More than 150 people attend the first “Dinner on Jefferson” fundraiser for Habitat for Humanity Worcester County in downtown Berlin last Friday. The event raised $15,000 for the nonprofit, which plans to erect a building on Jefferson Street with studio and storefront space for artists on the ground floor and apartments overhead.

(June 29, 2017) A sold-out crowd of about 150 attended the first Habitat for Humanity of Worcester County “Dinner on Jefferson” event last Friday, raising more than $15,000 for the nonprofit.

The outdoor, farm-to-table dinner featured 10 courses with more than two dozen local restaurants and businesses donating their time, ingredients and expertise to benefit the construction of a new mixed-use building on Jefferson Street in downtown Berlin.

The plan is to develop two spaces for artist studios and retail spaces on the ground floor, with two three-bedroom apartments overhead.

Habitat Executive Director Andrea Bowland credited Berlin Economic and Community Development Ivy Wells with the idea for the dinner, and said the town has provided un-(June 29, 2017) The four remaining Ocean Pines Board of Directors candidates met during a nearly two-hour candidate forum in the community center last Wednesday.

Two candidates, newcomer Dr. Colette Horn and former Director Marty Clarke, exchanged several barbs on issues, including the budget and the yacht club, and Horn repeatedly went after the current leadership and interim General Manager Brett Hill.

Incumbent Director Doug Parks, meanwhile, highlighted his one-year term as an appointed director and another newcomer, Nicole Schafer Crosariol, spoke about the fresh approach she hoped to bring to the board.

In August, the two directors with the highest number of votes will be awarded a three-year term on the Ocean Pines board.

During opening remarks, Horn remarked that candidates at the forum last year seemed to dwell on the amount of conflict on the board. The current group of directors, she said, was no different.

“I’m all for healthy conflict – conflict that’s about issues. But, like you guys, I don’t like the conflict we see now. This is conflict that’s about personal attacks and personal business interest,” she said.

Horn has a doctorate in psychology from the University of Southern California.

“Our board needs a psychologist. Where is Dr. Phil when we need him?” she said.

Last year’s candidates, she said, promised to bring about a culture of transparency, including competitive bidding, due diligence and financial accountability. Four of those candidates were now on the board.

“Did you get what was promised?” Horn asked. “What about having a board member as acting GM, despite obvious conflicts of interest, for almost a year, who spent the year sowing controversy that impugns the character of honest volunteers and employees? Is that what you wanted?”

She said Hill pitted families against seniors at the Oasis

New event policy in Berlin to limit submission period

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 29, 2017) To curtail the weekly throng of people pitching new events to the Town of Berlin, the mayor and council passed a new downtown event policy on Monday.

Under the new policy, events for the following year must be submitted to the town between July 1 and Sept. 1. Only one event that requires town services may be scheduled per day.

The town administrator may approve non-alcohol-related events that "have a good track record with the town." New events and those that include alcohol will require approval by the council.

Events cannot have generators louder than 58 decibels and vendors must remove their own trash. Dumping of grease or food waste is prohibited.

"Berlin has become very popular as a venue for events and literally, in my office, at least once a week, someone will come in and say, 'I've got a great idea for an event, let's do it next week,'" Economic and Community Development Director Ivy Wells said. "We needed to put together something so we could have some kind of frame of reference on when events would be discussed and when we could start planning for them."

Wells said the increased lead-time would also allow promotional materials to be printed and distributed in time for the holiday season. She said town merchants like to put rack cards with event dates into shopping bags.

She added that town policy of allowing just six events per year that include public sale and consumption of alcohol would continue.

Wells said she discussed the policy with the Berlin Chamber of Commerce, which hosts most downtown events, and with town merchants. She said she would issue a press release and include news of the new policy on social media.

"I've run it by anyone who will listen," she said.

Mayor Gee Williams asked her to alert other organizations that sponsor town events to let them know of the change.

Police Chief Arnold Downing apparently helped write the policy and was included in town meetings with merchants and the chamber.

"They looked at the number of events and the dates and they're all bunched together and [there were] a whole lot of them. And the consensus was, we don't need a whole lot more events," he said. "I think this is one of the things the policy is going to do ... make sure that the people have enough time to go ahead and put [out] a good product."

"If you have an event every week, you have a couple that are not really up to muster," Downing added.

Kayaker finds body of Snow Hill man in Pocomoke River

By Greg Ellison

(June 29, 2017) The 2017 Worcester County Fair, held last weekend in an attempt to beat the oppressive heat that dominated the affair last August, was well received according to event organizers.

Worcester County Fair Board member Cindy Morris said Mother Nature provided picture-perfect conditions.

“We were blessed with beautiful weather,” she said. “We had a variety of vendors and an array of activities for all our participants and visitors.”

Moving the fair up two months, however, provided some challenges, Morris said.

“The trouble with June is some of the vegetables and stuff aren’t ready,” she said.

Morris, who also helps coordinate the 4-H Program in Worcester County coordinator, said there were other agricultural-themed events taking place on the shore.

“Our livestock was down a little bit, because we had several of our 4-H’ers in Somerset County attending another 4-H event,” she said.

In terms of human participation, although hard data is not yet available, Morris estimated roughly 3,000 people attended.

“The park is so big and so spread out it’s really hard to guess,” she said. “We’ve had as many as 9,000 in certain years and as low as probably 1,000. It just depends on the year.”

Every year, organizers try to add a few new wrinkles to the traditional fair offerings, which this go-round included a visit from a mobile science lab trailer operated by the Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation (MAEF).

“Our Maryland agricultural showcase trailer was a huge success,” she said.

Also new this year was Walk in the Bark, a fundraiser for the American Cancer Society Relay For Life, which Morris hopes becomes an ongoing tradition.

“It wasn’t a huge amount of people, but it was the first year and hopefully it will continue to grow,” she said.

Morris also noted the talent show was a huge success, with 16 participants – some as young as 4-years-old.

“We had a good showing for our indoor exhibit tent,” she said. “Many of the participants that I talked to as they were picking up their exhibits were excited about the June dates.”

Morris also singled out Barbie Grey, a 4-H participant who served as a junior member of the fair board, for particular praise.

“She went above and beyond,” she said. “If she could help she did.”

Local legislators on hand at the fair included Sen. Jim Mathias, Del. Mary Beth Carozza and Del. Charles Otto.

“They’ve been very supportive throughout the year,” she said.

Organizers were also pleased with the financial support from the community.

“Our cake auction was a great suc-

(June 29, 2017) A kayaker discovered a body in the Pocomoke River at 10:30 a.m. Monday in the waters between Byrd Park in Snow Hill and Shad Landing in the Pocomoke State Park, according to Lt. Ed Schreier of the Worcester County Sheriff’s office.

Schreier said the body belonged to James Showell, 64, of Snow Hill, who was identified by fingerprint information. The body had been transferred to the medical examiner’s office in Baltimore for identification Tuesday, and to determine his cause of death, which has not yet been determined.

Schreier said the remains had been in the water for a few days.

The sheriff’s office, assisted by the Snow Hill Volunteer Fire Company, removed the man from the river.

Anyone with information is asked to contact the Sheriff’s office at 410-632-1112.

Manos appeals to volunteer spirit of Berlin, Worcester

■ HABITAT FOR HUMANITY continued wavering support, both for this project and for the organization.

“This is a first for our Habitat for Humanity affiliations and a first for a lot of Habitat for Humanity affiliates,” Bowland said on Friday. “It provides us the opportunity to put affordable housing in a downtown corridor by providing a mixed-use space, and it also provides something that is very needed in Berlin, which is business space.”

She said more fundraising for the project would be announced shortly.

Berlin Mayor Gee Williams told the crowd they were all “lucky kids,” regardless of age, to be a part of the Berlin community right now.

“Berlin is experiencing tonight ... because we don’t limit ourselves based on what we think is possible, but what we believe we can do together. Don’t ever forget that,” he said. “Citizenship, change for the better, a community that cares for each other – these are all things that require citizens who are participants in America. And I hope that we can be an example, just like tonight, of what is possible.”

He said he was proud to work with Habitat for Humanity and called the corner building the nonprofit planned to build “an intersection of social progress and the arts and of commercial vitality.”

‘We don’t limit ourselves based on what we think is possible, but what we believe we can do together.’

Berlin Mayor
Gee Williams

“How lucky are we,” he said. “I thank every one of you for your support for this project and for all of the things that you make possible.”

Habitat Board President Matthew Manos thanked the donors and businesses that made the event possible and called on attendees to volunteer in future efforts.

He said the nonprofit needed people to help coordinate sponsorship programs and work with local businesses, to help with marketing and graphic design, and to assist with logistics.

Partner families need help with “demystifying the process” of homeownership, Manos said, including explaining insurance, escrow, loan repayment. He said volunteers with construction backgrounds were needed to build Habitat properties, and others were needed to help build and nurture relationships at trade shows and connect with local churches and faith-based organizations.

“All of that factors into what we do as an affiliate,” he said. “If you know people who want to get involved, tell them to reach out to Andrea through our website or talk to one of us on the board and we’ll definitely find ways to get you all involved,” he said.

Horn: ‘What happened to ... financial accountability?’

pool, and she took issue with changes to the beach club parking policy and the installation of a pirate ship playground at Mumford’s Landing. She also brought up newly introduced fees for pickleball players at the community gym, the projected $170,000 salary in job listings for a new general manager and a roughly $273,000 deficit in the last budget.

Colette Horn

“What happened to that financial accountability we were promised? What happened to those sound business practices? Where’s that promise of principled leadership? Whose agenda did all that serve?” she asked.

Crosariol said she is a lifelong resident of Ocean Pines and has cultivated many good relationships.

“As a multiyear homeowner and a local business owner, I’m seeking to serve on a board that wants to promote a vision for our community as well as encourage first-time homebuyers who want to live here not to be scared their home and livelihood would be scrutinized.”

She said amenities should be self-sustaining, “not a financial burden on our community.”

“Ocean Pines needs real leadership, not nepotism and back channels that guide and delegate departments,” she said. “I believe in transparency for all homeowners.”

If elected, she said she would help develop a “fall and winter plan for the Cove,” implement quarterly rather than yearly budgets, and help with the transition in hiring a new general manager. She also said she would look into revitalizing the North Gate entrance and fix dilapidated community mailboxes.

“My value as a board member will be my tireless work ethic, unwavering principles and my abilities to succeed at difficult tasks,” she said. “My goal is to promote the community and its amenities to sustain the value of the community as a whole.”

Parks said the current board accomplished several notable things, including renovations to the beach club and country club, repairing several bridges and installing a new playground at Manklin Meadows.

“We’ve also, at the same time, run into some challenges,” he said. “We need to get better. We need to hold ourselves accountable. There are some things that we should’ve done that we didn’t get done, but at the very least we know that they need to be done.”

He said the focus shouldn’t be on the current situation, but “where we need to be going forward.”

“The renovations that I mentioned – they’re behind us. They’re done. The emphasis needs to be on what the community needs [and] what we need to do to benefit the community going forward,” he said.

First, Parks said the directors needed to finish the process of hiring a new general manager. He added it’s no secret there were operational deficiencies at the Cove restaurant.

“We need to seriously consider other options, bringing in a professional proprietor ... [or] consider leasing the place,” he said. “Continuing to move forward with negative revenue, even in the most profitable months, is not the way to continue to use that facility and provide services to the membership.”

He also called for the development of a new capital improvement plan and for more involvement with Ocean Pines advisory committees.

Clarke jokingly referred to himself as Bond villain “Dr. No” and took exception with Horn’s categorization of the budget.

Marty Clarke

“A $273,000 deficit in the budget? Not bad. In 2013 it was double that. It’s a guess,” he said. “This board that’s sitting today deserves our thanks. They’ve accomplished more good in Ocean Pines in the last year that I can remember since Tim Stoner.”

Stoner was the general manager of Ocean Pines from 1983-1995.

Clarke said he’s been a member of Ocean Pines since 1977, “which is why I look so old.” He said he assisted on the steering committee that wrote the

Burley Oak granted outdoor area and expanded taproom

BLC also approves license for Brewer's Café at site of former Berlin Coffee House

By Brian Gilliland
Associate Editor

(June 29, 2017) Bryan and Nicole Brushmiller had a good day at the Board of License Commissioners on Wednesday, as he was granted permission to expand his Burley Oak brewery to accommodate more people, and she was granted a license for Brewer's Café, which will take the place of Berlin Coffee House.

Each half of the couple will have to file separate tax returns as a condition of the approval.

Nicole said the concept for the café started with locally roasted coffee beans and will offer a small selection of breakfast and lunch meals, sandwiches and charcuterie, while the Brooklyn Baking Barons will handle most of the cooking.

The café will also offer craft beer and wine from local vendors, as well as selections from vendors acquired via the wholesaler's license obtained by Burley Oak. The commissioners questioned the specifics of the arrangement, but allowed it to stand.

On Bryan Brushmiller's side, the commissioners approved a major expansion to the nearly six year-old brewery.

"The tourist market has increased exponentially," Bryan Brushmiller said. "People walk in, turn around and walk out, and the numbers increase daily. I'm here all based on need and increased demand."

Brushmiller stated Burley Oak would continue to not serve food at the establishment to push people out into Berlin to find a meal.

He was seeking, and was approved, to expand the outdoor beer garden from 900 square feet to 3,000 square feet and install a stage based on one in Ocean City designed to mitigate noise levels.

He also received approval to convert a portion of an existing building used for storage into a secondary taproom.

The original taproom will remain unchanged.

As for entertainment, Burley Oak was granted an increase from a four-piece to a six-piece band to allow bluegrass and folk groups to perform.

The hours that Brushmiller can host entertainment were also adjusted. Monday through Friday he is allowed outdoor music from 7-10 p.m., where it was only allowed until 7 p.m. previously. On Sundays entertainment can begin at noon and last until 10 p.m.

Brushmiller said he's never had a noise complaint from adjacent residents or businesses.

"Our neighbors are our customers," he said, and observed he had nothing to gain by angering his customers.

SUBMITTED GRAPHIC/BAYSIDE GAZETTE

The proposed site plan for the expansion of Berlin's Burley Oak Brewing Co. approved by the Board of License Commissioners last week. The outdoor beer garden will more than triple in size, add a stage and a building currently used for storage will become a secondary tap room to meet increased demand.

Former Snow Hill councilman M. Pruitt weighs next steps

Said to be considering run for county commissioner, or mayor if Dorman retires

By Greg Ellison
Staff Writer

(June 29, 2017) Michael Pruitt, who opted to step down after completing two terms on the Snow Hill council, has a generally positive perspective on his time in office – despite harboring a few regrets.

“I’m a tough grader, but I often joke that I give myself a C-plus as a first-time council person,” he said.

In March, Pruitt, a longtime educator with Worcester County Schools, put his money where his mouth is when he honored a pledge not to pursue a third term in office if a minority community member would run in his place.

On May 2, LaToya Purnell defeated Sylvester Dale, both African-Americans, to become the next Western District representative on the Snow Hill Council.

After serving a pair of two-year terms, Pruitt is grateful his vision to increase minority representation on the council came to fruition.

“I’m stepping away on good terms with the mayor, council, the staff and citizens,” he said.

Despite the warm and fuzzy sentiments, Pruitt appreciates there are challenges facing Snow Hill that need to be addressed.

“We still own too much property,” he said.

Pruitt also feels Worcester County and Snow Hill need to examine the economic impact of having the county base of operations in town.

“Every time they take a house or lot for their expansion it hurts us some,” he said. “With the school properties, office buildings, lots, [and] courts combined with churches and cemeteries, our property tax base is somewhat limited.”

Other points of concern Pruitt highlighted include the historic district boundaries, which he feels are excessive, as well as budgetary issues.

“We still spend over 60 percent of the budget on salaries and benefits,” he said.

Speed cameras are also a point of contention for Pruitt.

“Ours gets speeders as they leave town ... what’s wrong with that picture?” he said. “I haven’t been pinched yet, by the way.”

On a positive note, Pruitt feels encouraged that the mayor and council are continuing to foster home ownership and reduce the number of blighted properties.

Other areas Pruitt looks forward to seeing develop further include sewer and wastewater service, along with infrastructure and road repairs.

“In the future, I hope we can begin a dialogue about a sidewalk program that won’t be too costly for our citizens,” he said.

Looking back on his time in office, Pruitt is proud to have spent two terms on the council, in addition to two spells on the Snow Hill Planning and Zoning Commission. Additionally, Pruitt is honored to have volunteered for seven years with the Snow Hill Volunteer Fire Company.

“I did close to 100 volunteer ambulance runs per year,” he said.

As for his next steps, Pruitt has a few notions, but has yet to reach a firm decision.

“I’ve been encouraged to run for county commissioner, but I’m not leaning that way at the moment,” he said.

Staying on more familiar ground is also a possibility Pruitt is entertaining.

“In the next months I’m going to weigh running for mayor, when Charlie (Dorman) is done, versus staying behind the scenes and just being Mike Pruitt,” he said.

Regardless of the direction he heads, Pruitt will remain an involved member in the community.

“I like helping people, period,” he said.

Organizers plan to reevaluate event before setting ‘18 date

■ COUNTY FAIR continued cess,” she said. “We raised over $1,400 dollars and that is our fair fundraiser out there.”

Despite the substantial figure, Morris said the event wouldn’t survive without the innumerable sponsors who help finance the massive undertaking.

Looking forward, Morris said the fair board would reconvene in mid-July to mull over when to stage the event next year.

“We’ll make a determination on the date,” she said. “Are we going to stick with the June date or should we go back to our original?”

She also noted the June dates were not the only considered.

“When we looked at changing the fair we looked at so many dates and what was going on in the area,” she said. “Actually, we were kind of hoping to go with October.”

Next month’s fair board meeting will review all aspects of the event, Morris said.

“We’re going to sit down and reevaluate everything from vendors to livestock,” she said. “We try some new things. Sometimes they work and sometimes they don’t.”

Clarke: due diligence saved OPA ‘hundreds of thousands’

original condominium act in Maryland, which evolved into the Homeowner’s Association Act that governs Ocean Pines today.

“I’m proud that I was elected in 2007 to serve on the board of directors and again in 2012,” he said. “I have a reputation in Ocean Pines of being sort of a pig-headed gadfly. You know, I’ll take it. My due diligence and commitment to the membership has saved us hundreds of thousands of dollars in the last 12 years. I treat every dollar of your assessment money like it was mine.”

Responding to a question about Ocean Pines finances, several candidates panned the current fiscal year budget.

Parks said he didn’t vote for the budget because it increased labor costs by $791,000.

“We didn’t do anything materially different in the operation than we did the year before,” he said. “I had a very tough time swallowing the idea of that kind of increase.”

Clarke said he could have lowered assessments $100 – easily.

“I think we’re doing an all right job, but we need to do a really good budget, and if the assessment goes down, God bless America,” he said.

Still, he said the board had a difficult task in crafting that budget because of what it inherited.

“It’s hard to remember the goal is to clean out the sewer when you’re fighting off the alligators,” he said. “They were all basically new.”

Horn, returning to the budget shortfall, argued it was not OK to miss by that much.

“If we do that every year, where are we going to make those funds up? Eventually it’s going to come back on increased assessments,” she said. “We need to be accountable.”

Two candidates, Clarke and Parks, advocated closing the yacht club during the winter to save money.

“In the last six months, the yacht club has lost $328,000,” Clarke said. “If this was our money ... I don’t think there’s one of us crazy enough to open up in the offseason to lose $328,000. It makes zero business sense.”

He said he would close the yacht club from the end of September until April.

Nicole Crosariol

“If it was our money, yours and mine, would we open up to lose $328,000? No we wouldn’t,” Clarke said. “Asking the 8,400 people that aren’t here to do it is criminal.”

Parks said picking a reasonable timeframe for closing the facility would help cut losses.

“We understand what the fixed costs would be while the building is closed,” he said. “The other thing is that now that the Tern’s Grille is available, that could be a potential option for others to go to with regard to not having that

Crosariol: right mgmt. would help sustain yacht club

yacht club, and that is a year-round building.”

Horn said it wasn’t fair to the people who paid $5 million for the new club, to shut it down for half of the year.

“There are a lot of people in this community who rely on that as a meeting place,” she said. “I’m a girl from Wisconsin and having a meeting place in the winter time when you can’t meet up with your friends outdoors is a very important value.”

The real problem, she said, was poor management, quality and service. She compared the club to Camden Yards and said success during the summer months should pay to keep the lights on for the rest of the year.

Crosariol said being open consistently and having the right management was key.

“Most of us, if we want to go out to eat [during the winter], we drive to Ocean City and there’s not much to choose from. So why not have some place right at home?” she said. “We can still gather and be that community when we don’t have a place outdoors to go to.

“Even having some weekly night specials like every other restaurant and bar does during the offseason would help bring people in, and I think that would help sustain it enough over time, with the right management,” Crosariol continued.

Clarke again returned to previous comments by Horn, this time focusing on the Baltimore Orioles analogy.

“Peter Angelos, the owner of the Orioles, has never done anything – anything – that doesn’t make money,” he said. “A couple people that don’t know anything about business – the Phillips family, the Harrison family, the people that own Embers, the Harmans at Fish Tails – they all close in the wintertime. I wonder why? Is that because they’re dumb? No, it’s because we’re dumb.”

Asked about community involvement, Parks returned to the subject of Ocean Pines advisory committees.

“We have them. They seem to, in some cases, provide a benefit, but I don’t think the board is taking enough advantage of advisory committees,” he said.

Horn said the inaccessibility of meetings was a detriment to community participation. She said they were difficult for weekend and otherwise part-time residents to attend, and caused many to feel disenfranchised.

“I think we can look at scheduling the meetings at different times that make it more accessible,” she said. “We need to look at options such as live streaming with interactive capability ... the other thing we need to look at is allowing for written input for people. The bylaws require that we publicize, in advance, what the meetings are going to

Directors at odds over what happened, what was reported

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 29, 2017) Ocean Pines Association Board President Tom Herrick began a meeting last Friday by refuting an editorial recently printed in this paper.

Slobodan Trendic

The subject of the editorial was a closed board meeting on June 19.

"It's unfortunate, but I feel the need to address yet another misrepresentation of fact by one of our local newspapers, in an opinion column," Herrick said. "And I'd like to add the truth and clarity regarding this issue for the benefit of our membership, as it affect the majority of your board of directors."

"One of the reasons for the reasons for the closed board meeting this past week was to discuss management concerns and board member contact with staff. Our attorney was contacted to discuss the content of these conversations that were conducted with a number of our staff members, and he advised it would be right and proper for our board to discuss this matter in a closed session."

"Circumstances were not as reported in the local newspaper, and they were being classified as obvious to the writer that an employee bypassed the immediate supervisor, Brett Hill, and expressed concerns to one of our directors. But, in fact, the truth is the complete opposite. A director, repeatedly, was bypassing the acting GM and went directly to individual staff members, causing alarm to a number of our employees. These were not routine inquiries that are permitted by our bylaws.

"Some members of the board understood the need to not allow this type activity to continue, and in order to protect our association employees from this type of behavior in the future, brought the discussion to the entire board of directors for our review. I hope this clears up any previous misconceptions of what had actually transpired."

The director in question, Slobodan Trendic, took issue with several of those comments on Monday.

Trendic said he was not told in advance the board sought the opinion of an attorney. He did not know if other directors were made aware that was being done.

He said Herrick's characterization of a director "bypassing the acting GM and [going] directly to individual staff members, causing alarm" was

‘Alarming’ things conveyed by fmr. employee

“I want to clarify the perception that was created that I’m going after our acting general manager. That is absolute nonsense,” Trendic said. “I am trying to do what the community elected me to do, and that is to represent the best interest of this community. All of my actions have been motivated by that. It has nothing to do with individuals on a personal level – whether it’s the acting GM or anybody else.”

Trendic specifically objected to the claims he repeatedly bypassed Hill and violated bylaws.

He said he talked with three Ocean Pines staff members during the last several weeks in a series of “unplanned encounters.” In one instance, Trendic said he was in the administration building and walked by Hill’s office.

“I happened to observe a person in his office that I had seen for the first time,” Trendic said. “I also observed a tremendous amount of equipment in the office of the acting general manager – computer equipment, a point of sales system. The place looked like a staging lab from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.”

Curious, Trendic said he walked in to say “hello” and the person introduced himself as the new information technology manager.

“I congratulated him on his hiring and welcomed him aboard, and I told him I hoped he was also working on fixing the network and firewall problems that we’ve been having recently,” he said. “His reply to me was, no, he is not, because that is not his area of expertise. I wished him good luck and walked out of the office. That was it.”

He said the second encounter was with another staff member and occurred “shortly after I learned about the surveillance cameras placed in private offices” in the administration building.

“I felt, after the board was accused of allowing such surveillance to take place, that it was my duty to go and find out and see for myself what’s going on,” Trendic said. “I want to go on the record and state that I had no knowledge of the cameras being in place in the private offices and if that was ever brought to the board’s attention I would have absolutely voted against such action taking place.”

Trendic said cameras with audio and video capabilities were installed in the offices of the general manager, director of finance and payroll director. He did not know why they were installed.

“I wanted to see for myself, so I went into the office of the director of finance and I observed a new person in that room, a former chairman of the budget and finance committee,” Trendic said.

John Viola was announced as the new chief financial officer, replacing Mary Bosack, on May 22. He was previously the chairman of the budget and finance committee.

“I congratulated him and then asked him if he knew anything about the camera and where the camera was,” Trendic said. “He pointed the camera out to me and then we had a chat and I wished him good luck.”

At the time, Trendic said he observed the camera in that office was not active.

“I went around the corner to the [payroll] office to see the third camera and the person that works in that office happened to be there,” he said. “I observed the camera to be still on, the light was on, and I proceeded to ask her whether she gave any consent and whether she was aware the camera had audio capability. I will not comment on what her answer was.”

Trendic said that was the only interaction he had with that staffer, or with the new IT manager.

He declined to comment whether any staff members had reached out to him, but said he objected to the notion that he caused alarm.

“The feedback I got is that many employees are happy that I am a director and that I am available, and they feel that my interaction is a breath of fresh air,” he said. “They felt comfortable and hopeful knowing that a director was paying attention to what’s going on, which is the reason I requested that we immediately put in HR support onsite so that staff has the ability to reach out to somebody in absolute confidentiality and express their concerns.

“I, as an individual director, have set a deadline by this Friday expecting this to happen, and if it doesn’t I want a good explanation why,” Trendic added.

Trendic said he contact one former employee, Bosack, immediately upon hearing she had resigned and that Hill accepted her resignation.

“When I reached out to her, she was no longer an employee of the association. I had a lengthy conversation with her and the information she conveyed to me was, to use Director Herrick's word, alarming – in a true sense," Trendic said. "It was very, very, very alarming – enough to raise the hair on anybody's head."

He and another director met with Bosack on the day after her departure.

"I know there's been a lot of speculation about a recording of her meeting with the acting general manager," Trendic said. "I can speak for myself that I'm aware of such recording."

Trendic reiterated, firmly, he did not violate any Ocean Pines bylaws.

"These statements by Director Herrick are very disappointing to me," he said. "It appears there is an attempt to intimidate me. I don't know why, because all of my conduct has been always honest, truthful and in the best interest of the association."

He said again that he had no foreknowledge of cameras being installed in the administration building.

"I believe this should not have been decided at the association level by the acting general manager. This is a policy decision," he said. "And there's a big difference between this and installing cameras as a surveillance in public spaces where the public gathers, like the yacht club or one of our restaurants. When you place three audio and video cameras in private offices, I consider that a policy decision – which I would never have approved."

"It was a sad set of circumstances the board had to deal with," Trendic continued. "Maybe if the board had allowed for a closed session two months ago when I called for one, much of this could have been addressed, discussed and resolved prior to creating a controversy in the community, which is what we are now facing."

Trendic added he was not aware of any disciplinary actions taken against him, and said did not fall into any of the categories in Ocean Pines bylaws that allow for the removal of a director: possessing a conflict of interest, missing three consecutive meetings or being delinquent on assessments.

"A lot of members of the community have reached out to me since that [June 19] meeting and asked me if I was still a director. My reply to them was I am and I will continue to be as long as the community wants me to be," Trendic said.

Berlin approves more funding for stormwater

Grants continue to pay for bulk of work; money also earmarked for WYFCS, D3

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 29, 2017) The Berlin mayor and Town Council approved $396,470 for the William Street culvert replacement, a major stormwater project, at their meeting on Monday.

Darl Kolar from EA Engineering, Science and Technology Inc., the town's consulting firm on stormwater projects, said the contract would be awarded to low bidder Goody Hill Groundwork, from Berlin.

Most of the funding for the project came from grants from FEMA and the Department of Natural Resources. Kolar said the work on William Street, part of a larger three-phase effort on town-wide stormwater mitigation, would benefit the Hudson Branch area by widening the old culvert and providing immediate relief in the area near the town electric plant.

He said town stormwater improvements, including finished work on Flower Street, ongoing efforts on West Street and planned improvements on Graham, Grice and Nelson streets, would benefit, but perhaps not eliminate area flooding, which has been a major problem for several decades.

He added issues with utilities in each area were making the work difficult.

"I would say reduced, [but would] be hesitant to say significantly reduced," Kolar said. "When we get over to Franklin and Nelson, it's really difficult. There are a utilities there [and] we have utility conflicts going through."

Kolar said engineering models show the entire culvert system in the town is undersized and said upgrading it would take time – and patience.

"[It will be] considerably reduced, but we still have a ways to go," he said. "There's numerous areas that haven't really been addressed. We're going to continue to seek funding."

Berlin Mayor Gee Williams said the stormwater utility in Berlin is not going away, adding that upgrading the system is an ongoing project.

Administrative Services Director Mary Bohlen reported that the cost for all three phases of improvements is about $1.9 million, with all but about $60,000 covered by grants. The town, either through matching funds or in-kind services, covered the remaining portion.

"It's a pretty good deal," Bohlen said.

The council also unanimously approved annual contracts for Worcester Youth and Family Counseling Services, $40,300, and to D3 for website maintenance and design, $1,500.

A contract with Cards Technology, for monthly services to the town, was also approved. The amount of the contract was not announced.

Berlin A&E hopes donors will help keep mural going

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 29, 2017) The Berlin Arts and Entertainment Committee is about halfway to funding another panel for its continuing public mural effort.

Committee treasurer Patty Gregorio said a $1,500 grant from the Worcester County Arts Council and public donations account for nearly half the $5,000 cost of the next panel of a planned five-panel series. Worcester County Tourism also provided a donation.

Two panels have been completed. The mural is attached to the north-facing wall of the Berlin Visitor's Center on 14 South Main Street.

The committee is hoping additional donations help close the gap in time for the Berlin Peach Festival on Aug. 5.

"Our plan is to set up the next panel at the Peach Festival, where visitors and everyone in the community can come and paint on it," Gregorio said.

Muralist John Donato will continue to organize the mural effort, she said.

"He's going to be conducting and we're going to try to get the crowd involved in it. He's going to incorporate

The first two panels of a public mural hang on the north-facing wall of the Berlin Visitor's Center on Main Street. the Peach Festival and its history into the mural itself," she said. "We want it to be a community event where everyone can come out and paint, or even if they don't want to paint to come out and watch. The whole process of how he develops this mural is just amazing."

For that to happen, however, the committee needs to meet its goal.

"We are looking for a donor or donors to step forward and help us, so we can make it happen. If we don't get the money, then we have to return the grant money [because] it was specifically written for the Peach Festival," Gregorio said.

Gregorio said the fourth panel would be done in collaboration with the Germantown School Community Heritage Center.

Crofoot bids fond farewell to council during final meeting

City manager/city attorney will have last day July 5; city clerk will be interim

By Greg Ellison
Staff Writer

(June 29, 2017) The Pocomoke City Council and Mayor Bruce Morrison confirmed the departure date for outgoing City Manger/City Attorney Ernie Crofoot during its meeting last Monday.

Morrison said Crofoot’s final day would be July 5.

This followed the council’s vote to cancel its regularly scheduled meeting on July 3 because of the impending holiday. The next council meeting will be held on July 17.

While acknowledging this would be his final council meeting, Crofoot, who came on board in August 2015, thanked the assembled members for the opportunity

“It would be an understatement to say that it’s been a very interesting 22 months, but it has,” he said. “I’ve learned a lot from you all and the town.”

Crofoot announced on June 7 he would be vacating the city manager/city attorney position.

“We agreed to a bi-party agreement for termination of services,” he said at that time.

Crofoot also offered effusive praise for the rank-and-file employees in Pocomoke City.

“It’s been a cooperative and friendly experience working with them,” he said. “The guy digging the trenches all the way up to the department heads.”

Councilman George Tasker noted that city employees revered Crofoot.

“I never heard any of the employees complain about you,” he said. “I appreciate the time that we had.”

Pocomoke City is currently advertising the position on its website. The job posting seeks a “progressive visionary leader with a strong, service-oriented approach to managing municipal operations.”

The position requires candidates to be seasoned professionals, with at least 10 years of experience in a comparable role, who are “engaged and visible within the community.”

Morrison said applications are currently being reviewed and interviews should begin in early July.

“We’re hoping to have a candidate start by September 1,” he said.

In the meantime Morrison said City Clerk Carol Sullivan would serve as interim city manager.

Ocean Pines directors call for HR support

Board discussion stemmed from closed meeting held on June 19, Trendic says

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 29, 2017) The need to bring human resources support to Ocean Pines took on a sense of urgency during an Ocean Pines Association Board meeting Friday, although one director noted the position had been sought after for years.

Director Slobodan Trendic said the discussion stemmed from a closed board meeting on June 19.

“Upon completion of the closed session, the board resumed to an open session around 9 p.m. ... at which time the board discussed the HR support as being one of their concerns,” he said. “This was as a result of several weeks of events that took place, some of which were reported in the local media, and it became evident the association is clearly in need of having some kind of a dedicated HR support that will be of benefit not only to association management, but also to the staff itself.”

By the end of that meeting, Trendic said the board decided to look into “recruiting an experienced HR consultant that will be available onsite for a temporary period of time until the new GM is hired.”

Director Doug Parks underscored the need for support sooner than later.

“I don’t want this process to take three months – I want this process to take a week, if possible,” he said. “That might seem a little bit outrageous, but I think it’s important that we cannot sit on this. I think we’ve agreed to it, I think it’s the right decision and I think we need to close on making sure we deliver this in a very short period of time, so as to not let other things come up in the interim.”

Interim General Manager Brett Hill said members of the law firm Lerch Early & Brewer would be onsite during the next two weeks to start training association staff on the new Ocean Pines handbook.

He hinted the firm was also asked to help vet any human resources hire. One potential candidate, discussed during the closed session, was apparently not available this week.

Board Vice President Dave Stevens said the association wanted to hire a human resources professional since his first year on the board – which was more than a decade ago.

County Board of Education adopts budget

Fiscal year 2018 document totals more than $84M, includes $3M in increases

By Kara Hallissey
Staff Writer

(June 29, 2017) Worcester County Board of Education members approved the public school system’s fiscal year 2018 operating budget of more than $84 million during their June 20 meeting, following the budget’s June 6 adoption by the Worcester County Commissioners.

The financial package includes an increase of more than $3 million from the previous fiscal period.

“Our hard work and open communication [made the difference],” Superintendent Lou Taylor said. “This was the first time the budget was funded entirely by our county. I take pride in that and it is one example of how we are strengthening every child’s education.”

Eligible employees received a step increase and there was a restoration of the fiscal year 2012 mid-year step increase. In addition, there was a 1-percent increase on salary-scale adjustments and an improvement to starting teacher salaries.

The budget included a 5-percent increase in insurance costs and a 1-percent increase in salaries for bus contractors.

Three spare contractor buses were purchased for field trips in addition to a few new replacement buses.

Rounding out the fiscal year 2018 budget was $566,100 in capital project money, which includes the addition of a shaded swing to Cedar Chapel Special School’s courtyard and replacing two energy management systems.

Pocomoke murder suspect will face jury trial, Sept. 6

By Greg Ellison
Staff Writer

(June 29, 2017) Darryl K. Wise, 26, of Pocomoke, who faces the possibility of life without parole on murder charges, as of last week is still seeking legal counsel.

Wise, who is accused in the murder of Deontre' Bailey, 23, also of Pocomoke, had an initial appearance in Circuit Court last Wednesday in Snow Hill.

According to Maryland State Police Homicide Unit investigators, Wise was engaged in a discussion on the front porch of a residence in the 100-block of Fourth Street just before 10 p.m. on April 19. Shortly after this police said a group of individuals, including Bailey, walked up and joined the conversation on the porch.

Investigators said witnesses saw Bailey throw a bottle at Wise, striking him in the chest, at which point a violent altercation ensued that ultimately resulted in Wise shooting Bailey with a handgun.

During the circuit court hearing last week, Judge Richard Bloxom first advised Wise of his rights under the law and reviewed the pending charges, which include: first and second-degree murder, manslaughter, first and second-degree assault, and use of a firearm in a violent crime.

Wise previously made an appearance in district court in June 16, at which point the case was transferred to circuit court because of the nature of the charges.

After being questioned in circuit court by Bloxom regarding his legal representation, Wise explained that his although his family had been able to retain a private lawyer for the June 16 appearance, the cost had thereafter become prohibitive.

"Right now my family is making arrangements to get me a private attorney," he said.

When Bloxom pressed for a more detailed timeframe, Wise admitted he was unsure at this point.

Bloxom explained if retaining private counsel were problematic, the state would provide legal representation. He also noted Wise could represent himself in court.

"You need to apply immediately to the office of the public defender," he said.

Bloxom also stressed the gravity of the charges, noting that a first-degree murder conviction can result in a life sentence.

"The state could also seek life without parole," he said.

Concurring with Bloxom's advice, Wise said he would immediately pursue obtaining a public defender.

The next scheduled appearances for Wise are on Aug. 9, for a motion hearing, with a jury trial scheduled on Sept. 6.

Berlin Briefs

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor
(June 29, 2017) The Berlin mayor and council discussed the following items during a public meeting at Town Hall on Monday:

Conduit financing

The council voted unanimously to approve several measures related to conduit financing of revenue bonds for Atlantic General Hospital, including a resolution on “post-issuance tax compliance producers for conduit tax-exempt obligations.”

Lindsey Rader from Baltimore firm Funk & Bolton explained the somewhat dense process of the town helping the nonprofit hospital secure the lowest possible rates for a bond, at no cost or burden to the taxpayers, and a public hearing was opened and closed without comment.

Berlin Mayor Gee Williams joked the official resolution, numbered 2017-06, was “basically is just what Lindsey said it was.”

“I’m not even going to summarize,” he said with a laugh.

Parks code overhaul

Administrative Services Director Mayor Bohlen delivered for a first reading key changes to a chapter of town code related to parks and recreation. She said the Berlin Parks Commission approved the changes.

Those included adding a previously omitted section of definitions of terms specific to the parks, allowing alcohol at parks events at the discretion of the council, adding procedures for reserving parks and specific sections of parks for events, and allowing bicycles in the parks.

Town Attorney David Gaskill was asked to consider additional language that would address drone use in the parks. He cautioned some study and discussion should be done and said there were beneficial uses for drones in the community.

“I think this is not something that should be done on the fly,” he said.

A public hearing on the code changes will be held during the next Town Council meeting, July 10.

Town projects

Planning Director Dave Engelhart said road closures on Seahawk Road and Harrison Avenue, both of which were related to utility installation, had finished.

He said earthwork on the new AGH cancer center had started, foundation footings were approved for the new Berlin library, and the new police department building was now enclosed.

A new Shoreline auto dealership on Route 50 is expected to open by the middle of July, Engelhart said.

Social media milestone

Economic and Community Development Director Ivy Wells said the town Facebook page had garnered more than 10,000 likes, as of Monday morning.

“That’s a pretty big milestone,” Wells said.

Developer announces Bay Terrace renovations wrapped

Gilkerson says affordable housing complex helped to rejuvenate community

(June 29, 2017) Gillis Gilkerson general contracting announced it has completed the renovation of the Bay Terrace affordable housing community at 517 Bay Street in Berlin.

"This project gave us the opportunity to be a part of rejuvenating a community for its residents and their families," Dwight Miller, president of Gillis Gilkerson, said. "A vote of confidence from a returning customer indicates we are delivering a quality product which meets their needs and makes me very proud of our team."

The project included the rehabilitation of 32 apartment units consisting of one-, two-, three- and four-bedroom units in three, two-story wood framed buildings. Selective exterior and interior demolition of existing materials and finishes was initiated along with renovations to concrete, wood framing, wood roof trusses, shingles, siding and trim.

The team also replaced windows, interior doors and interior finishes including sheet vinyl, vinyl plank and kitchen and bathroom cabinetry. New plumbing fixtures, lighting and electrical equipment were also installed. A single story wood-framed building was also rehabilitated for a new community center, which includes a community room equipped with computers and an outdoor playground.

"The owner was very satisfied with the performance of Gillis Gilkerson," Tim Barila, vice president of Severn Development Company, said. "The residents are thrilled with the renovations. You can't believe the transformation that took place. You honestly wouldn't recognize it as the same community. We have a history of successful projects with Gillis Gilkerson and look forward to the next project."

This was one of several projects Gillis Gilkerson was hired to complete for Severn Development Company. Others include Jefferson Apartments in Lewes, Delaware, Victoria Estates in Berlin and Federalsburg Square Apartments in Denton, Maryland.

The Gillis Gilkerson managing team that delivered the project on time included project manager Robin Steininger, operations manager Wayne Porter and superintendents Mike Funk and Dale Reinhold.

Advantages to annexation

When a town annexes property adjacent to its borders, it isn't always about expanding its tax base, encouraging commercial or residential growth, or seeking change in the nature of the community.

In many instances, these things might be factors in deciding to bring swaths of property into the municipal embrace, but towns also pursue annexations for the opposite reason: to protect the nature of the community.

That, as Berlin Planning Commission member Pete Cosby observed during the most recent session of that body, is a major consideration in the town's early contemplations of whether the town limits should be extended to include the Gerardi property on the western end of Route 346 and Route 50.

The frequently overlooked advantage of annexation is that it gives communities more control over how a property is developed. More than one community on this peninsula will bear witness to that fact, as they helplessly watched rapid growth erupt on their perimeters just beyond their regulatory grasp.

The Route 1 commercial strip/Rehoboth Beach dichotomy, for instance, is a result of that.

Also, as Cosby and commission member Newt Chandler pointed out, the area has been designated a growth area by country government, which means some kind of development could occur there at some point with or without Berlin's involvement.

Given that situation, Berlin officials would be derelict not to talk about the prospect of annexing the property, and they need to do that unencumbered by preconceived notions of where that might lead.

Determining what county planning officials envision for this growth area, as the commission intends to do, is the logical next step.

Ocean Pines looking like D.C.

Editor,

So here we are. We have leadership who have been caught in blatant lies and who may have illegally audio-taped employees.

Who fired management because they stood in the way of jamming through a technology conversion without competition, even though management oversaw the best year financially in decades.

Who has fired several excellent long tenured employees and given bogus reasons for their departures, even saying they were taking vacation.

And who have been allowed to do this, without the intervention of several others in leadership, who were advised of these indiscretions.

These acts were revealed by an employee brought in to take over for our controller of over 35 years and the new employee was paid $40,000 more. The majority also fired the previous general manager, because he made too much money. The majority hired an expert head hunter to find someone to fill the position and the expert said the position should carry a salary almost $20,000 more than the previous GM was making.

Sound like Washington D.C.? Unfortunately, it's right here in Ocean Pines.

This current board majority and interim general manager have put this community in a possible position to be sued. Their actions might cost us, the members of this community, to open our wallets and pay for their antics.

They had the opportunity to take care of this situation, when the matter of the audio/video taping of employees was brought to them, but the board majority chose to stay silent and hope the matter would go away.

And that majority includes Doug Parks, who is on the current board and is running again to retain his seat. He had the opportunity to join directors Trendic and Jacobs and rectify the situation, but he decided to stick with the majority and do nothing.

And now Marty Clarke is trying to come back on the board because even though his buddies on the board followed through on things he wanted done, they didn't cut the budget enough, to his liking, to where we won't have money to do things that still need to be done. So he will come back to save the day! Clarke and Dave Stevens have been parts of the last 15 boards.

They are partially responsible for the decay in our facilities. Clarke wants to renovate 45-year-old buildings which actually cost us more in the long run than building new, and Stevens gets nothing done because he had paralysis by analysis. Study things to death which stalls any progress.

We have spent $75,000 on several reserve studies, at Stevens' request, and nothing has been done with them because they didn't say what he wanted. They all keep saying our reserves are in the "poor" range.

So Clarke wants to lower them even more. That way nothing gets done and he is happy with that.

Clarke's buddies on the board fired the general manager of six years, outside legal team of 30 years and outside auditing firm of over 20 years even though they were all doing a good job, all of which Clarke had wanted to do over the years. I haven't now or have ever heard a good justification for any of these.

But Clarke will go to his alternative facts sights of the “Forum” and “Progress” to push his bogus theories. He has done this for years, mostly without any fact-checking from either source. I worked for four years directly beside Clarke and personally I can’t believe a word he says. It seems like it’s not about the truth with him, and not about the good of the community, it’s about winning. If he has an idea, doesn’t matter if it’s right or wrong, it’s about him winning the argument.

I have kept pages of notes on things he has said in taped meetings, in the paper and on the “Forum” which were completely false, but he goes by the adage if you say something enough times people will believe it. A perfect example of this was last year everyone received a postcard saying untrue things about Pat Supik. This card was signed by “Beth.”

After the election, Clarke admitted to being responsible for the postcard, using the name “Beth” and saying that is one of several names he has used in the past. And I understand our new lawyer might have advised the leadership to get rid of the taping equipment and destroy the audio tapes which may be the basis for the lawsuit.

I care deeply about our community and hope it succeeds beyond any of our expectations. Therefore, I believe we need a change away from those who keep coming back to inhibit progress. I personally will vote for faces who are new and excited for the challenge. Enough with the old biases and buddy system. I’m voting for two who have not been on the board before and who might breath some fresh air into the place.

Excitement for new Berlin branch library

Editor,

Anticipation and excitement for the new Worcester County Library - Berlin Branch was evident at the groundbreaking ceremony held on June 6.

Many state, county, and town officials were in attendance to show their support of the project. The State of Maryland, Worcester County, and the Town of Berlin have all provided funding for the new branch. The Worcester County Library and the Worcester County Library Foundation are thankful for their commitment to the project.

We are also very grateful to the many members of the community who have made personal and business donations to make this project a reality. The Humphreys Foundation provided two major donations to the Library Foundation, which initiated the fundraising campaign. The Berlin Library Fundraising Committee, a sub-committee of the Library Foundation; the Friends of the Berlin Library; and library staff members have worked diligently to raise awareness and funds.

The Worcester County Library Foundation is on track to raise $425,000 for the new Berlin branch library. With significant funding from county and state government, and local donations from individuals, families, civic organizations, and businesses, the $6.25 million dollar Berlin branch library project is underway at 13 Harrison Avenue.

The Bricks-to-Books fundraising campaign continues for those who would like to purchase a brick with a customized message, quote, or name of a loved one. By working together, we are building a wonderful new library to be enjoyed by generations to come.

Ocean Pines Association Briefs

By Josh Davis

Associate Editor

(June 29, 2017) The Ocean Pines Association Board of Directors discussed the following items during a public meeting in the community center last Friday:

Absence

Board Treasurer Pat Supik was not present at the meeting because of a previous commitment, according to Board President Tom Herrick. He said Supik told him there were no monthly financials to report and asked to delete that item from the agenda.

Several other items were added to the agenda, including the appointment of John O'Connor as chairman of the budget and finance committee, two capital purchase requests for golf course mowers, a discussion item related to the Parke community and discussion of food and beverage operations.

The revised agenda was approved unanimously, 6-0.

GM Report

Interim General Manager Brett Hill said a new summer menu was introduced at Mumford's Landing and extended summer hours had started at the beach club.

He said a portable outdoor stage on the patio at Mumford's Landing would be finished next week and would look similar to the tiki bar there.

Hill said bulkheads, a topic many residents brought up during a recent town hall meeting, were being addressed. He said public works staff contacted homeowners in areas of concern and a contractor was being used for emergency repairs. Scheduled replacement of bulkheads could begin this fall, he said.

Renovations continue at the country club, where the first-floor remodeling is about 80 percent complete. Work on the second floor is in the permitting phase, Hill said.

He added a "borderline catastrophic" failure of computer systems had been addressed and all Ocean

Pines facilities, with the exception of the beach club, were now online.

Parke partnership

According to Stevens, the Parke Board of Directors endorsed a proposal to help reverse the decline of tree canopies in a wetland area adjacent to the Manklin Creek shopping center and asked Ocean Pines to officials to attend an exploratory meeting to address the issue. The Parke is a separate homeowner's association within Ocean Pines.

After some discussion, Stevens said he would contact both the Parke Board and the Ocean Pines Environmental and Natural Assets committee to seek more information.

Food and beverage challenges

Trendic said the board talked about challenges at the Cove, beach club and Tern Grille restaurants during a meeting on June 19. He said some directors wanted to bring in a food and beverage consultant to address certain issues.

He said he wanted to bring the matter up during an open session for the sake of transparency.

Director Cheryl Jacobs added there were staffing issues at those facilities, specifically bartenders and waitresses, and that Ocean Pines was hiring.

She said the association was addressing residents' concerns.

"We want the community to understand that we have discussed at length a lot of these issues that you've heard us talk about and we are making real efforts to bring quicker resolution to make things as good as we can for everybody," she said.

Appointments

The board unanimously approved two committee appointments: Margaret McGovern to the architectural review committee and John O'Connor as chair of the budget and finance committee.

Variety of events planned for July 4 holiday

By Kara Hallissey
Staff Writer

(June 29, 2017) From a hot dog-eating contest to patriotic concerts and fireworks, Ocean City and surrounding towns have many Independence Day celebrations taking place this weekend and on July 4.

Here are a few activities taking place this weekend:

Ocean City:

- Musical review:

A musical revue presented by the Ocean Pines Players will take place at St. Peter's Lutheran Church on 103rd Street at 5 p.m. this Saturday.

The holiday salute costs $10 for adults to attend and is free for children.

Adults and children will perform classic and modern patriotic songs in addition to dramatic readings. Special appreciation will be given to veterans and services members.

Attendees are encouraged to sing along to "50 Nifty United States," "You're a Grand Old Flag," "The Yankee Doodle Boy," "This is My Country," "Shenandoah," "What a Wonderful World," "Strike Up the Band" and "God Bless America."

There will be a powerful poem, inspiring historic words, a "wacky history" of the United States through the eyes of high school students and a song about living on Delmarva.

Kids will receive "Happy Birthday USA" goodie bags and complimentary cookies and drinks will be served during intermission.

There is limited seating. Call 410-600-0462 for more information or to make a reservation.

Funding for this event is provided in part by the Worcester County Arts Council, Maryland State Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

- Uptown Concert and Fireworks:

At Northside Park on 125th Street, Mike Hines and The Look will put on a free concert, Tuesday at 8 p.m. followed by fireworks at 9:30 p.m. The National Anthem will lead the patriotic show.

The fireworks display can be seen anywhere in the park and organizers advise spectators to arrive early.

Attendees are encouraged to bring beach chairs and blankets. Call 1-800-626-2326, 410-250-0125 or visit www.ococean.com for more information.

- Downtown Concert and Fireworks:

A free concert on the beach at Caroline Street in downtown Ocean City featuring Triple Rail Turn begins on Tuesday at 8 p.m. with a fireworks display following at 9:30 p.m.

Visitors are encouraged to bring beach chairs or blankets to claim a spot on the sand for the patriotic display.

Call 1-800-626-2326, 410-250-0125 or visit www.ococean.com for more information.

- Hot Dog-Eating Contest:

Check out the 10th annual Independence Day "Top Dog" hot dog-eating contest at Fish Tales Bar & Grill on 22nd Street, bayside, Tuesday at 1 p.m.

"Emcee [DJ] BK puts on a show himself and it's quite entertaining to watch people stuff as many hot dogs as they can in their mouths when it's 80-plus degrees outside," said Jaymie Erbe, Fish Tales manager and contest coordinator.

Anyone 18 and older who is interested in competing in the July 4 contest should stop by the 22nd Street bayside bar and restaurant any time prior to that day to quickly consume five deli-style hot dogs and buns in order to qualify for the main event.

A Fish Tales representative will time each participant, and the 20 people with the fastest times will advance.

Bacon jam key to ‘the best burger ever’

There is nothing quite like having a place that you can go to just to hang out and enjoy a beverage and a plate of food after a long day of work. No pressure; no incessant need to try to maintain any pretenses. Just you, a couple of bites of food and an ice-cold Narragansett.

By Paul Suplee,
MBA, CEC, PC-3

It has been a long week at work; truth be told, it has been a long four weeks of fun as I work through a side project that I’ve had on my docket. Luckily, my summer will begin on Saturday and I will be more than happy to sleep in a little bit, go to bed a little later and just start to relax.

As I sit at the bar of Our Harvest in Fenwick Island, I meet a lovely couple named Ty and Jenny. We compare notes on our dogs at the beach (both apparently less-than-intelligent, amazing well-bred designer dogs made for the ocean), our kids (none of them ever slept in infancy, and I mean never), and the bags under parents’ eyes that never seem to go away and the joys of living at the beach or working towards that goal. It was the perfect way to unwind after a long, long day.

It was a short respite, and as enjoyable as it was, my mind kept wandering to a day earlier in the week at a get-together at home. Despite the busy week, I had my sister and her family over for dinner and enjoyed their company while the kids played in the pool. With the grill fired up, I threw a cast iron pan on the grates to make a batch of bacon jam, a quintessential condiment for just about any burger. A simple combination of ingredients, bacon jam will soon find a way into your heart as it dresses up chicken sandwiches and pork as readily as it does a burger.

One part of the recipe, or at least a part that was essential this week, is getting lost in conversation so you forget to pull the bacon jam off. I was lucky that I didn’t burn it, as I had completely forgotten this particular batch, and when I came back, I was sure that it was toast. It was not, and in fact it had a hearty, roasted flavor. Sometimes, it’s a great thing to overcook something. Just don’t make it a habit.

This brings me to an important note on seasoning burgers, and this is a soft spot for our youngest son, Ethan. You see, Ethan has one rule about burgers, and it is critical. For the love of god, people, season the darned things, even if it’s just with salt and pepper. Season the patties. Nothing irritates the kid more than getting a burger that is tasteless, and he is sure to let me know every time that a cook doesn’t quite fulfill their obligation.

Now in my day off, I may have to fire up the grill again, as just writing this makes me hungry. During a week of heavy workload, meeting some fine people and finally taking a load off my feet, another bacon-jam laden burger may just be in order. I’ll just have to remember to forget it again, if that’s even possible.

The Best Burger Ever

Enough for four burgers

4 six-ounce burger patties (see below)

Liberal amounts of salt & pepper

8 Strips good, local bacon

4 Medium local eggs

4 ounces Bacon jam (recipe follows)

Lettuce & Tomato, as needed

Pickles (your choice) as needed

Optional condiments such as mayo, mustard, ketchup etc.

4 Brioche rolls

1. Fry the bacon on a preheated flat top griddle. set aside

2. Season the burger patties – just remember Ethan’s Rule

3. Grill to the temperature of your liking and set aside for a minute or two while you fry the eggs

4. Fry aforementioned eggs on the bacon grease-laden griddle until over easy (you can envision the yolks running down your chin)

5. Build the burger with the egg, bacon and bacon jam and with or without pickles, mayo or anything else that may or may not be on your agenda. Just build the burger

Bacon Jam

Makes about a cup

6 strips bacon, cut into little bits

1/2 med. White onion, fine julienne

3 tsp. White vinegar

3 tsp. Brown sugar

1. Place the bacon lardons (little bits) and onion in a pan and set the heat to medium. This part can be kind of frustrating if you are like me, in that it takes patience

2. Pay attention to your family, and completely forget about your bacon jam, of course assuming that your stove setting is on medium or preferably low

3. Once your onion and bacon have an uber-roasted feel to them, pull off the heat and drain

4. Add the vinegar and sugar, and salt and pepper to taste. You can make it a little loose at this point, as it will thicken as it cools down

5. Set aside until ready to use

The Patties

makes about 8 patties

2 pounds Beef brisket

1 pound Beef chuck

1. Double-grind the beef and combine well so that the flavors meld into a magical mass of meaty might

2. Break into equal portions and patty them up

3. Refrigerate until needed
