Ocean Pines BOD candidates clash at annual forum

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) Eleven of the 12 candidates for Ocean Pines Association Board of Directors met last Wednesday evening during the only association-sponsored forum of the election season.

While no one candidate scored what could be considered a knockout blow, several did differentiate themselves in terms of the issues and their approach to governance, as well as their overall view of Ocean Pines.

Newcomer George Simon, for instance, addressed the perception of dysfunction amongst the current directors and juxtaposed that with his experience in construction.

"I've seen dysfunction. We may have some issues with the board where they may not get along, but I can tell you – this is not dysfunction," he said. "If you want dysfunction you can go ... into Ocean City."

"We have a good plan here. We have a good general manager. We just need a board that can work together and get the things done in this community and save us money. That's all we need," he added.

Comprehensive Planning Committee Chairman Frank Daly said his priority was "to get the board [of directors] functioning like a board."

"Right now it functions like a sixth grade student council," he said. "We need people in there that are going to provide the right kind of oversight, demand the right kind of accountability and do the kind of in-depth work on proposals that spend your money wisely," he said.

Similarly, Tom Janasek said his priority was to get the board working together.

"There's [been] so much dissension on the boards for the past six years – there's so much infighting," he said. "You go to these meetings and ... they last two hours because people are bickering and talking. There's no negotiation on the board. There's no speaking back and forth. It drives me crazy."

Berlin to temporarily halt credit pay

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) The Town of Berlin is sending out about 2,000 letters to its utility customers this week, hoping to spread the word that credit card payments will not be able to be processed by the town for a two-to-three week period, starting July 4.

The lapse will be caused by an upgrade to the town's billing software, as it switches over from Logic Solutions to Tyler Technologies. The Town Council approved the change last May.

"Because we're changing the utility billing system – which means we're also changing credit card companies – we're going to need to suspend, for two-to-three weeks, our ability to accept credit cards," Town Administrator Laura Allen said. "This will affect all of our transactions – not just utility billing customers, but anybody who comes to town who wants to pay for, say, a building permit by credit card."

"Unfortunately, it's a little inconvenient for our customers, so we're trying to get the word out so they can plan accordingly," she added.

Allen said the town would continue to accept cash and checks for all transactions.

She was not sure how many utility customers would be affected, but said the town did not have "a ton of people signed up for online payments."

"The vast majority of our payments are by check and in cash. There's not that many by credit card," she said. "When we initially started thinking about this transition, that's where our focus was, thinking we would need to just pull the online payment down," she said. "As we worked more closely with the vendor, we realized what we would need to do is suspend the credit card payment acceptance for everything."

Along with mailing letters to its utility customers, Allen said the town would post an announcement on its website. Press releases were also issued this week.

"Not everybody is going to read those letters, so we're using various forms of communication to help get the word out," she said. "This is not an unusual element in a financial system change – it's just part of the process. It's one of many moving pieces that we have with the utility billing change."

Allen said the changeover would take several weeks because of the complexity of switching so many town systems.

While it's a temporary inconvenience for customers, she said the benefit would be better service, including new bills that will be easier to read. The new systems will feature detailed usage charts that will allow utility customers to compare current activity to their service from the previous year.

"The new software has a more sophisticated online portal feature," Allen said. "For the people who are paying via credit card or using the online portal to track their information, it's a more robust system than what we have currently."

As for the fees associated with online transactions, for now the town will continue to pick up the tab. The council had approved passing service charges onto individual online customers, rather than the taxpayers, but Allen said the details of exactly how that would work are still being ironed out.

"We believe in a process of continuous improvement in Berlin," Mayor Gee Williams said in a press release this week. "Not all change is easy, even the change you initiate. Once the billing transition is completed, I trust our customers will agree that the temporary inconvenience will be worth it in the long run."

Lack of quorum cancels Berlin council mtg.

Public hearing on leash laws moved to Monday, July 11 regular session

By Josh Davis

Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) A Berlin Town Council meeting scheduled for Monday, June 27 was canceled because of a lack of a quorum.

Mayor Gee Williams said he and several members of the council and town staff were taking part in the Maryland Municipal League meetings this week in Ocean City.

"That's the primary reason we couldn't get a quorum," he said. "There's so many key staff members – department heads, but not exclusively department heads – taking part, and most of the council participates."

"Quite frankly, just having passed the budget and gotten so much done, I think a little bit of just having a chance to catch our breath is probably the best thing we could do right now," Williams added.

Town Administrator Laura Allen said the agenda was not yet set for the next meeting, although the town confirmed in a press release that a public hearing on changes to the dog leash laws, scheduled for June 27, would be held during the next town council meeting, Monday July 11, at 7 p.m. in town hall.

The council could also address the portion of Harrison Avenue that was closed by the Adkins Company, which owns the road. Adkins had tried to sell the street to the town, for what Allen said was "about 10 times the appraised value." When the town balked, part of the road was closed to through traffic.

Williams said there was no news on that front, although he promised, "there will be."

"At this point, we're looking into the public safety impact, and our attorney is doing his research," he said.

The Lucas Oil Pro Pulling League Truck and Tractor Pull official awaits Howard Meredith Jr., from Wye Mills, Maryland in the Junkyard Dog in an exhibition run to kick off the event last Saturday.

Truck, tractor pull fills air and seats in Pocomoke, Sat.

By Brian Gilliland

(June 30, 2016) Making a return after last year’s event was cancelled because of poor weather, the Lucas Oil Pro Pulling League truck and tractor pull brought more than 1,000 spectators, crew and participants to the fairgrounds in Pocomoke City on Saturday.

The stars of the show were, according to organizer Gloria Smith, the weather, the track, the participants and the 36 pieces of equipment all working together to make for an exciting, family-friendly event.

Clear sunny skies with an occasional breeze marked the event, keeping the shade cool and the motors hot as they strove to drag a 40,000-pound sled 300 feet in the shortest amount of time.

Last year, rainy conditions all but ruined the track at the fairgrounds, which would make the pulling difficult and both the audience and participants unhappy.

“The people who know dirt work understand — the track came together beautifully,” Smith said.

When dealing with high horsepower and high performance machines, a track that’s too wet is as undesirable as one that is too dry or sandy. While pulling a load, Smith explained, the tires need to grip the surface and bite in to gain enough traction. Otherwise, fuel and horsepower are wasted on a futile effort.

A track that is too wet or dry is also more likely to be slippery, and cause the high-precision machines to perform poorly.

With the town getting rain in the week preceding the event, Smith said there was an early concern the track wouldn’t be ready.

“It hadn’t been worked up in two years. The crew started working in the morning, because the tractors like a hard track,” she said.

Chisel plows, a wheeled smoothing device that was loaded down with blank granite headstones and other pieces of heavy equipment to provide weight, put in a long day before the

SH museum debuts ‘Heritage Days’

By Brian Gilliland

(June 30, 2016) Focusing on the Victorian lineage of both the town and the museum’s collection, the Julia Purnell museum in Snow Hill will start the popular Heritage Days events for children this Wednesday and will continue each week until early August.

“It’s our most popular program,” Executive Director Dr. Cindy Byrd said. “Grandparents bring their grandkids, or sometimes one adult rounds up all the neighborhood children and brings them down.”

Heritage days are free for children, so long as they are accompanied by at least one paying adult. Adult admission is $3.

There is no need to preregister, and the program is available between 1-3 p.m. Wednesdays until Aug. 10.

“It’s a drop-in event. People come and go,” she said.

This week’s theme is clothespin people, which will be used to explore the Victorian fascination with miniatures. Next week is origami, or paper folding art, followed by a bird program, a presentation on elves and fairies, “tassel critters” and, ending the series, croquet and other older lawn games. The final heritage day event will move from the museum to nearby Byrd Park.

“Victorians liked to make little scenes in miniature, and composed little vignettes. These events are based on that obsession,” Byrd said. “There were a lot of fads during the Victorian era, and the people liked looking back on simpler times.”

Larger, more grandiose projects were seen as futuristic, or something out of science fiction. Smaller or even miniaturized items were prized for their connections to the past.

“For example, when you see a dollhouse, they are almost always decorated in Victorian styles,” she said.

Examples from the Purnell museum’s collection such as the flea circus and a copy of “the world’s smallest Bible” are testament to that, Byrd said.

Julia Purnell, the museum’s namesake, began her collections during the Victorian era and her son, William, extended and expanded them. The Purnell museum’s collection is largely derived from William Purnell’s belongings.

This first Heritage Days event will allow children to create their own little clothespin people, and will encourage them to make up backgrounds and stories starring them.

Younger boys, Byrd explained, have made more than their fair share of pirate clothespin people, for example.

The museum provides all the supplies for the event, but for those who want to take more clothespin people projects home, the museum’s gift shop sells kits. These projects, Byrd said, typically take about 30 minutes to complete, but can easily be age adjusted for older or younger children.

Pines passes pair of capital purchases; food truck MIA

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) About a month after two tie votes stalled a pair of capital purchases related to the Ocean Pines Association golf course, the board of directors met again in special session and passed both by separate 4-2 votes.

Another item, a motion to approve the purchase of a food truck, was not on the agenda despite also previously meeting with a tie vote.

In a seeming game of musical chairs, Vice President Cheryl Jacobs was absent during the previous vote, but present during the special meeting last Thursday, while Director Dave Stevens was present the first time, but absent the second.

That was enough to swing the vote. The directors approved three Toro fairway mowers, from Turf Equipment Supply for $44,633.34 each, or roughly $26,000 less than what was approved in the budget. Turf also won the bid on a Toro sprayer for $68,224.29, about $8,000 more than what was budgeted.

Tom Herrick and Jack Collins voted against both purchases, suggesting golf management company Landscapes Unlimited had not requested new mowers or sprayers.

Following the meeting, the directors adjourned to a closed session to discuss a contractual matter related to the golf management company.

Last Friday Jacobs, in a phone interview, said the closed session was essentially a "straight-up" one-year review of the company's performance.

She later sent a written statement about the meeting, addressing both the capital purchases and the food truck.

"Due to a family medical emergency, I was unable to attend the May 26 Board meeting. This was the first meeting I ever missed attending, which was troubling to me, but as much as I love Ocean Pines, family comes first," Jacobs said.

"I had initially requested we resolve the tie votes on the capital expenditure requests through an electronic vote. After reviewing the video of the meeting, it was clear to me that a special meeting was required to address those items, as well as including a one-year review of the contractual performance of the company that manages our golf course, Landscapes Unlimited.

"After much effort trying to find a date that met all or most of the director's schedules, a special meeting was held on June 23; only the mowers and sprayer for the golf course were requested for purchase, which passed by a four-to-two vote (Mr. Stevens was on vacation out of the country and unable to attend by telephone).

"While I remain a proponent of the food truck, after my independent investigation I did not feel there was sufficient information to be able to make a decision. There was no capital request for it at the June 23 special meeting or at the regular board meeting on June 25.

"I know there are differing opinions about the food truck, but I am able to see the opportunities that it could provide for the entire community at special events such as Movies in the Park, Concerts in the Park, Big Truck Day, 4th of July celebrations, just to name a few, as well as food service at Mumford's Landing family pool, that is currently lacking. There is no denying the popularity of food trucks, which are now even becoming franchised."

Forum brings out views on bridges, yacht club and RFPs

Tom Herrick asking about the possibility of outsourcing the general manager position, which he said was shot down without enough review “like he had just told them he was going to take their dog away from them.”

“We really need to stop all the bickering and infighting on the board ... I’m telling you, I will do what I say I’m going to do,” Janasek said. “The priority would be [to] get the board functioning, whether it be with this GM or whatever GM – get these projects done. We have a problem with getting projects done ... we need another study like we need a hole in the head.”

By-laws & Resolutions Chairman Doug Parks carried part of that logic over to a question on whether several ailing bridges should be repaired or replaced. Safety, he said, far outweighed whether the county or state would cover all or part of replacement.

“Replacement obviously comes with a cost, but there’s also a warranty, there’s [added] longevity to that bridge that will address what I think is a very important problem – that is the safety, both for the people going over that bridge [and] the people that are going under that bridge,” he said. “This topic has been on the books far too long. We’ve had a lot of discussion about it. It’s time to make an informed decision – it’s not time, as others have said, to have another study.”

Budget and Finance Committee Chairwoman Pat Supik said the bridges issue partially hinged on “assessment by professionals,” but agreed that if safety was an issue, Ocean Pines should move to replace without or without county or state funding.

She tied the issue into the debate on reserves, saying if Ocean Pines did not have adequate stockpiles “everything becomes a major problem.”

“Bridges that are falling apart, we all agree, would be a little bit dangerous. If we don’t have the reserve funds to immediately take care of those bridges when they need to be taken care of, then we’d have to go borrow the money,” she said. “We wouldn’t be sitting here making the decision because we wouldn’t have the ability to do that.”

Slobodan Trendic spoke in defense of outsourcing, citing the yacht club and information technology as particular areas where Ocean Pines could improve.

“Outsourcing is not a novelty,” he said. “It’s basically an efficient, effective way to bring new ways of running our facilities and our amenities. My philosophy is very simple. We are [an] association. We should do in-house what we have to do in-house because nobody else should or can. But, I also ... believe that we should [not] be competing with local businesses. We should form partnerships.

“Let the professional restaurant owners come in and run the yacht club,” he continued. “IT, our information technology infrastructure, is another example of a perfect area that needs to be outsourced ... we are running systems that belong [in] the MIT museum. We don’t have the IT systems; we don’t have human resources systems. As a board, you can’t plan – as a general manager you can’t plan – unless you have the right tools.”

Steve Lind also recommended outsourcing the yacht club operation, and said his biggest concern with the amenity was that it was not doing enough business during the summer.

“We have a bayfront place, [an] absolutely gorgeous place [with a] marina, tiki bar, pool,” he said. “We go there on a Monday night or a Thursday night, there’s nobody there – in July and August.

“I think we should concentrate on increasing the summer business to where it should be, considering we’re in a resort area, and then maybe we will be able to keep the yacht club open maybe Thursday, Friday and Saturday and Sunday in the winter and still break even,” he continued. “I truly believe the problem is we just don’t make enough in the summer. We have three months to make a fortune and we’re not doing it.”

Sharona Ezaoui admitted she was “not a politician,” but repeatedly encouraged the leadership to listen and work together.

“I’m good at doing stuff,” she said. “I have ideas that I can do, but I’m not a politician. I would like to be part of the board to [make] decisions, because I know ... I can help.”

Business owner Brett Hill hammered General Manager Bob Thompson, saying his office lacked accountability, did not do proper research and enjoyed a “rubber stamp” coming from the board of directors.

“The majority of the proposals for spending that come in front of that board are a website, an EBay listing – there aren’t real quotes,” he said. “How do we run a $14 million budget and not solicit competitive quotations?

“I run $120 million budget every year [and] I get bids on everything,” Hill continued. “The board has to hold the GM accountable to that, and the GM is responsible for doing that research, bringing the vendors, soliciting for RFPs and holding his staff to a level of prudent spending of our money. That’s how the relationship is supposed to work and that’s how I would see it work on the board of directors.”

Former Director Ray Unger, on the other hand, stuck up for Thompson.

“The general manager and the comptrollers run the organization as far as the dollars are concerned. It’s our job [on the board] to make sure we don’t give them too much or we give them too little,” he said.

The system has worked so well, in fact, that Unger said he could not remember a time when the board had to

Calvin B. Taylor bank makes application for new location

Latest branch would open in Chincoteague, Virginia and serve Accomack Co.

(June 30, 2016) Raymond M. Thompson, President and CEO of Calvin B. Taylor Bankshares, Inc. and Calvin B. Taylor Banking Company, has announced that the bank has made application with the Maryland Division of Financial Regulation, the Virginia Bureau of Financial Institutions, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation to establish a new branch location at 4116 Main St., Tax Map 30A5-A-462, Parcel 030A5A000046200, located east side of Main Street, within the town limits of Chincoteague, Virginia.

The proposed full-service branch will provide general banking services to residents and businesses located in the Chincoteague and northern Accomack County, Virginia areas.

Any person wishing to comment on this application may file his or her comments in writing with Mr. John Vogel, Regional Director, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, 350 Fifth Avenue, Suite 1300, New York, New York 10118. Comments are due not later than July 1.

The nonconfidential portions of the application are on file at the appropriate FDIC office and are available for public inspection during regular business hours. Photocopies of the non-confidential portion of the application file will be made available upon request.

Calvin B. Taylor Bank is a community bank providing deposit and loan services to consumers and businesses through 10 offices located in Worcester County, and lower Sussex County, Delaware. Information on the bank is also available through its website, www.taylorbank.com.

Pocomoke truck and tractor pull ‘not just a guy’s sport’

first key was turned in the first competing tractor.

What was left was a Goldilocks-zone strip of earth about 500 feet long in total, although only about 300 feet of that was competition space.

That track had to not only contend with, but also achieve, a baseline of consistency for 36 entrants, all of which would be dragging 20 tons of weight behind it.

Between pulls the track would be resurfaced and leveled, but one a division began, that work took mere minutes.

The winners in each division were as follows:

— 466 Hot Farm Class: Ray Norris, California, Maryland and driven by Davey Moore, Boonsboro, Maryland in an unnamed John Deere tractor.

— Four-wheel Drive Diesel Pick-ups: Norman Newswanger, Gardner, Pennsylvania in a truck named “Chapter 11.”

— Super Stock/Pro Stock Tractor Class: Tim Ammons, Hagerstown, Maryland in a tractor named “Ultimate Harvester.”

— Two-Wheel Drive truck class: Steven Wilson, Prince Frederick, Maryland in a truck named “Running Bare.”

— Modified Tractor class: Len Brookhart, Bel Air, Maryland in a tractor named “Radial Reactor.”

The atmosphere for the competition appeared to start behind the scenes, as it was not just grease-stained mechanics working to prepare the trucks to compete. Campers filled with families were in the pit area sporting a clear party atmosphere. When it came time to compete, the teams were ready, but before that time everyone was a spectator.

“I like that it’s not just a guy’s sport. Every division, except for one, had at least one female driver,” Smith said. “We even had a brother/sister team, a father/daughter team and a husband/wife team.”

Some of the funds raised from this event will go towards the Great Pocomoke Fair, scheduled form Aug. 4-6 this year. This is the final fundraising event before the fair.

Snow Hill hosts solar co-op meeting, draws few attendees

Organizers of information session say signing online form will mark real success

By Brian Gilliland
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) While only a few people attended the meeting with a representative of MD Sun in Snow Hill last week, it was not a prerequisite for joining or attempting to organize a solar cooperative in Worcester County.

Following the process laid out by Corey Ramsden, Maryland project manager for the nonprofit dedicated to assisting communities form cooperatives, the important part is filling out an online form found at www.mdsun.org/worcester.

The form asks for information such as the address where solar panels are to be located, a recent utility bill and asks users to rank several factors used in selecting a solar installer.

Taking these data in bulk, MD Sun generates a big picture summary of what is, and what isn’t important to potential solar customers and uses it to identify potential installers, Ramsden said.

The idea behind a cooperative arrangement is for a large group of potential customers to band together to leverage the best deal on installation costs — the bulk of the customer outlay when deciding to switch from the traditional power grid to an alternative source.

Anyone in Worcester County can elect to be part of the process, or drop out if it’s discovered solar solutions aren’t a good fit.

Once the form is submitted, Ramsden said MD Sun would take a look at satellite images of the owner’s property to see if it’s adequate to generate enough power.

“The images can be wrong, though so it’s best to also review them yourselves,” he said.

For example, Ramsden said he’s seen images that still include trees that would pose a problem for solar panels, but owners report have been removed.

Ramsden said owners need about 200 square feet of roof space for the smallest viable system at 3 kW. He added that ground-based solutions were also available.

The area to be covered in panels must get good, direct sunlight preferably between the hours of 9 a.m.-3p.m., and should face south, east or west. Ramsden said north-facing surfaces didn’t get enough direct sunlight to generally be of much use.

Once the nonprofit has enough data to proceed, it will solicit bids from either its own host of vendors or one the nascent cooperative identifies by itself.

Co-op groups smaller than countywide effort possible

"We generally get between three and eight bids per group. Salisbury had four and Easton had five," he explained.

The co-op has the final say in which vendor is selected.

The selected vendor then visits the property for its own evaluation. Finding the property suitable for an installation, the installer will offer a contract to the owner, he said.

"This is the first commitment you, as a buyer, will make," Ramsden said.

Once an agreement is reached, Ramsden said it takes between 3-5 months before a customer begins generating electricity.

MD Sun does have a financial interest in signed contracts, Ramsden said, adding he wanted "to be up front about that."

For each signed contract, the non-profit is paid $500. Ramsden said the cost is usually paid by the installer out of its marketing budget because of the large number of potential customers already identified by MD Sun.

Ramsden said groups smaller than a countywide effort are possible depending on how many people are interested in forming a co-op, which will be determined by how many on-line forms are generated.

call for a special assessment.

"There have been enough long-term looks by the board and by the general manager to level this thing out to the point where there's not too much excessive spending," he said. "We always have worked together very closely, on the board with the GM."

Improvements to the Manklin Meadows Racquet Sports Complex came up several times. Director Jack Collins, the only incumbent in the group, admitted he had "no idea what was approved" when the board last voted on the matter.

"There was $150,000 that was jammed through, and that '$150,000 - I think - was spent, not to move a playground or anything of that nature. It was spent to do some stormwater mitigation," he said. "I don't understand that $150,000 deal at all."

Collins said the original concept was estimated to cost $250,000. That, however, "expanded," and he said that was because the county demands new construction is "very, very cognoscente of the demands on the environment."

As a solution, Collins said Herrick suggested repainting existing tennis courts for pickleball use, which would require no costly stormwater media-

Candidate Steve Lind, left, greets OPA Elections Committee Chair Bill Wentworth prior to last Wednesday's candidate forum in the Community Center.

"Now, we're going to look at the possibility of buying, renting, or maybe even building some platform tennis courts," he said. "Platform tennis courts means you play on a platform, so you're up in the air ... if you build it on a platform, which platform tennis is supposed to be, your stormwater mitigation is seriously reduced."

Collins went over his time limit during each of the four times he spoke, and was reprimanded by moderator Bill Wentworth more than once.

During closing remarks, Wentworth went as far as pulling the microphone out of his hand, leading to a brief exchange of words between the two.

"It's not all about you, Jack," Wentworth said.

"Take it easy," Collins said.

"You need to take it easy," Wentworth said.

The remainder of the roughly two-hour debate went relatively smoothly. Perhaps the most common theme of the evening was whether or not, as Supik put it, "the sky is falling."

"I just look around and I think, well living in Ocean Pines right now I [feel] about the farthest from the sky is falling," she said. "Financially, we are on good ground operationally. If you add up the last three year's bottom line, it's positive."

Supik said the assessment had grown by just $7 during the last three years. She juxtaposed that with her Mediacom Internet bill, which "goes up $1.20 every month."

"I think the numbers speak for themselves," she said. "I also think that the board needs some introspec-

Value of assessments, drag of amenities take issue stage

tion and maybe a little direction to get running in a positive fashion. Other than that, I think Ocean Pines is on a great track.”

Simon had a similar view. He admitted “writing checks is not fun,” but said assessments largely paid for the police, fire, public works and recreation and parks services that made the association a special place.

“We live in, what I feel, is one of the better places that you can live,” he said. “I moved out of Baltimore and I came down here for a reason. I raised my children here. This is one of the safest places that you can be.

“We want generations of our family to live here,” he continued. “We want this to remain the kind of place that people want to live in. I understand that [paying assessments is] tough, but if you look around at the other places around here – Berlin, Ocean City and other neighborhoods around here – we actually have it pretty good.”

Janasek was more critical. He said he used many of the amenities in Ocean Pines, but that the yacht club, in particular, was subpar as illustrated by $17,000 loses in May.

“I would love for everybody to go to the yacht club, but [between] you, me and the wall, the service and the food are not that great,” he said. “We haven’t had a business plan. These new [restaurants] are eating our lunch.”

He said he was running to “change the philosophy.”

“I come to the board meetings, I complain about things, I talk about stuff I don’t like as long as I’ve had the chance to do so,” he said. “I have the opportunity to do something now, to be on the board, so it’s put up or shut up for me. If I’m going complain, I might as well be on the board and see what I can do to change what’s going on.”

Hill said the “contentious” board meetings he had seen recently were poorly representing the Pines.

“This is my first opportunity to step up, and I’m taking that opportunity. I feel a sense of social responsibility to my community because I see a problem and I want to help fix it,” he said.

He said it was “completely disappointing” to see several amenities not ready for the summer during each of the last three years, and blamed the administration.

“That’s poor management,” he said. “The board has a responsibility to hold management accountable, see that things are staying on track [and] if they’re not on track make hard decisions to pull things back together. That’s the type of leadership I want to bring to the table.”

OPA directors weigh in on candidate forum

By Josh Davis

Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) With 11 of the 12 candidates for Ocean Pines Association Board of Directors in one room last Wednesday for the annual candidate forum, many of the current directors watched for clues as to which three will join the board in August – and what their ideas and temperaments may be.

Asked to comment, several board members agreed to weigh in on the forum, held in the community center and attended by about 75 people. It was also recorded and streamed live on the internet.

Director Tom Herrick said he was impressed with the variety of candidates – and ideas – in this year's race.

"Whatever you want as a voter, you will have that option this year," he said. "I thought it was phenomenal. I think the [elections] committee did an unbelievable job. It was well run, coming at just under two hours, so I think the audience was captivated by that and we had some great responses."

President Pat Renaud was less enthused.

"Unfortunately, it was ungainly at best and unfair to some at worst. The voting public really could not get a very accurate picture of each candidate's strengths and weaknesses because they all answered different questions; therefore, not showing opinions on all issues," he said. "Is there a better way? I hope so and hope that later election committees will have better luck at managing the process going forward if there is another large candidate turnout."

Director Bill Cordwell said he was particularly focused on candidates who had a positive outlook of the association.

"Obviously, like other years, you have two, three, maybe four candidates who are positive and want to see Ocean Pines progress," he said. "They see that Ocean Pines is a great community and a great place to live."

"Anybody who has paid attention can look at the financial performance of the amenities over the last three years and see that we are clearly going in the right direction, except for golf, which had a chance of making money this year until certain board members decided to take it over," he continued. "It is now going back in the wrong direction and we are paying a company a lot of money needlessly to take it that way."

Cordwell said he noticed last year's trend of candidates labeling themselves "independent" was much less present this time.

"One candidate last year, every time he talked it was about staying independent. That, however, lasted until about the time the votes were read," Cordwell said. "At least this year's candidates, with a few exceptions, aren't making promises that they had no intentions of keeping."

Vice President Cheryl Jacobs said she attended the meeting, not as a director, but as a private citizen.

"I thought the event, conducted by the elections committee, was very well organized and conducted in an efficient and professional manner," she said. "I found it very interesting to listen to what the candidates said about the various changes they would make, if elected, to remedy all the problems they highlight in their bid for votes. Were I not on the board, I might believe some of their pronouncements; but I can tell you, it is a totally different experience once you are there dealing with the issues that come before the board."

Despite what Jacobs saw as several candidates delivering "very negative speeches," she said one candidate in particular stood out – although she declined to name "him."

"His message was one of acknowledgement that there were some things we could do better, but when he talked about the multiple properties he owns in Ocean Pines, it was a testament to his belief in the value of this community," she said. How refreshing to hear him concentrate on what a great place this is to live, which, of course, it is."

She was also impressed with another candidate "with superior qualifications," who she would not name, although she hinted at her role as chairwoman of the budget and finance committee.

"She doesn't just talk the talk, she walks the walk," Jacobs said. "And I'm not reticent about admitting that I believe there is real value to the community in having a mix of genders on the board, particularly one with her qualifications."

"Of course the voters will decide over the next few weeks who will get their vote by what the candidates said and how they presented themselves at the forum, as well as the various interviews they have provided to the media outlets," she continued. "If a resident was unable to attend the candidate forum, I urge them to view the video and see for themselves."

Jacobs also urged voters to reach out to the candidates directly.

"Ask them questions if they are unsure about the candidate's position on any particular issue; their contact information is available on the Ocean Pines website," she said. "If you believe in them, display their sign in your yard. Finally, I am always available to speak to the residents if they want additional information from me."

Exit interview with OPA Director Tom Terry

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) The next board of directors, which will be decided when votes are counted and revealed in August, will be without something no board has gone without in six years – two-term Director Tom Terry.

Terry, who cannot run this year because of term limits, served as president several times during his tenure, and had a major impact on the association.

When he joined the board in 2010, there was already “great turmoil” because the previous board had fired its general manager, and tapped sitting-director Bob Thompson for the job.

“As a newly elected board member and the new president, it was my job to keep the board and community focused on the future,” Terry said. “I had an advantage in that my company, Terry and Unitas Associates, had just finished a pro-bono organizational and marketing study for the previous GM. This activity gave my company the opportunity to meet and interview all the department heads, to see their current situation and their prospective plans.”

That insight, he said, was critical because it gave Terry a “real and not just image or propaganda” view of the inner workings of the association. That, and his tenure on the budget and finance committee, allowed the board to “dig right in and get to work.”

Still, he admitted there was a slight learning curve.

“The tendency for a new board member is to come in thinking nothing has been done because they rightly see what is left to do,” he said. “The most important adjustment that I had to make was to look back to see what others had done or had started and not completed. I have a tendency to look forward.”

Terry said he found a wealth of information, including several engineering studies, and identified plenty of things that needed to be tended to within the 40-year-old community. Putting an emphasis on action, Terry formed the Facilities Planning Group, which helped developed a ranking of all the major facilities that needed to be repaired or replaced.

Including the sports core pool, which is scheduled to start improvements next month, every pool in the association has been renovated or repaired during the last six years. Several major drainage projects, including those near the tennis courts, Hingham Lane and at the community center, were completed, and a new yacht club was built. The beach club was refurbished, signs were updated, several playgrounds were repaired, the administration building was realigned and the greens of the golf course were addressed.

“The most important thing that some of our OPA members do not realize is the breadth of the OPA organization, and the need for a director to care about all of it,” Terry said. “It is also a challenge to have to choose what actions to take when there are not unlimited dollars and people want their items addressed.”

Despite all of those improvements, Terry said the boards he served on did not dramatically raise assessments. According to his figures, assessments rose 14 percent during the last six year. During the previous six years, fees jumped 48 percent.

“While I never promised to ‘keep dues low,’ we did achieve a major trend adjustment to keep Ocean Pines the most cost-effective place to live in the county,” he said. “We also had the only reduction in the assessment that has ever happened in the history of the OPA. This financial picture certainly presents a different story than those who claim the boards, or Bob Thompson, are out of control.”

Terry helped establish two-day orientation sessions for new board members, discussing the business of the association, reviewing legal guidelines and touring major facilities. He also started the policy of assigning board liaisons to each of the advisory committees, whiling rejecting the idea of having board members sit on special committees that “duplicate the responsibility of staff.”

“This gave the OPA members direct contact with the staff to voice concerns and, in many cases, get action without having to raise an issue to the board for it to instruct the GM to do something which could already be addressed by the department head,” he said. “After an initial period of sorting out who still reported to who, the system has worked to the advantage of the OPA membership and the GM has extra sets of ears listening to the issues.”

He admitted the system is not perfect.

“While the direct involvement of the department heads has worked, the structure and function of the advisory committees continues to be a challenge,” he said. “The communications back to the advisory committees from the board is something I wish I had done better.”

Terry also said he “violated [his] own guidelines” when it came to one specific project – the negotiations with Sandpiper Energy.

“The Sandpiper negotiations lasted too long,” he said. “We should have allowed the OPA staff work out the agreement and bring it to the board’s for approval. The OPA members owe Bob Thompson a very large thank you for his efforts in concluding that important issue for the community. The delay in having a reserve study done is another item which I would say is working well, but should have been done much sooner.”

On a more philosophical note, Terry said the “classic challenge” in Ocean Pines was whether the facilities and amenities were meant to turn a profit. Technically, OPA is a non-profit organization.

“The original designers of Ocean Pines got it right. They created a community, which would provide facilities and amenities beyond those in other areas,” he said.

Terry: criticism ‘goes with territory’

“Like others before me, I have served on boards who faced the challenge of meeting the many and diverse wants of our membership, while still trying to oversee the OPA,” Terry continued. “The evolution of the OPA website over the years shows the impact of the OPA moving from a community being built out for vacation homes, to a community which has over 11,000 full time residents and approximately half our members live in the Pines as their primary residents.

“This organization is a nonprofit organization, which must balance the drive for ‘profit’ with the availability of its services and amenities. One of the first actions I took when I became president was to ask why the new multimillion-dollar community center was not staffed and wide open on the weekends. This was explained to be a cost-saving effort. The Community Center was immediately staffed and open for use seven days a week.”

Because Terry and Thompson, as director and general manager, both came on at the same time, the two are often lumped together – for better or for worse. Several current and former directors – and members of the public – have been critical of the pair.

That, Terry said, “goes with the territory.”

“I have always been one who welcomed new ideas, even if they have not been fully thought through,” he said. “Unfortunately, there are a few very vocal people who want everything fully scoped out with all details before they can be accepted for discussion. Or worse, announce to the community that the board has already done things, which have not even been voted upon. Also damaging are the attacks, which have no basis in fact, or worse dream up some sort of conspiracy theory, which become the truth for some of our members.

“I accept that if you are going to take a position of leadership not every decision you make will work well,” Terry continued. “Mistakes will be made and criticism of those mistakes, while not always useful, should be expected.

“As to whether this can be avoided, the answer is no. There are always going to be people and/or groups, which will not agree with the direction you believe in,” he said. “A board member must be ready to say the other side has a point, or the other side is actually right and you should join them on the issue at hand.”

Going forward, Terry cautioned the notion that firing this – or any – general manager is a cure-all for the problems facing the OPA.

“The idea that replacing the GM, regardless of who the GM is, is the first thought when we don’t like something,” he said. “The board needs to step back from individual situations and look at the body of work the GM and OPA staff have performed. While it is politically helpful to some to focus very narrowly, the good of the organization needs to come first.

“The constant threat of a change in the GM position can be and is detrimental to the staff and their functioning effectively,” he added. “No one can serve for any length of time on the board of directors or be the GM without making decisions some people will not like.”

Contrary to popular belief, Terry said Thompson has not been “driving the ship” during the last six years. Part of that perception, he said, came about during years when the board of directors was not hypercritical of the general manager.

“The impression is, since the board was not trying to grab headlines or look like they were scolding people, that they were not in charge,” he said. “Ask yourself, when you had or have a working position, did you respond positively to public lectures? Did you believe there was stability in the organization if the head people were constantly under attack?”

He also advocated rational, “non-emotional, “nonpolitical” debate and evaluation of capital projects.

“Not all capital projects can be done at once, and some may not be ap-

Terry touts slow growth rate of assessments

proved at all based on the evaluated need,” he said. “Capital projects which are moved up in timeframe to simply look like a board member, or GM, took care of things is not the way to run a quality community. Further, if there have been approved rankings of work and/or timelines established, use these assessments. Do not simply start over to re-assess again and again.”

“Reasonable” is a word Terry uses often, especially when it comes to the new crop of candidates, as 12 men and women compete for three seats on the board this year.

“How many people in the 40-plus years of the OPA have said they would lower the dues? It has only happened once in all the years,” Terry said. “Others run on partial information to present issues as if the sky is falling. The sky has not fallen in the 40-plus years.

“To those who believe the board should run everything, I ask that you ask yourselves just how that would be implemented in an organization that is as diverse and complex as the OPA has become,” Terry continued. “This is no longer a small vacation/week-end spot. It is a full-fledged community where new and complex skills are needed to follow ever-growing regulations and procedures.”

During his six years in office, Terry said the needs of multiple facilities and amenities were addressed, and he again underscored the relatively low rise in assessments during that period.

“If a 14 percent growth rate in annual dues over these six years is not better than 48 percent growth in previous years, then your assessment of where our trends are does not match mine,” he said. “Yes, there are assets like the country club, which has not been addressed. There is only so much money that can be focused on an amenity in a given time period. The course and drainage have seen millions of dollars spent on that amenity. There is clearly work left for the coming boards to take action.”

Terry’s parting thought for the next board was simple – be civil, be reasonable, and put the association first.

“Remember it is not about you, it is about Ocean Pines,” he said. “Your skills and talent will be wasted if your goal is personal attention. The board must find a way to create a working environment for success as we did for most of my years on the board.”

Terry, who turns 65 on July 3, is currently a candidate for Worcester County Board of Education Commissioner, District 5.

Humane society presents ‘Cat Days of Summer’

(June 30, 2016) The Worcester County Humane Society will be holding adoption events, “The Cat Days of Summer,” at several different locations throughout the summer.

Look for shelter volunteers at the front entrance of Walmart in Berlin from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the following Saturdays – July 9, 23, Aug. 6, 20 and Sept. 3.

There will also be adoption booths at Petco in West OC and Ocean Pines Farmers Market on July 16 and Aug. 20. In addition, the shelter will participate in the Worcester County Fair, Aug. 13-14.

There will be cats available for adoption at every event along with raffle tickets available for purchase with the chance to win three cash prizes.

The Worcester County Humane Society is a no-kill shelter located on Eagle’s Nest Road just off Stephen Decatur Highway (Route 611). There are over 100 cats living at the shelter with the majority of them being adults. Most of them are very affectionate, adoptable cats who have spent a year or longer at the shelter.

“There are so many great adult cats at the shelter that get overlooked because of their age,” said Sandy Summers, WCHS board member and volunteer. “These cats have so much love to give and deserve to know the happiness of finding their forever family.”

Adoption fees for cats 5 and under are $100 and those over the age of 5 are $50. Adoption fees include spay/neuter, immunizations and microchip.

The shelter also has a “senior to senior” program where anyone 65 and older who adopts a cat 8 years or older will have their adoption fee waived.

For more information on available pets or questions about adoption visit the shelter website at www.worcester-countyhumanesociety.org or call 410-213-0146. Follow the shelter on Facebook and Instagram for event updates and available pets.

Star Charities' annual Western Night fundraiser

(June 30, 2016) Time is running out to purchase tickets to Star Charities' annual Western Night fundraiser on Thursday, July 14 at Ocean Downs Racetrack, located off Route 589 near Ocean Pines.

Star Charities Founder Anna Foultz said any remaining tickets would be available at the door, but advance purchases are highly recommended.

This year all monies raised will go to support the 4 Steps Therapeutic Riding Program in Parsonsburg. Founded in 2004 by Sandy Winter, the nonprofit has worked with clients between the ages of 3 and 80 that have been diagnosed with medical challenges including visual and hearing impairments, traumatic brain injuries, post traumatic stress disorder, spinal cord injuries, multiple sclerosis, stroke, developmental disabilities, muscular dystrophy and Down syndrome.

Foultz said Winter is extremely dedicated to equine rescue and is excited for Star Charities to lend its support.

"She takes racehorses and gives them a second life," Foultz said. "She goes out of her way and uses a lot of her own money."

The cost for tickets is $26, which includes a mixed green salad, Romano and egg battered chicken, English-style baked tilapia, fresh veggie medley, parsley buttered whole bliss potatoes, penne pasta and carrot cake. It can all be washed down with coffee, tea and fountain drinks.

In addition to the ample food selection, attendees can also enjoy live harness and simulcast horse races, as well as be in the running for door prizes. There will even be a photo opportunity with the winning horse from the one of the races. This year's emcee is Larry Walton. Doors open at 4 p.m.

Recognizing others who are doing good in the community is always rewarding for Foultz.

"That's the way we are, us volunteers," she said. "That comes with it, we're always helping one another."

Seating is limited. For reservations, contact Barbara Mazzei at 908-581-5533.

Pines directors asked to reevaluate ballot counting

Elections committee will meet with by-laws group to discuss possible resolution

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) The election is in full swing in Ocean Pines and issues about everything from how ballots are counted to how many words the candidates can use in their written bios have dominated recent public meetings.

On Saturday, four of the 12 candidates running for the board of directors spoke during the public comments portion of a regular board meeting, while “new business” included two items for review by the directors that related to the upcoming vote.

A motion to eliminate the words “in closed session” from Resolution M-06 got the most attention, as it addressed the growing controversy of whether Ocean Pines can legally count votes during a closed session.

Elections Committee Chairman Bill Wentworth spoke during public comments to address the motion.

Wentworth said he had no objection to having observers present during ballot counting, but said before that decision was made, “as a courtesy” the board should first talk to his committee in order to better understand the process.

“Trust me – we are not the only folks in the room when that’s being done,” he said. “I know there’s a big thing out here about conspiracy theories ... that’s absolutely baloney. You are challenging the ethics of myself and the members of this committee – and you will not challenge our ethics.

“If you are going to do anything with M-06, I would appreciate the courtesy of informing us [and] letting me as the chairmen or the members of the committee to go through with you, point by point, exactly what the process is.”

Director Jack Collins, who presented the motion, said he was not suggesting any wrongdoing by the committee or Wentworth.

“I want to point out that there are 12 individuals vying for three spots – nine will not be elected,” he said. “Perhaps as many as four or five will lose by one-to-ten votes ... by opening up the process, under these circumstances, not only are we in compliance with the law ... but we validate the vote count through the process, we guarantee the integrity of the process, we eliminate any questions as to the accuracy of the process, we mitigate any contention within the ranks of our members — and that is our community — as it reflects to the perception of a corrupted process.

OPA tables motion on closed session tallying of BOD vote

“To my way of thinking it just makes absolute common sense that, with this many people involved in this election, it would behoove each and every one of us to open it up and be in compliance with the law and get this contentious issue behind us,” Collins added.

Vice President Cheryl Jacobs noted that Collins was one of the 12 candidates running, while another director, Bill Cordwell, questioned his motives.

“Every year it seems like it’s thrown out there with the old conspiracy theory to get people to come to social media [and say], ‘oh that board is stealing this election. They’re behind closed doors and they’re stealing this election.’ To say that it has nothing to do with the integrity of the people on this committee is bull. You are questioning the integrity of everybody – the chairman of that committee, everybody on this committee, and the liaison to this committee.

“It’s not a violation of any law ... it’s been vetted,” Cordwell added. “This board should not be involved in this election process ... Stay out of the election process. These are good, decent people [and] you’re saying to all them we don’t trust you.”

Director Tom Terry said if the process were to be changed, it should not be done during “the heat of the election’s process.”

Moreover, he said it was a case of one committee – by-laws & resolutions – going after another one. The resolution, he said, came from the bylaws committee.

“It’s inappropriate that they took this action without at least going to their fellow advisory committee,” he said.

Jacobs noted that Jim Trummel, an attorney who is often commissioned by the association to rule on such issues, vetted M-06 and could not find any issues of illegality.

Moreover Jacobs, herself an attorney, said Maryland law governing homeowner’s associations provided language for having closed meetings. Counting votes, she said, did not constitute a meeting.

“This is not a meeting – this is a time when ballots are counted,” she said. “There is no business being conducted of the committee, it is simply a time to count ballots. It is not a meeting. From my perspective this is not anything that is in violation of the Homeowner’s Act.”

Collins confirmed the issue came through the by-laws & resolutions committee, and suggested there should be some interaction between the two advisory boards “to rectify this particular situation.”

“We really could address this particular issue within this current election cycle, if it would be the will of the elections committee ... and the by-laws & resolutions committee to come together in a joint meeting to work out the specifics of this particular issue and bring it back to the board. That’s really a legitimate solution to this whole situation,” he said.

Jacobs called that an “excellent suggestion,” and Terry made a motion to table the matter until the committees could meet. Collins seconded that.

“This is amazing,” Collins said, making light of the rarity of he and Terry finding common ground.

“This is amazing. My hair is going to grow back,” Terry deadpanned.

The vote to table passed 5-0. Two directors, Dave Stevens and President Pat Renaud, were not present during the meeting.

Another election-related item on the agenda, a report from the search committee, was accepted by a unanimous vote. That committee is tasked with finding candidates to run for office in Ocean Pines.

After review of the committee’s recommendations, Collins said the directors could meet to vote on those items next month.

Debate over M-06 ballot guidelines

While board tables ruling, others weigh in on whether Pines can count in private

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) The issue of whether the Ocean Pines Association Elections Committee can count ballots during a closed session has become an annual debate, including this year when 12 candidates are running for three seats on the board of directors.

Resolution M-06, section 9., which governs the ballot count in Ocean Pines, reads, "Counting ballots is the responsibility of the [Elections] Committee, in closed session, with the assistance of a computer consultant and Association staff. The committee shall exercise due diligence in obtaining an accurate county of votes cast."

Page three of the resolution shows board approval on April 24, 2013, and includes the signature of attorney Jim Trammel, who at the time was chairman of the by-laws and resolutions advisory committee.

One of the arguments against counting ballots during a closed sessions stems from the Maryland Homeowners Association Act, which allows closed meetings only under certain situations.

Under a section governing "Meetings of homeowners association or its governing body," for instance, section 4(i) allows for closed meetings that pertain to "Discussion of matters pertaining to employees and personnel."

Many do not consider directors – or candidates – to be "employees and personnel," but rather unpaid volunteers. The ambiguity of both words used in conjunction, however, is interesting to some, including Jeff Knepper, an attorney and former director in Ocean Pines.

Last Thursday, Knepper emailed a statement on the subject at the request of the Gazette.

"Recently in Ocean Pines there has been a vigorous debate about whether or not the meeting of an OPA Committee to count votes in the upcoming election for three board of directors members can be done in a meeting that is closed to the public," he said. "Maryland law requires a homeowners' association to conduct its meetings in sessions that are open to the public with few, specified exceptions.

"One of those exceptions allows the closure of meetings to discuss matters relating to 'employees and personnel.' Unfortunately, there are no Maryland cases clarifying the meaning of these two terms.

"Some have suggested that 'personnel' must mean 'employees,' but if they are right, then the above sentence would allow closure of 'meetings to discuss matters relating to employees and employees.'

"'Personnel' might include OPA's numerous volunteers, it might include directors, and I suppose it might even include candidates running in an election for the board. Until some legal authority formally decides, we will not know the meaning of these words and one interpretation is as good as the next.

"So the bottom line is that the association's decision to close the vote counting meeting is, in my opinion, based on a reasonable interpretation of an ambiguous and undecided Maryland law. Others may certainly disagree, but that is my opinion."

On Saturday, the issue was raised during a public meeting of the board of directors. The board voted to table the question until the by-law & resolutions committee and elections committee could meet to mutually craft a recommendation.

During that meeting, Vice President Cheryl Jacobs, also an attorney, offered another explanation – the closed "meeting" was not a meeting at all.

"This is not a meeting – this is a time when ballots are counted," she said. "There is no business being conducted of the committee, it is simply a time to count ballots. It is not a meeting. From my perspective this is not anything that is in violation of the Homeowner's Act."

Last Safe Boating course scheduled July 12-14 in OP

(June 30, 2016) The last USCG Auxiliary Safe Boating class of 2016 will be conducted Tuesday through Thursday, July 12-14, at the Ocean Pines Library from 6-9 p.m.

The Maryland Safe Boating class and certificate are required for boat operators born after July 1, 1972, but everyone can benefit from it. In 88 percent of recreational boating fatalities, the operator did not have a nationally approved boater education certificate.

Safety on the water is every boater's responsibility and knowing what to do—not only in an emergency but also when docking, anchoring and passing another boat—is key to having fun and developing a culture of safety on the water.

Besides Maryland maritime regulations, the course, as taught by the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, also focuses on boat handling, safety equipment, knot tying and other practical tidbits from experienced recreational boat enthusiasts.

Close to 100 boaters have completed the course and received their Maryland boater's certificate so far this year.

To register, contact Barry Cohen at 410-973-1097 or email at bmc\_rsc@yahoo.com. The fee is $15.

Outdoor movie nights presented through Aug. 27

Second season of free film screenings at Berlin parks

(June 30, 2016) For the second summer, the Berlin Parks Commission and Arts & Entertainment Committee join together to host a series of outdoor movie nights continuing until Aug. 27.

Movies will be screened on alternating Saturdays downtown and in Stephen Decatur and Dr. William Henry Parks.

“Last year we had four showings – two downtown and one at each of the parks. We’re excited to be able to have six showings this year, with dates that cover the whole summer,” said Robin Tomaselli, proprietor of Baked Dessert Café and member of the Arts & Entertainment Committee. “We hope that we can do this every summer.”

Earlier this year, the Town of Berlin posted a survey on Facebook to decide which movies to show. The lineup will be:

July 2 - Stephen Decatur Park: “Wizard of Oz”

July 16 - Dr. William Henry Park: “Finding Nemo”

July 30 - Stephen Decatur Park: “Princess Bride”

Aug. 13 - Dr. William Henry Park: “The Goonies”

Aug. 27 - downtown: “Runaway Bride”

All showings will start at approximately 8:30 p.m. and are free to the public.

“Moviegoers will need to bring a blanket or chair and their own snacks or drinks – alcohol is not permitted,” Parks Commission Liaison Mary Bohlen said.

In case of bad weather, the decision whether or not to cancel will usually be made by noon of the same day and will be posted on Facebook at Town of Berlin Maryland.

The movie nights are sponsored by the Berlin Parks Commission and Arts & Entertainment Committee and funded in part by a grant from the Worcester County Arts Council.

Ocean Pines Association Briefs

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) The Ocean Pines Association Board of Directors discussed the following items during a public meeting on Saturday.

Two absences

Two directors did not attend the meeting. Dave Stevens was on vacation, while President Pat Renaud was in New York to attend the “very happy occasion” of a film premier, according to Vice President Cheryl Jacobs. Renaud’s son is the director of “The Secret Life of Pets.”

Filling in for Renaud during the meeting, Jacobs opened by praising the elections committee for running a successful candidate forum last Wednesday, and she urged the public to watch a video of the event, which can be viewed on the association’s official YouTube channel or by using the direct link www.youtube.com/watch?v=OIWI8IA7Go

Change in agenda

Director Tom Herrick pulled two items under “old business.” They were updates on platform tennis and capital improvements to the county club, which had been discussed during a previous meeting.

Director Tom Terry also asked that the meeting minutes show that he “owe[s] the board of directors a report in July” on changes to the association’s investment guidelines.

GM report

General Manager Bob Thompson said May is always “an interesting month” and that heavy rains affected revenues at several amenities.

The golf course finished about $27,000 behind budget, while the yacht club closed out the month more than $64,000 below budget. He said aquatics was the lone “bright spot,” finishing more than $20,000 ahead of estimates.

Under “unfinished business,” Thompson said a contract was awarded for bridge repairs, with an estimated start date just after Labor Day.

Thompson said the association was also working to address a mysterious odor emanating from the first floor of the yacht club, and that the next step was to change intake vents. If the problem persists, he said scopes with cameras would be used to identify the problem.

Work on the sports core pool is scheduled to start during the second week of July, a request for proposals was sent out June 15 for improvements to the beach club bathrooms, and estimates are being put together for conversion of two tennis courts into pickle ball courts.

Thompson also sent a memorandum on the “next steps” of the reserve study to the directors on June 8. Updates to the study should be done during the next week or two, he said, including plugging in fiscal 2017 budget numbers. Thompson said the board also needed to agree on a funding percentage.

Terry said work sessions discussing the study would likely be called before the July regular board meeting.

CPI update

Compliance, permits and inspections procedures were expected to get a revamp during the meeting. Terry said he and Jacobs were still working on those, and would likely make a presentation during the July regular board meeting.

Universal membership

Director Jack Collins moved to set a “universal racquet membership renewal date.” Currently, he said, memberships expire during staggering dates throughout the year, which can cause confusion and lapsed membership.

Thompson said he had not been asked to consider the ramifications of setting a universal date, and asked for time to do so. A motion to table the matter until Thompson could assess the universal date passed 4-1, with Director Bill Cordwell voting “no.”

Appointment

The board unanimously approved the appointment of Matthew Groves to the recreation and parks advisory committee. It is Groves’ first term.

Closed session

Following the regular session, the directors adjourned to discuss a turnover agreement related to section 17, also known as “The Point” in Ocean Pines.

Terry, in an interview on Monday, clarified that developers, once work is finished, routinely “turn over” properties to Ocean Pines. That had apparently not been done with The Point. He said the board would make a formal announcement during the next regular meeting.

Third ‘Warriors’ meeting turns focus on Christian recovery

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) The third meeting of the Worcester County Warriors Against Opiate Addiction last Tuesday at First Presbyterian Church in Ocean City focused on faith-based recovery and featured guest speakers from Teen Challenge in Seaford and Stand Fast Recovery in Snow Hill.

Teen Challenge Executive Director Bob Carey claimed an 86 percent success rate with the program, which boasts more than 1,000 locations in 106 different counties around the world.

Rehabilitation at Teen Challenge lasts one year and focuses on solving addiction issues “through a relationship with Jesus Christ.” The average age of people in the program is 28-32, but Carey said the name is still used because of its brand visibility.

In Seaford, Teen Challenge is working on adding two new dormitories for women, including one for women with young children. The nonprofit is largely supported by donations and grants, and Carey said Teen Challenge rarely turns anyone away for inability to pay.

"We have a $500 entry fee and/or $500 a month, [but] if somebody doesn't have any money or their family doesn't, we still take them," Carey said. "We don't let money deter us from taking anybody in."

Snow Hill native Daniel Freeman modeled Stand Fast after a program he attended in Bangor, Maine that helped him overcome heroin addiction. For now, Stand Fast runs regular Thursday evening meetings in Snow Hill, although Freeman said he would like to increase that to include additional meetings in Pocomoke.

Eventually, he wants to be able to offer a yearlong residential rehabilitation program.

"We're going to need help. It's not easy to do that," he said. "It's something we're trying to get going down here in Maryland."

Jim Freeman, vice chair of the Drug & Alcohol Council, a program of the Worcester County Health Department, presented Worcester County Warriors with a check for $2,000 during the meeting.

Sen. Jim Mathias was also present, and pledged his support from a legislative standpoint.

Mathias said he recently spoke to Gov. Larry Hogan about the heroin epidemic in the state. Hogan revealed that his first cousin died of an overdose while in Ocean City, when Mathias was mayor of the resort.

"I recall then that the oddity was to hear [about] heroin," he said. "We really thought our real challenge and concern at the time ... was inviting our graduating high school seniors here, allowing them to be here and returning them home safely to their parents."

That, he said, had clearly changed.

"We're not going to arrest our way out of this," he said. "We're going to converge on this in every possible way to bind it. We're not going to allow it to ravage our county – we're going to allow it to ravage our Eastern Shore."

The next regular meeting of the Worcester County Warriors Against Opiate Addiction will be held on July 21, at 6:30 p.m., at the First Presbyterian Church at 1301 Philadelphia Avenue in Ocean City.

In the meantime, "Warriors" co-founder Heidi McNeely said several subcommittees of the group would continue working in specific areas, including education, awareness and resource navigation.

"I think our subcommittees are so important, because they're what is allowing us to go and do something," she said. "These [regular] meetings are wonderful and we want to provide a format for speakers and information, but the committees are really the meat of it."

For more information, email McNeely at heidi@wocowarriors.org, visit www.wocowarriors.org, or search "Worcester County Warriors Against Opiate Addiction" on Facebook.

Much ado about ballots

Ocean Pines Board of Director member Cheryl Jacobs has a good point: an elections committee gathered for the sole purpose of counting ballots does not constitute a meeting in any legal sense.

The committee isn't empowered to take any action other than to assure ballots are valid and to count them. It does nothing beyond those two functions, so there is no meeting according to the law.

Committee members have rightly taken umbrage at the suggestion, however faintly whispered, that this closed-door process opens another door to election rigging or some other nefarious scheme.

Even the mention of that possibility questions the integrity of each individual who volunteered for the job and would be considered by just about anyone as a personal affront.

In fairness, we wondered as well why the ballot counting should be closed until Jacobs offered her opinion to the contrary. That prompted the realization that ballot counting in municipalities is closed to the public, as is allowed by Maryland election law.

The purpose of this provision is to permit the vote tallying to proceed without public interference, politicking or interfering in an attempt to influence the process. The law does make an exception for legally authorized watchers.

The closed-door vote-counting procedure was once challenged in Ocean City on much the same grounds as those expressed in Ocean Pines. The fiery response from the election judges, given their professionalism and pride, was hardly surprising.

Insinuating that a group of people might be ethically challenged is more than just politics in small towns. Everyone knows everyone else and that makes it personal.

Even if the public were to be allowed in the room as votes were being counted, any comment from individuals, political conversations or disruptions would be inappropriate and could themselves be viewed as an attempt to affect the results. That said, doing the tally in private, with authorized watchers present if need be, is the right way to go.

“My Dad says if he were President there would be steamed crabs in every pot!”

‘Concerned citizen’ to host forum

Editor,

A concerned Ocean Pines resident has organized a board of director candidate conversation and Q & A event. The event is July 16 at the Worcester County Library, Ocean Pines Branch at 9 a.m.

This year, three candidates will be chosen for the board of directors for the Ocean Pines Homeowners Association. The outcome of the election can have a significant impact on the future direction, work and practice of the board.

Steve Tuttle has reserved the large meeting room at the library and is coordinating the event. The intent is to have an opportunity for audience members to ask questions directly of each candidate.

An informed electorate comes by participating in the Q & A, asking questions, hearing others questions and responses from board candidates. All residents of Ocean Pines, eligible to vote in the election are encouraged to come on July 16 at 9 a.m.

For more information, contact at 610-368-9919.

Former director mad over forum

Editor,

I just finished watching the video of the candidate debate and I am mad as hell! I cannot allow some of this propaganda to go unchallenged. In Ocean Pines some people believe, and rightfully so, that if you repeat an untrue statement long enough it might eventually be believed.

A perfect example was board candidate Ms. Pat Supik, who is the chairperson of our budget and finance advisory committee. When answering the question “where do you stand on keeping the yacht club open in the winter?” she answered, “I do understand the financials of the yacht club and factually it is doing very well.” God help us! According to the monthly controller’s reports our brand-new $5 million yacht club has lost $311,219 in the last eight months alone. That does not include depreciation. “Factually it is doing very well.” Perhaps when compared to the maiden voyage of the Titanic?

In her closing statement, Ms. Supik stated, “financially we are on good ground operationally. If you add up the last three years the bottom line is positive.” She goes on to say, “the numbers speak for themselves” which may be the only factual thing she said all night. Sounded like a cheerleader following a script written by Thompson, Gomsak and Terry.

According to the audited statements the sum bottom line performance of Ocean Pines Association, Inc. over the last three years was a negative -$132,533. This does not even take into account that in 2014 OPA moved $447,409 out of reserves and into operations to offset deficits.

If Ms. Supik can’t understand the audited statements for our organization she should not be the chairperson of the budget and finance advisory committee, much less a director.

Snow Hill

• Fireworks:

Fourth of July festivities take place Saturday, July 2, in Snow Hill with a fireworks display over the Pocomoke River in Sturgis Memorial Park.

The event will begin at 5:30 p.m. with ice cream and drinks available before the fireworks start around 9:15 p.m. There will be bounce houses and face painting for kids.

Hamburgers, hot dogs, barbecue chicken, soft drinks and beer will be provided by the Snow Hill Rotary and Snow Hill native Tommy Mason is selling pulled pork.

Look forward to an appearance from Lollipop the Clown and DJ Dale Smack will be spinning the tunes.

Guests should bring a lawn chair or blanket to Sturgis Park.

The Julia A. Purnell Museum will have free admission for locals until 4 p.m. and will sell neon glow sticks and LED flashers as a fundraiser during the fireworks.

The event will take place on Sunday if there is inclement weather on Saturday. Parking will be available at public lots on Green and Washington streets.

For more information, call 410-632-0809.

Ocean City:

• Uptown Concert and Fireworks:

At Northside Park on 125th Street, The Janitors kick off a free concert Monday at 8 p.m. followed by fireworks at 9:30 p.m. The National Anthem will lead the patriotic show.

"Northside Park is a spectacular place for families to watch the colorful displays light up the evening sky and lagoon," Ocean City Mayor Rick Meehan stated in a press release.

"We encourage spectators to get there early to claim their spot to watch the fireworks," which visitors can catch from anywhere in the park.

"The Fourth of July holiday is a great opportunity for residents and visitors to stay and play in Ocean City," he said.

Attendees are encouraged to bring beach chairs and blankets. Call 1-800-626-2326, 410-250-0125 or visit www.ococean.com for more information.

• Downtown Concert and Fireworks:

A free concert on the Caroline Street Stage in downtown Ocean City features The Reagan Years, which begins Monday at 8 p.m. with a fireworks display following at 9:30 p.m.

Meehan said the July 4 celebration is "a unique opportunity to watch fireworks sparkle over the ocean."

"Our exceptional venue on Caroline Street allows visitors to bring beach chairs or blankets and claim a spot on the sand for a special and patriotic display," he said.

Call 1-800-626-2326, 410-250-0125 or visit www.ococean.com for more information.

Hot Dog-Eating Contest:

Stop by Fish Tales Bar & Grill on 22nd Street, bayside, Monday at 1 p.m. for the ninth annual Independence Day "Top Dog" hot dog-eating contest.

"It's a lot of fun. It's neat to see people come out and cheer on their favorite competitor," said Brandon Hemp, Fish Tales manager and contest coordinator. "I'd like to see a local person win it this year. Locals have placed, but no one has won it since the first year."

Anyone 18 and older who is interested in competing in the July 4 event may stop by the 22nd Street bayside bar and restaurant at any time prior to that day to speedily consume five deli-style hot dogs and buns.

A Fish Tales representative will time each participant, and the 20 people with the fastest times will advance to the finals, scheduled to take place Monday, July 4, at 1 p.m. The cost to take part in the qualifier is $5, which will go toward the prize money pot.

On July 4, a stage will be assembled in the restaurant's parking lot for the 10-minute event, which is modeled after Nathan's famous Fourth of July international contest. Bleachers will be set up in front of the stage for spectators.

The "Top Dog" will take home $1,000 and a trophy. Cash prizes will also be awarded for second and third place. DJ BK is slated to emcee the competition again this year.

Thirteen contestants stuffed their mouths with hot dogs and buns in 2015. Last year's winner, defending champion David Brunelli, of Philadelphia, ate 25 hot dogs in 10 minutes.

Fish Tales and Coors Light are sponsoring the event. Dietz & Watson will supply the hot dogs.

Call 410-289-0990 for more information or to participate in the hot-dog eating contest, if spots are still open.

Ocean City parking information:

The inlet parking lot will charge a $50 flat fee for all day parking on Monday, which is good for one entry and allows visitors to arrive at 5:30 a.m. and stay until midnight without being charged an hourly rate.

Depending on availability, there will also be a late entry fee starting at 3 p.m. and costs $30 for one entry. When the lot fills, visitors can use neighboring parking lots including Worcester Street, Somerset Street, Dorchester Street, North Division Street, Fourth Street and the West Ocean City Park & Ride.

Ticketed parking operations will return at midnight on July 5.

Taking the Ocean City bus costs $3 for the entire day and the West Ocean City Park and Ride on Route 50 offers free parking with a $3 ride-all-day shuttle service to downtown.

Also, the Route 50 Bridge will remain closed to marine traffic from 10:25-10:55 p.m. on July 4 and will reopen for boaters at 11:25 p.m.

Berlin mural panel unveiled at WYFCS

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) Children who worked on the second panel of Berlin’s new community mural got a first glimpse at the finished product last Tuesday evening at Worcester Youth and Family Counseling Services.

Also attending the event were Berlin Mayor Gee Williams, Economic Development Director Ivy Wells, District Court Judge Gerald Purnell, muralist John Donato, WYFCS Youth Program Coordinator Amanda Chaffee and Berlin Arts and Entertainment Committee member Robin Tomaselli.

“We didn’t want to unveil the project to anybody else prior to the kids that worked on it seeing it first. That’s why we’re here tonight,” Tomaselli said.

“I can tell you that it’s been my personal pleasure, and I speak for everybody on our committee, to have partnered with Worcester Youth and Family. We know that this is a valuable service for our community, but until you actually are witnessing it firsthand ... you have no idea how priceless it is,” she added.

Tomaselli spent several months working with the children at WYFCS, from early brainstorming sessions, to throwing on an apron and a grabbing a paintbrush.

“The most fun I’ve had is from spending time with you guys. Your creative energy, your ideas about what Berlin should look like in the future has just been incredible,” she said. “They’re the future of Berlin [and] Berlin’s future is incredibly bright. As a matter of fact, it’s brilliant.”

She said the committee had spent years trying to develop a public art program in Berlin, which she referred to as the “community mural project.”

The Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore funded the second panel, and other area partners provided support, including the town and the Main Street program.

Tomaselli said she felt “blessed” to have been able to work with Donato, and called Chaffee, in particu-

For about three weeks, children at Worcester Youth and Family Counseling Services in Berlin worked on a mural project along with staff, parents, local business owners and volunteers. lar, a “superhero.”

“Her superhero outfit would have a superhero, supersized top in a quadruple extra large so it could fit her huge heart,” she said. “The love that you have for these children and what they have for you should just be a lesson for all of us.”

Donato pointed out that the children did most of the painting. Moreover, he said the concepts and images were all things they came up with themselves.

“What you’re going to see is they really do have a voice – and it’s worth listening to,” he said. “They really focused on this.”

The panel will get a public unveiling during Berlin’s 2nd Friday art stroll next month, at the visitor’s center on Main Street.

‘Lost’ actress, ‘Guiding Light’ cast to perform

By Brian Gilliland
Associate Editor

(June 30, 2016) Opening next month at the Ella Fitzgerald Performing Arts Center at UMES, Michael O’Leary’s “Breathing Under Dirt will bring a handful of actors from the “Guiding Light” soap opera, which ended a 57-year run on television in 2009, and local actor Robert Forester to the stage.

Michael O’Leary, recognizable to Guiding Light fans as the longest-serving incarnation of Rick Bauer, said the play, to be staged on Aug. 13-14, is a study of forgiveness and reconciliation set in Macon, Georgia during the 1950s.

“The underlying theme is alcoholism and its effects on a family. The dad is dead, but his legacy — or lack thereof — informs the relationship of the daughter and mother,” he said. Portraying the father is Forester.

“He has a lot of issues — he went away to war and came back damaged. The only way he communicates with his daughter is by a poem she keeps close,” he said.

It was at Forester’s suggestion that O’Leary brought the play to the lower shore.

Playing the daughter is Cynthia Watros, perhaps best known for her role as “Libby,” love interest of Hugo “Hurley” Reyes on the ABC series “Lost.” Watros also appeared on The Young and the Restless and Guiding Light, for which she won a Daytime Emmy award in 1998.

Tina Sloan, who originated the role of Lillian Raines on Guiding Light in 1983 and stayed until the final broadcast in 2009, is cast as the mother.

Grant Aleksander, known to Guiding Light fans as Phillip Spaulding, will both act in and direct the play.

“The play is about a middle-aged woman trying to slay her demons. It evokes ‘The Glass Menagerie’ with a bit of ‘A Streetcar Named Desire,’” he said. “There are elements of a ‘memory play,’ and the journey is to find out what is real and what is imagined along the way.”

O’Leary said there were elements of “A Beautiful Mind,” the 2001 biopic of John Nash, a Nobel Laureate in economics, within Breathing

Under Dirt.

Kathryn Redden, of the Lower Shore Performing Arts Company, hopes bringing this play, and potentially others, into the area will be a net positive.

“People are so on fire for it,” she said. “There’s a fair amount of community theater here, but I want to create a venue for new playwrights and give them the opportunity to present their work.”

The venue she wants to create isn’t a physical space, but a sensibility.

“We’ll go wherever the arts are. If that’s the new Snow Hill High School, or Salisbury University at the Guerrieri Center — or if we have the option of another place we’ll go there. We’re not locked into a place,” she said.

The performing arts company only recently formed, but is made up of community theater veterans from the lower shore.

Tickets are on sale now for the shows. There are two shows scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 13, a matinee at 2 p.m. and a 7 p.m. show. On Sunday, Aug. 14, a 2 p.m. matinee is scheduled. Tickets are $40 for general admission, and $75 premium seats are also available. Premium tickets include an after show meet and greet with the stars, who will be available for autographs.

Also on Sunday, Aug. 14, Michael O’Leary is offering an actors’ workshop from 10:30 a.m. to noon at $75 per ticket.

Tickets are available through www.lowershorepac.org.

Berlin reaches agreement with electric consultants

(June 30, 2016) Berlin and Booth & Associates, the town's electric utility consultants since 2008, have reached an agreement regarding an issue last year that increased electric expenses related to peak shaving operations, Mayor Gee Williams announced.

Booth has been assisting the town in determining when to generate to reduce demand-related power costs since 2009, resulting in approximately $3.9 million in savings.

According to the agreement reached between Booth & Associates and the town, Booth will provide a 25 percent discount to the town for engineering and financial services for a period of 18 months. In addition, they are not charging the town for work needed to explain the issue to the public service commission.

OPA announces new election details; Ezaoui drops from race

(June 30, 2016) Ocean Pines Association (OPA) will mail out election ballots to its members in good standing on Monday, July 11.

In accordance with OPA bylaws, no member may vote if the member has failed to pay the annual charge, including any assessed interest levied by the association.

There are 11 candidates to fill three open positions on the board of directors. Sharona Ezaoui has removed her application for the board for personal reasons.

Voters can choose no more than three of the following candidates. Write-in candidates are not allowed:

Frank Daly
Slobodan Trendic
George Simon, Jr.
Tom Janasek
Doug Parks
Steve Lind
Brett C. Hill
Ray Unger
Patricia Supik

Jack Collins
Larry Perrone

One election ballot and a postage-paid return envelope will be mailed for each Ocean Pines property, regardless of the number of lot owners on the land record.

Mailed ballots must be received by Aug. 11. Ballots may be dropped off in the ballot box located inside the Ocean Pines Police Station at the OPA Administration Building no later than 5 p.m. on Aug. 11.

Election results will be announced during the annual meeting to be held on Aug. 13 at 10 a.m. at the Ocean Pines Community Center located at 235 Ocean Parkway.

For questions regarding the status of an owner account, call OPA Administration at 410-641-7717. From July 12 to August 11, the elections committee will monitor the elections telephone line, 410-208-3989, for questions and/or requests for replacement ballots.

Homeowner public statement on Ocean Pines construction

(June 30, 2016) Homeowner Robin Tomaselli read a prepared statement, addressing conditions at the swim and racquet club, during the public comments portion of a regular Ocean Pines Association Board of Directors meeting on Saturday.

She also emailed that statement to the Gazette.

“We represent the more than 50 households and countless residents of the Ocean Pines community who utilize and/or whose homes view the area known as the swim and racquet club, marina, tennis courts and recreational area. This area is also identified by the State of Maryland as part of the Maryland and Coastal Bays Critical Area. We want this area returned to a park and recreation area immediately and ask that it be maintained that way all year long.

“Many violations have taken place in this area over the past eight years. Up until eight years ago, the area that is now referred to as a ‘staging area’ by Bob Thompson was considered simply a ‘transfer station’ by the previous general manager. At that time, only an occasional truck from the Ocean Pines Public Works would transfer dirt onto a barge. This happened about two or three times a month for only a few minutes each day and drew little concern from any of the residents of the surrounding communities.

“About six years ago, Fisher Marine was permitted to use and store equipment in this park and recreation area for up to ten months each year. Shortly after that, he moved in as many as four barges. McGinty Marine also moved in equipment. Some of which were tied to the bulkhead and some moored in the canals. After repeated complaints by many in this community without resolution, a call was made to the State of Maryland and they investigated immediately. They found that these barges were illegally moored/stored in these canals. They were sited and made to remove the equipment immediately by the State of Maryland.

“Mr. Fisher was then allowed to not only use the ‘staging area,’ but also the parking lot. There he stored his pilings and lumber for the construction of bulkheads, as well as his 20-foot tool trailer, other trailers, trucks, bulldozers, heavy equipment, fueling stations etc.

“After several individuals wrote letters and some met with Mr. Thompson personally, Mr. Thompson said that he would find another place to utilize as a ‘staging area.’ In the meantime, one resident of Ocean Pines contacted Mr. Fisher and ask him to move his tool trailer with Fisher Marine painted on the side. He did move it, as it was an obvious eye soar in plain view of the resident’s window, directly across the canal.

“Even though this area is designated for park and recreation and is quite clearly with a Critical Bays Area, the conditions there continue to deter-riorate every year, with more equipment, construction materials, hazardous material, explosive fluids etc. being left and stored without care or concern by the manager or board members to the safety of the Ocean Pines residents and visitors who utilize these areas as they are designated ‘park and Recreation’ ... and without care or concern to the damaging environmental impact created by this construction site on our water’s edge.

“There are several violations according to the Declaration of Restrictions of Ocean Pines Section One – B. There is no mention of a ‘staging area.’ The swim and racquet club is listed as a ‘recreational area.’ There is statement on page 125 that states, ‘The general purpose of the association is to further promote the community welfare of property owners in the subdivision.’ Allowing the heavy equipment, unsecured pilings, lumber, diesel fuel tanks, and other trash to remain there for 10 months at a time, giving children and all who utilize it a chance for injury or even death. This is not promoting community welfare.

“Also, on page 145 of the Declarations of Restrictions, Section C, it stated that the association ‘shall be responsible for the upkeep of maintenance, repair, and upkeep of the private streets, and parks within the subdivision.’ The swim and racquet club area is a park.

“Even though the Declaration of Restrictions refers mostly to lots, it does include parks. It makes definite references to parks, recreational areas and the golf course. On page 141, it states that, ‘no vehicle shall be parked on any street in the subdivision. No truck of any type shall be parked for storage overnight or longer, on any lot in the section or subdivision in such a manner as to be visible to the occupants of other lots in the section or subdivision....’ Yet Fisher Marine is allowed to not only create a dangerous situation, but an eyesore for those residents facing that area.

“We are asking that the entire area known as the swim and racquet recreational area be returned to a state that it was intended for at its inception, a safe and eye pleasing area for the residents of Ocean Pines to enjoy.

“We ask that the present ‘staging area’ be moved to the sewage and sanitation area. If dredging is needed, Fisher Marine should do that to suit their needs. The cost could be split among all the waterfront lot owners and Fisher Marine, since both parties benefit from the bulkhead repairs.

“We are providing each of you with a summary of our concerns, the obvious OP violations, photographs of the area taken by Josh Davis of the Bayside Gazette, along with an environmental impact letter drafted regarding their concerns regarding this situation by Assateague Coastal Trust’s Executive Director Kathy Philips.

“Thank you!”

HARD - 50

Fill in the blank spaces in the grid so that every vertical column, every horizontal row and every 3 by 3 box contains the numbers 1 through 9, without repeating any. There is really only one solution to each puzzle.

Rackliffe House dedicates Mariner Memorial Garden

(June 30, 2016) Rackliffe House Trust dedicated the new Ann Showell Mariner Memorial Garden in a ceremony at historic Rackliffe House in Berlin on June 5.

Rackliffe House Trust Board President Carolyn Cummins welcomed 60 guests, including donors, docents, and members of the Mariner family. Father Michael Moyer of Saint Paul's Episcopal Church, blessed the kitchen garden, which is named in memory of local resident Ann Showell Mariner, and made possible by her family and friends.

"Ann loved gardens and historic places," said Susan Mariner, Ann's sister-in-law and Rackliffe House Trust board member. "Her husband, A. Reginald (Reggie) Mariner II, requested donations to this garden in living memory of Ann, who passed in 2013."

Family members in attendance included Jennifer Mariner Neeb and Garrett Neeb, Ann and Reggie Mariner's daughter and grandson.

The Ann Showell Mariner Memorial Garden is an interpretive recreation of the typical kitchen garden Colonial American homes would cultivate, including herbs (for seasoning and preserving food, dyeing cloth and medicinal uses), as well as vegetables and fruits.

This garden includes flax, used to spin linen; lamb's ear, for wound dressing; several varieties of mint, for medicinal and flavoring purposes; and a number of common culinary herbs, such as rosemary, sage, thyme and dill.

Kitchen gardens sometimes were located adjacent to kitchens which, in the 18th and early 19th centuries, often were outbuildings separated from the main house. Enslaved and free servants planted, weeded, watered and harvested the gardens and also worked in the kitchen.

The Ann Showell Mariner Memorial Garden is open year round and is accessible daily by walking behind Assateague Visitors Center and a half mile down Tom Patton Lane.

Rackliffe House is open for tours every Tuesday and Thursday from 1-4 p.m. as well as the second Saturday of each month from 1-4 p.m. through October.

Rackliffe House is a restored 1740s merchant-planter's home overlooking Assateague Island and Sinepuxent Bay. Rackliffe House was constructed by Captain Charles Rackliffe, the grandson of one of the earliest English immigrants to Maryland's seaside.

Don't cut out mayonnaise on cold cut sub

Sometimes it just takes a good, swift kick in the arse to remind us that we may not be purging our belongings on a regular enough basis.

By Paul Suplee,
CEC PCIII

I will admit it; I inherited my father's garage. Needless to say, the man did not keep a clean carriage house. Quite the contrary, on most occasions it was a booby-trapped minefield that only prepared my brother and me for the obstacle courses and myriad adventures that we would encounter in the military.

Piles of magazines that had not been read for years in one corner, and mountains of tools dated to the antebellum era in the other. It was not unusual to have to climb over things to get to the 7/8 inch socket wrench that you needed to fix a very specific part of your bike. It was just another day on Bayberry Drive.

As I look upon the mess that is our new house, I realize that I have a deep case of the Moving Blues. We are no longer residents of Ocean Pines, and have moved up to Bishoptown since we found a house for us and my mother-in-law. It is a lovely house and we are happy to be coming here if we have to leave The Pines.

Despite my ribbing in the past, we do love the community, amenities and activities. But above all, we love the people; we have made a lot of great friends in the Pines and I look forward to staying in touch with all of them.

Despite my closing sentence two weeks ago, my friend Bob, an ardent supporter of Ocean Pines (that may be one of my strongest understatements to date), was here to help move the heavies and keep the ball rolling. To me, this is what makes the community such a wonderful thing.

Unfortunately, it was during the 10 trips in the rental truck, countless hours of moving, and various house guests that I realized that we have collected way too many things over the past 16 years. Of course, we had a truck-full when we moved here from Baltimore in 1999, so it only makes sense that we would be exponentially further-laden.

On a few evenings this week, we would look at each other and realize that no one had eaten for the past 10 hours while dragging, lifting and carrying many cumbersome things. Usually, the answer was fast food or rotisserie chicken, but tonight it was time to make a cold cut sub.

There is something so nourishing about a sandwich piled high with sliced Italian meats, fresh vegetables and mayonnaise. Wait, what? Mayonnaise? Yes, I like mayo on my cold cut subs, so sue me. I know that it can be seen as a grievous sin, but my last name is derived for the French namesake "Souplis" (phonetically the same) so I won't lose a moment's rest on the issue. I like mayo.

Departing from my digression, when the sandwich has been amassed in a manner of Italian-style greatness, it becomes an amazing thing. In fact, I'm not ashamed to say that sometimes a sandwich frees the soul. It's easy to eat, it is nourishing and the many nuances of flavor, texture, smell and sight are one of the most flawless combinations to me.

When it comes to the condiments that I put on sandwiches like this, I like to hit the Sons of Italy aisle in the grocery store or places like Southside Deli. SOI items are great, such as the salt-cured olives, pepperoncini, various marinated vegetables et al. It is easy to make a great sandwich when you use great building blocks along the way.

I sit back in my chair relaxing, writing and dozing off in a food coma while dreaming of the ensuing nightmare of cleaning out our new garage. Since we are moving out in a tremendous hurry and under a little duress, things have ended up in a massive pile in a fairly large garage. I'm not sure that even my father's garage was ever this bad.

I walk outside to assess the damage before bed. As I look at our collection of "things" from the past, I am almost warmed by the quasi-hoarder feel of it. Mayhap I am homesick for Bayberry Drive. Alas, I am not my father, and I will work through the mess one box at a time. I will thin the herd as it were, and this may very well be the swift kick that I need to start paring down the junk. After all, that's exactly what most of it is.

Italian Cold Cut Sub

- per sub*
- 1 12-inch sub roll
  - Mayo, to taste (don't yell at me. It's what I like)
  - 2 ounces Pepperoni slices
  - 2 ounces Genoa salami slices
  - 2 ounces Mortadella Slices
  - 2 ounces Coppa or other Italian salume, sliced
  - 2 slices good provolone cheese
  - Lettuce, as needed
  - Fresh heirloom tomato slices
  - Sliced pepperoncini, as needed
  - Hot peppers, to taste
  - Sweet peppers, to taste
  - Fresh chopped oregano and basil, as needed
  - Cracked black pepper
- Slice the sub roll and schmear with the mayonnaise
- Top with the rest of the glorious fillings and sprinkle with the basil, oregano and black pepper
- Revel in the fact that July 4 weekend is almost upon us and a cold cut sandwich is a cool but spicy curative for the moving blues
