what Recreation and Parks does in Ocean Pines.

"We have drama programs, we have fitness classes here - a lot of people don't understand how much Ocean Pines has to offer, and it's open to everyone," she said. "You don't have to be a resident to take part in activities here. This is just a walkway into our summer season before our big Fourth of July celebration."

WEST OCEAN CITY – Local police officer Ricky Kerrigan was selected as the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society 2014 Man of the Year on June 6.

LLS revealed Kerrigan as the Maryland-Eastern Shore chapter's winner during a Grand Finale Gala at the Tidewater Inn in Easton. Grasonville resident Kris Shanahan was named the 2014 Woman of the Year. In total, the campaign raised more than $248,000.

The annual campaign nominated 10 individuals to raise money in honor of the LLS Boy and Girl of the Year. Cancer survivors Joshua Czorapinski, 8, and Colby Fowle, 4, were selected this year. Kerrigan was nominated by Colby's parents.

"It was a big relief," he said of the honor. "I was surprised and happy and excited.

"The atmosphere was one of enjoyment," Kerrigan continued. "Everyone put in so much work and effort in the last ten weeks, so it was kind of relaxed and everyone was laid back."

Colby and her parents were in attendance at the gala.

"There was an auction going on at the same time, and they actually bid on a chocolate lab puppy and won that," Kerrigan said. "So they're taking home a puppy from the gala. That was pretty great."

Kerrigan said Colby, who was diagnosed with Childhood Acute Lymphoblastic Leukemia (ALL) in January 2013, is doing well.

"They brought her up on stage and gave her a little stash," he said. "She was in good spirits and having fun. It was a good time."

The West Ocean City resident set a goal of raising $50,000 for LLS; he ended up raising more than $52,000 during the 10-week campaign.

"Being that we raised over $50,000 LLS will send us a list of doctors that they approve of doing research for cancer, and I'll get to pick which doctor the money goes to," he said.

Kerrigan plans on allocating the money for ALL.

"That's what Colby had and she was our inspiration," he said. "I'll have to take it up with Colby's parents, because they know more than I do, and see what they recommend. We also get to name the funding, so we'll probably name the funding 'Kisses for Colby' or something."

A member of the Ocean Pines Police Department, Kerrigan hosted fundraising events at Hooper's Crab House and Pickles Pub, as well as in Ocean Pines and through a partnership with the Judith M. Sunset Booze Cruise.

As the 2014 winner, Kerrigan will also have the chance to nominate candidates for next year's Man and Woman of the Year.

"We plan on nominating someone that was on our campaign team or someone that worked close to our campaign," he said. "I'm not sure if it will be a guy or a girl yet, but I'm going to call one of them out and nominate them and hopefully we'll keep the title of Man or Woman of the Year right here in Ocean City."

To nominate a candidate for 2015 Man and Woman of the year, contact Campaign Manager Jennifer Veil at jennifer.veil@lls.org. For more information on the LLS and the Man and Woman of the Year campaign visit www.mwoy.org/md/localchapter/m woyes.

Council's Lynch questions town's budgeting approach

"I think our process was poor this year," said Lynch. "I think we would have been better served not to see an incomplete budget so early (and) not to have approved salary increases until we knew what our other expenses would be. I think we're on the wrong track."

Despite her reservation, Lynch said she would not veto the budget.

"All of this is for naught if the town does not continue to have growth," said Williams. "If we are going to provide the improvements we said we were going to improve ... at some point we have to bite the bullet. I don't see the level of investment having to continue.

"That list (of improvements) is getting shorter and shorter," Williams continued. "Eventually we'll get to the point where new growth will be providing new sidewalks, but we still have some catching up to do."

Councilmember Dean Burrell proposed a motion to approve the budget, and the council voted unanimously in favor of it.

Several special events were considered during the session. An Old Time Tent Revival hosted by One Way Pentecostal Ministry was approved for July 23-25. The event will be held at Dr. William Henry Park from 6-8 on all three evenings.

The council conditionally approved new food truck business Seashell Sweet's pitch to provide concessions for the July 15 Army Band Concert to be held in Stephen Decatur Park. The company still needs to obtain several permits and licenses.

Berlin's Bathtub Races will return to the downtown area on July 18. New safety measures include hay bales lining the streets separating spectators from racers, as well as mandatory safety inspections of racing vehicles. Berlin police will inspect each tub on the day before the race.

The Berlin Peach Festival was also approved for 2014. The event will be held on August 12 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Taylor House Museum.

During departmental reports Berlin Police Chief Arnold Downing said the 45-day grace period for citations in the areas of the Rt. 113 speed reduction has passed. Police, who had been issuing warnings under the new 45 mph speed limit, will begin issuing tickets.

The council also praised the inaugural Touch a Truck Day on May 31. Councilmember Lisa Hall estimated as many as 700 people attended, and Electric Utilities Director Tim Lawrence said 225 plastic fire helmets were given out to children.

Peninsula Home uses E-STIM for wound treatment

Changing application seen as groundbreaking

By Josh Davis Staff Writer

SALISBURY – A new application of physical therapy could help home care patients recover from injuries faster.

Peninsula Home Care, which serves Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset Counties in Md. as well as Sussex County, Del., recently began using electronic stimulation, or E-STIM, to treat wounds.

The technology isn't new, but the applications of homecare use could be groundbreaking.

"They've been using E-STIM since the 60's and 70's for wound healing," said David Barnes, a physical therapist for PHC. "Mostly it's done in hospitals or wound centers, but we've decided to start using it at home in conjunction with the nurses for chronic, non-healing wounds."

"It's a mild, comfortable, medication-free noninvasive program," said Nancy Bagwell, PHC branch director. "We have some evidence-based practice studies and it's new to our local area; we were the first one on the Eastern Shore to have this technology."

Conditions that could benefit from E-STIM treatment include pain management, spinal cord injuries, pressure ulcers, bedsores and surgical wounds.

"Anybody who has poor circulation generally has a harder time healing wounds," Barnes said. "A lot of diabetics have a hard time healing wounds. People that are bed-bound develop wounds from being in bed all of the time.

"Our nurses are constantly fighting this battle, trying to do what nurses can do to improve their outcomes with these wounds," Bounds continued. "Physical therapy really hasn't been involved on a homecare basis, and we thought it would be a good idea to take some of the equipment we already had and be able to go out and work in conjunction with the nurses to heal these wounds quicker."

Rod Filart, Peninsula Home Care physical therapist, and Penny Joudrey demonstrate E-STIM procedures, believed to help accelerate wound healing by as much as 40 percent. The company is the first on the Eastern Shore to utilize the technology for home care.

and negative electrodes are placed above and below the wound, and the volts are slowly increased until the patient feels a mild buzzing around their wound area. Therapy generally lasts 45

"Basically what is does is it draws your body's natural fluids to that area between the two electrodes," said Barnes. "All the things that are in the human body that help wounds repair are concentrated in the area of the wound site, and it promotes wound healing."

Barnes said there is no pain associated with treatment.

"As a matter of fact, we use the same equipment to relieve pain," he said.

"There really are no other methods like this," Barnes continued. "When people come home, they have wet dressings, dry dressings; some people are sent home with wound vacs, which is an application where nurses put sponges in the wound and it has to be covered with a clear dressing, and then all the drainage is pulled off into a pump. We can even set up our equipment around a wound vac."

Patients who have had strokes, muscle weakness and edema could also stand to benefit.

"It's really a broad-base type of service," said Bagwell. "When you apply the E-STIM to the wound it reduces the inflammation or the edema, and it improves circulation and brings blood flow to the skin, helping it heal faster. You'll have improved quality of life, the severity of your wounds will decrease a lot faster and you will decrease your risk factors for things such as infection. Basically, you can return to your normal daily activities a lot faster."

When used in conjunction with other treatments, E-STIM has been shown to help areas heal up to 40 percent quicker.

Barnes recently used the treatment to help a young amputee. It was the first time the technology was used for home-

"The wound on her stump had opened back up and they had had her on a wound vac," he said. "We did about two weeks' worth of treatment, and the surgeon in Baltimore said, 'you can take her off the wound vac and just do regular wound care and keep the electro up.' The surgeon was just stunned with the rate of healing with the added electo to it."

The treatment isn't for everyone, but the potential is huge for homecare patients with problematic or persistent wounds.

"We're waiting for the right patient," Barnes said. "It wouldn't be a good modality to use it all the time, but this was a good application and we're waiting for doctor's orders to do another one."

USA Today picks Assateague sixth best island in U.S.

By Josh Davis Staff Writer

ASSATEAGUE – The results are in, and one local island is receiving national acclaim in several notable publications.

Assateague Island was named the sixth-best island by readers of "USA TODAY" and "10Best."

"Assateague Island is where lucky visitors find themselves sharing 37 miles of pristine beaches: not with other tourists, but with the island's famed herds of wild ponies," according to the publication. "This rare stretch of undeveloped Mid-Atlantic Coast is also home to the Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge and Assateague Island National Seashore, both on the Atlantic Flyway, making it a prime island destination for birdwatchers.'

Puerto Rico was named "best" island. "We were very excited – I think it's wonderful," said Evelyn Shotwell, executive director of the Chincoteague

Chamber of Commerce.

'Trip Advisor" named Assateague Island beach as the 23rd best beach in the United States in 2014. The rating was based on user reviews.

"I hope it means increased tourism this summer and more folks visiting with the extra exposure in the media for these recent nominations," Shotwell said. "We hope for a banner summer season.'

Shotwell said the island has already seen increased visitation in 2014.

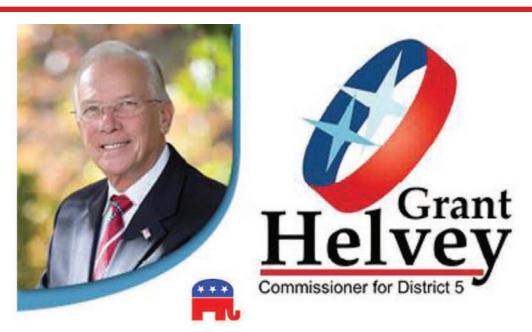

"Memorial Day attendance was up and beaches were nice and full and people were having fun," she said. "All the shopkeepers and the business owners that I've spoken with have said their numbers were at least comparable if not greater than last year's.

"The weather's been beautiful," Shotwell continued. "I think folks have been inside for the winter long enough and they're ready to get out and enjoy the outdoors. We're hoping that means increased visitation during the summer."

Chincoteague was also nominated by "Coastal Living" for "Happiest Seaside Town." Winners will be announced this month.

I'm compelled by civic duty to serve as County Commissioner motivated by a desire for limited government, free enterprise and individual liberty. I will support tourism, poultry production, farming and future economic development. I oppose tax increases and codes or state mandates that impairs our economy or infringe on private property rights. Previous civic activities in support of individual liberty has brought me to the attention of other respected public servants who now endorse my candidacy. I respectfully ask for your trust.

Tourist trolley to continue despite lackluster funding

Worcester County cuts $10,000 for project to help balance budget

By Nancy Powell

Staff Writer/Ocean City Today

WORCESTER COUNTY—The new tourist trolley failed to get the funding sought to transport visitors and residents around part of northern Worcester County, but it has been making its rounds since late May and will continue to provide transportation all summer.

"It will be tight, but we'll manage somehow to do it," said Brad Bellacicco, director of the Shore Transit Division of the Tri-County Council for the Lower Eastern Shore, on Wednesday.

The Casino at Ocean Downs contributed $20,000 and the Ocean Pines Association and Berlin contributed $5,000 each. A contribution of $10,000 had been in the Worcester County Commissioners' budget, but it was deleted when final cuts were made to balance that budget, which they approved June 3.

Worcester County Tourism Director Lisa Challenger learned of that cut from Ocean City Today this week.

"I'm surprised and disappointed this wasn't funded this year," Challenger said. "I think it's a great program with a lot of merit. I'm hopeful that moving forward, we'll be able to contribute next year. In the meantime, I plan to do whatever I can to assist in promoting the trolley to our residents and visitors."

When Challenger sought funding from the county in April 2013, the commissioners did not commit to any funding because the county budget had not been approved and the commissioners did not want to commit funds prematurely.

The Casino at Ocean Downs and other businesses, Challenger had told the commissioners, was interested in the Tri-County Council's plan to have trolley transportation to and from places in West Ocean City, Berlin, Assateague Island, Ocean Pines and points in between. Assateague is not included in the current route.

Two businesses, Frontier Town on Route 611 and the Francis Scott Key Motel on Route 50 in West Ocean City have their own shuttle buses and planned to keep them in addition to contributing funds for the new trolley venture last year. But that trolley plan was put on hold and this year, the business owners used their funds for other necessary business expenses.

Only one business, Burley Oak

Commissioners' decide to cut $10K trolley allocation

Brewery in Berlin, contributed funds for the trolley operation this year. It gave $1,000 and is one of the trolley's stops.

The operation was expected to cost approximately $140,000 annually. That funding was expected to be provided by businesses and governments benefitting from the service. Sponsorships and advertising were considered critical to the operation.

To raise funds, the Tri-County

Council had proposed sponsorships ranging from $5,000 to $50,000. Depending on the amount of money contributed, sponsors could be a bronze partner, a silver partner, a gold partner or a platinum partner. Each successive partnership would entitle the sponsor to more advertising and more coupons for free rides.

Bellacicco said he has requested state funds for the trolley, but might not know until July if those funds will be forthcoming. Regardless, the trolley will continue its rounds this summer.

"We've made a commitment to the people who have helped us," he said.

Ridership on the trolley has started to increase as more people learn about it, he said.

"I expect it to really take off," he added. "And school's out next week."

If ridership picks up considerably, a second trolley could be added, he said. Both trolleys were purchased from the Town of Ocean City.

The casino, which has its own shuttle service with stops in West Ocean City and Ocean City, promotes the current trolley service on its Web site, www.oceandowns.com, and states for $1 fare for each boarding, the trolley rides originate at Walmart and travel in one and one-half-hour loops to Sunset Marina, Park and Ride in West Ocean City, Kentucky Fried Chicken at the White Marlin Mall, Ocean Downs Racetrack and Casino, Ocean Pines Sports Core Pool and Community Center, Burley Oak Brewery, Franklin Avenue near the medical offices and downtown Berlin from 10 a.m. to 10

The trolley schedule is also online at www.shoretransit.org. Look for the schedule for the route for West Ocean City – Ocean Pines – Berlin.

Shorts to transfer to central office from Buckingham ES

NEWARK—Effective July 1, Buckingham Elementary School Principal Denise Shorts will transfer to Worcester County Public Schools' central office as the coordinator of instruction for K-12 Literacy and Title I.

The K-12 Literacy and Title I coordinator position will replace the position currently held by Dr. Donna Main, coordinator of instruction for English, who will be retiring on June 30.

Shorts has served 26 years with Worcester County Public Schools and has assumed leadership advisory roles in the system's transition to the Maryland College and Career Readiness Standards (Common Core). Shorts is eager to guide teachers and administrators in strengthening literacy curricula to reflect the system's goals.

"We want curricula to reflect the rigor of the standards while using instructional best-practices that inspire collaboration, critical thinking, and creativity in our students," said Shorts. "We also want literacy curricula across all grade levels to provide our teachers with effective tools and strategies like integrating STEM, technology, and the arts."

"Literacy extends beyond the ability to read and write in English and/or a child's world language," said Superintendent Dr. Jerry Wilson. "Literacy is the foundation – the starting point – for everything we do in all classrooms and in all subject areas. Ms. Shorts' expertise will benefit each and every student in our system."

Shorts will also oversee the school system's Title I program. Title I is a federal program that is designed to improve the academic achievement of schools with poverty levels that exceed 40 percent of the student population. Shorts has been principal of two Title I schools, spanning 11 years of service. She has also served in schools with low poverty levels.

"I understand the educational needs of students who come from households of poverty and I am passionate about equity in education for all students," Shorts said.

"In Worcester County Public Schools, we believe that every student can and will achieve academic success," Wilson said. "With Ms. Shorts' leadership in Title I, we will continue to narrow our achievement gap until it is eliminated."

The process for finding Shorts' replacement at Buckingham Elementary School is under way.

"Our school system is working hard to ensure that when a position opens, it closes with someone ready and prepared to take over the reins. I am confident that Buckingham Elementary School's next principal will lead the

Assateague to host children's sand sculpting contest

BERLIN- Assateague Island Alliance will host the second Children's Sand Sculpting Competition on June 14, at Assateague Island National Seashore.

This activity will provide families with an opportunity to engage in a hands-on experience while enjoying time together in the national park.

Registration will be held at the new shade pavilion in the south end of the North Beach parking lot from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Judging begins at 2 p.m. Prizes will be awarded to first-, secondand third-place in each of two age classes, 6-11 and 12-17 years old.

Buck's Place, Macky's Bayside Bar and Grill, Beach World and Chauncey's Surf Shop provided donations for the event.

The Assateague Island National Seashore is located at 7206 National Seashore Lane, Berlin, Md. 21811. Follow signs to the National Seashore and meet at the Pavilion in the North Beach parking lot. Registration is free but park entrance fees will be in effect.

Assateague Island Alliance, a 501-c3 organization, was created to benefit Assateague Island National Seashore by supporting interpretive, educational and scientific programs and assuring stewardship, restoration and preservation of our land, water, living resources and historical sites while balancing high quality resource-compatible recreation. Berlin merchants host local artists during stroll, Fri.

By Josh Davis

Staff Writer

BERLIN– This month's 2nd Friday starts early, as 4-H and S.T.E.M. volunteers team up to offer an educational component to the art stroll.

Volunteers from the recently launched UMES/4-H Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics initiative will host activities beginning

'Students are to pick up a 'passport' book from the Berlin Coffee Shop, then they can go through town and visit each of eight S.T.E.A.M. stations manned by volunteers," said organizer Heather Layton.

The extra "A" in S.T.E.A.M. stands for - of course - "art."

The eight activities include "The Beauty of Flight: Master The Art of Paper Airplane Design," "Paper Engi-neering: Create a Popup Card," "Invisible Art: Use a Black Light to Reveal Your Design," "Ocean in Motion: Create a Wave in a Bottle," "Coolest Small Town Copies: Use a Sandy Printing Press," "Meant to Bee Planted: Decorate and Fill a Seed Packet," "Doodling Design: Create Fibonacci Spirals," "Color Diffusion: Tye Dye a Handkerchief" and "Forensics Fun: Use Your Fingerprints to Make Art."

"Kids of all ages will have a blast making these hands-on art projects they get to keep," Layton said. "Each station will stamp the passport, and kids can take their filled passports to the Berlin Coffee House for a $1 ice cream cones and to Baked Desserts for a treat as well.'

Stations will be set up from 3-6 p.m. Standard 2nd Friday events will also be held throughout the downtown area of Berlin from 5-8 p.m., featuring live entertainment and extended hours by

Council should heed Lynch's fiscal concern

We agree with Berlin Council member Paula Lynch's warning that town spending increases of 15 percent could come back in her words "to haunt the town."

Property taxes will remain unchanged for the fourth straight year.

There was even a public hearing on the budget, but there were no comments from the public.

"Frankly," we can't sustain a budget like this," said Lynch. "We're going into our piggy bank for $661,000. This is not a sustainable process."

Still Mayor Gee Williams argued that the budget funded essential projects put off in the past. He said that Berlin is counting on a rise in commercial development and housing development to help build up the tax base. He also noted correctly that the expenditures being allocated for storm water management would decrease after the improvements are completed.

Lynch said, "I think our process was poor this. "I think we should have been better served to see an incomplete budget so early (and) not to have approved salary increases until we knew what our other expenses would be. I think we're on the wrong track."

Still, the budget passed unanimously.

Let's hope that Mayor Williams is correct and that housing and commercial development expands the town's tax base. And he's correct that Berlin has already checked off many improvements off of its list.

It will be a year, therefore, that the town looks for growth and at the same time watches its expenditures. And we think that going after the growth and exhibiting fiscal caution is called for.

Also, it wouldn't hurt to follow up on Lynch's suggestion. Maybe the budgeting process needs re-examining.

Ricky Kerrigan could give dad lessons

By Phil Jacobs

Editor

If there was someone in our area who could give "Dad lessons," I think the top professor would be Ricky Kerrigan, 39, from West Ocean City.

When I was asking around for someone to speak to about fatherhood as we approach Father's Day,

Because it's not unusual to find the Ocean Pines Police Officer hitting a bucket of balls at the driving range with his oldest, 7-year-old Mallory. But then there's the T-ball, the ballet recitals and the gymnastics. And don't think for a second that his youngest, Delaynie, 4, isn't out there with her father as well. Fact is Kerrigan has a day specified as a "date" day or evening with both of his children

He and his wife Sandy, a county health department social worker, give over almost all of their time to the girls, and when that's not happening both are involved in local charities

Kerrigan, who is from upstate New York, arrived in the West Ocean City, Ocean Pines area when he started as a police officer at age 21.

He had never even heard of the area before, and now he's even gotten his parents to move from New York to the Eastern Shore.

When it comes to being the daddy to his daughters, it's easy to see from his radiant smile that he loves them dearly and loves being their father.

Any secrets on fatherhood he can share?

"I think it's about appreciating the little things," he said. "My wife and I love being with our children."

So much so that Kerrigan is probably the only parent I've heard of who loved the school closings and late openings last winter. On the late openings, he and the children have a day of fun activities in the snow or inside their beautiful home. Or, if it's a late opening, Mallory and her dad head over to Starbucks for some hot chocolate.

He can also be found at a local nature park in snowy weather driving around a bunch of neighborhood kids on inner tubes tied to his four wheeler.

But there's even more to Kerrigan. He was named 2014 Man of the Year by the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society for raising $52,000. He entered the campaign to support Colby Fowle, a little girl whose family is close with the Kerrigans. He was nominated by Katherine Fowle, Coby's mom.

"When you talk with Rocky about being a dad, his passion and conviction come through," said friend Nathan Hyde.

The family are active members of nearby SonRise Church in Berlin.

Kerrigan loves being typically being the only dad at one of his daughters' dance classes. Yes, he has been referred to as "Mr. Mom."

He and his wife have arranged schedules that permit him to be home and be with the children.

"He puts his kids first all the time ahead of himself," said his wife Sandy. "He constantly works at night, but when he comes and he should be sleeping, he's taking care of them.

"There's not many dads who can pick up where mom leaves off," she continued. "He knows the girls and they love him."

She also told of a time when he and Mallory went on a daddy-daughter date. That's the one that started with hitting a bucket of golf balls at the driving range. Next came miniature gold, then came the ice cream shop and finally a trip to Wal-Mart.

"He kept going and going and going," she said. "He's constantly doing special things for the girls."

So there's a story that Kerrigan loves to talk about. When he was raising the funds for leukemia, daughter Mallory had 11 inches of her hair cut off so that she could donate it to Locks of Love, the organization that provides hair pieces to financially disadvantaged childron

The apple hasn't fallen from the tree. It's grown into another beautiful tree.

Happy Father's Day to all of you, and may your children make you proud.

Police nab wanted burglary suspect Tuesday in OP area

Man believed to be responsible for crime committed in Berlin

By Nancy Powell

Staff Writer/Ocean City Today

OCEAN PINES—Police captured a wanted suspect in the Ocean Pines area on Tuesday afternoon.

The suspect is believed to be responsible for a May 25 burglary on Bay Street in Berlin and additional area burglaries.

Two were charged for the Bay Street burglary but one, Orion Christopher Conway, 24, of Berlin had avoided apprehension until Tuesday.

At about 1 p.m. that day, Maryland State Police, in conjunction with federal authorities, tried to apprehend Conway after he was seen around the Ocean Pines library and the Sports Core pool. He ran into the nearby woods.

Police utilized the state police helicopter and K-9 teams during the search.

Maryland State Police asked that anyone noticing a man acting in a suspicious nature in and about the Ocean Pines and Showell area to contact them. They issued a press release stating he was wearing a short-sleeved T-shirt, tan shorts and carrying a backpack.

Three people carrying backpacks had been seen sitting on the grass near the Sports Core pool. Shortly thereafter, the search began.

On June 6, Berlin police went to a William Street residence at about 10.35 p.m. because of a report of a domestic dispute, but they found no evidence of a dispute. About one hour later, they received a call saying that Conway was at that residence. Police made contact with Conway, but he evaded officers and fled the area.

Although Berlin police, assisted by Maryland State Police and its Aviation Unit and the Worcester County Sheriff's Office, searched for him for two hours, they were unable to locate him.

While at the William Street address, police arrested Amanda Sinclair on an outstanding warrant for theft from $10,000 to less than $100,000 and conspiracy to commit second-degree burglary.

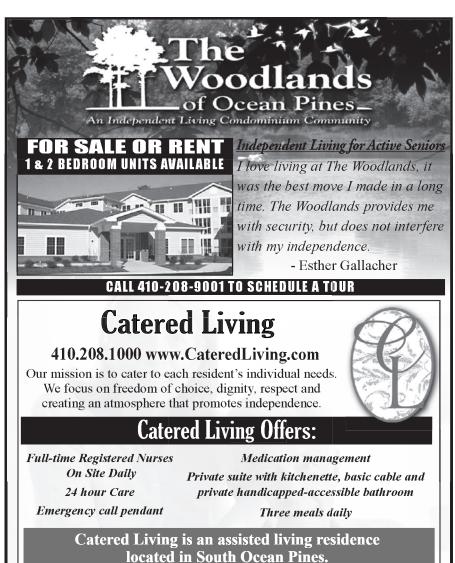

The charges for Sinclair and Conway stem from a May 25 burglary at a Bay Street residence. Joseph Emm, another suspect in that incident, was charged May 30 with second-degree burglary, malicious destruction of property valued at more than $1,000, theft from $1,000 to less than $10,000 and conspiracy to commit second-degree burglary.

Casino at Ocean Downs shows 1.2 percent decrease

State gaming control agency says average take higher this year

MARYLAND—The Maryland Lottery and Gaming Control Agency announced this week the May 2014 revenue numbers for the state's four casinos—Casino at Ocean Downs in Worcester County, Hollywood Casino Perryville in Cecil County, Maryland Live Casino in Anne Arundel County and Rocky Gap Casino Resort in Allegany County.

May 2014's combined statewide revenue totaled $75,831,099.

Casino at Ocean Downs generated $4,719,066 in May, and its gross gaming revenue per unit per day was $190.28. Casino at Ocean Downs' May 2014 revenue decreased by $54,703, or 1.2 percent, from May 2013. The Casino at Ocean Downs operates 800 slot machines.

Hollywood Casino Perryville generated $7,824,651 from both slot machines and table games in May. Gross gaming revenue per unit per day was $180.86 for slot machines, $3,169.82 for banking table games and $493.75 for non-banking table games.

Hollywood Casino's May 2014 revenue decreased by $748,273, or 8.7 percent, from May 2013. Hollywood Casino Perryville operates 1,158 slot machines and 22 (12 banking and 10 non-banking) table games.

Maryland Live Casino generated $59,516,776 from both slot machines and table games in May. Gross gaming revenue per unit per day was $298.98 for slot machines, $4,736 for banking table games and $1,365.39 for non-banking table games. Maryland Live's May 2014 revenue increased by $4,460,391, or 8.1 percent, from May 2013. Maryland Live Casino operates 4,204 slot machines and 189 (137 banking and 52 non-banking) table games.

Rocky Gap Casino Resort generated $3,770,606 from both slot machines and table games in May. Gross gaming revenue per unit per day was $183.52 for slot machines, $1,254.96 for banking table games and $341.87 for non-banking table games.

Rocky Gap Casino Resort operates 577 slot machines and 16 table games (14 banking and 2 non-banking).

In a year-to-year comparison, May 2014 casino revenue increased from May 2013 by $6,651,889, or 9.6 percent (Rocky Gap Casino Resort opened on May 22, 2013).

Chickin' Pickin' tournament coming to Delmarva festival

CENTREVILLE—The 12th installment of the Mountaire Chickin' Pickin' Championship will take place during the 65th and final Delmarva Chicken Festival at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 21, near Centreville, Md.

This family-friendly event will pit 20 competitors against each other to see who can pick and shred the most meat from oven-roasted chickens in a timed, ultra-competitive format. The winner will receive $500.

Winners are determined by who can pick and shred the most meat in five minutes. Contestants will have access to an unlimited amount of cooked birds; however, they must pick and shred all meat (including meat from the breast, thighs, wings and back) and skin from a single bird before they can move onto the next one.

Contest judges will rule if the bird is fully picked and that a new one can be picked. Picked meat is thrown into a collection tray that is weighed at the competition's end to determine the winner. Any bones or large chunks of meat in the collection tray will be removed before being weighed.

To enter, send an e-mail to Roger Marino, Mountaire Corporate director of Communications & Community Relations, at rmarino@mountaire.com. Contestants may sign up in person no later than 12:30 p.m. the day of the event; however, space is limited.

All contestants must be at least 18 years of age to participate.

Once the field is locked, contestants will face off in four preliminary heats of five competitors each, with the winner advancing to the finals. The winner of each heat must stay to compete in the next round up to the finale at 3:30 p.m. The four-person finale is five minutes of pure meat-picking pandemonium, where one person will be crowned champion.

All of the picked chicken goes to a good cause. After the event, the chicken will be picked up by a local animal shelter to be mixed with other ingredients to feed the animals in that shelter.

The Delmarva Chicken Festival will take place June 20-21 at the Queen Anne's County 4-H Park on Route 18 near Centreville and offers entertainment and attractions for all ages.

For a schedule of events, visit www.dpichicken.org (click on 2014 Delmarva Chicken Festival). The Delmarva Chicken Festival is sponsored by Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. and hosted by Queen Anne's County.

Chef Toby Gilbert discusses kimchee

Kimchee is the national dish of South Korea and has been a staple of Korean Peninsula peoples since at least 65 BC, when it was first mentioned in The Big Book of China.

Back in the day, kimchee—pronounced kim-chee—was blended in large earthenware bowls and stuffed into hollow crockery and capped, then buried in the earth for six months.

The chemistry of fermentation works its magic on the vegetables in kimchee. By salting and preserving the cabbage, green onion, radish, and its slurry of garlic, ginger, chilis, and fish sauce, you get what you'd expect: kimchee.

Never banal. Sometimes too zippy for one's tummy.

Properly aged though, kimchee is a digestif and a gut pleaser. In short, it's good for you, and thus may explain why 50 million South Koreans consume 2 billion pounds of the stuff. Every year.

And why the obesity rate in the nation is 8 percent. As opposed to the U.S. rate of 67 percent, give or take.

Burp

All that aside, we would be wise to take heart of kimchee.

After all, something 2,000 years old's got to have something going for Kimchee got a big boost when Portuguese fishermen migrated to Korea in the early part of the 19th century. Bringing with them fiery chili peppers from the Old World. They were all the rage. The peppers, that is. Spread like wildfires.

In 1827 when The Big Book of Korea thought to count 'em, there were 92 types of kimchee.

Now, there are more than 200.

No matter, fact is, kimchee can be anything you want it to be.

Berlin-based chef Toby Gilbert has been fiddling with fermentation since he was an early post-toddler.

Here's his basic take on kimchee, with a kickstarter of fermented rutabaga (see photo) that behaves similar to yeast in flour.

As with most recipes developed over millennia, there are no fixed amounts of ingredients. You learn as you go.

It's like learning to ride a bike. Or barbecue. Scary at first, fun later.

Kimchee

Purée peeled ginger root and garlic, chilis, and fish sauce in a food processor.

Chop Napa cabbage into 1-1/2-inch slices. Thin slice radish and green onion.

Blend the purée with the vegetables in a large nonreactive bowl, then transfer the glop to a glass bowl a little larger than the glop inside it.

Cover the surface of the glop with plastic food wrap and set in a cool dark place for up to a month.

The longer the kimchee ferments, the zippier it becomes.

Try tasting it after week one and week two. A fortnight of sousing will most likely do.

Don't forget to replace the food wrap with a fresh pull.

For the stronger of heart, the oldest known kimchee to be consumed was in its 100th year. And, yes, the consumer lived

For further kimchee lore and instruction, call Chef Toby Gilbert at Waystead Inn, 443-856-4755.

And smile when you say kimchee.

— Guest columnist Chef Toby Gilbert of Waystead Inn.
