Berlin Fire Co. settle suit with fmr. employee

Details undisclosed; legal battle lasted over two years

By Josh Davis

Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) U.S. District Court Judge Ellen L. Hollander last Wednesday signed a settlement order that will end the two-year legal battle between former Berlin Fire Company employee Zackery C. Tyndall and the Berlin Fire Company.

Tyndall, a former EMT employed at the fire company and a volunteer fireman there as well, filed a complaint on Aug. 27, 2013 alleging that members of the company tried to force him out by harassing him.

In addition the company, other defendants named in his lawsuit were volunteer fireman Byron Trimble, company employees Derek Simpson and Norris Philip Donohue Sr. and fire company President David A. Fitzgerald.

The complaint for damages, filed under the Civil Rights Act, alleged a "deliberate and conscious effort" by the defendants to harass and intimidate Tyndall and "drive him from the Department because of the individual Defendant's perception of his sexual orientation."

According to the complaint, Tyndall maintained he was not a homosexual and that the defendants used verbal slurs and threats of violence to intimidate him.

The complaint went on to allege that Tyndall was assigned to "demeaning" tasks, including cleaning latrines and picking up trash in order to humiliate him "in an attempt to make him quit." Those actions, according to the complaint, led to "severe anxiety and depression."

In 2012, the town of Berlin conducted an internal investigation that led to Donohue's dismissal. According to the complaint, however, Trimble and Simpson continued their harassment and recruited "other members of the Department" to engage in similar activities.

Students take Art in the Fields trip

Fourth grade Worcester Prep class visits gallery during Warhol exhibition

By Josh Davis

Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) On Monday, 17 students from Julie Wilsey's fourth grade class at Worcester Preparatory School took a sunny-day stroll down Main Street for a quick field trip to the Art in the Fields gallery.

The students, with art teacher Rebecca Tittermary, were there to see the gallery's first exhibition, which featured more than two-dozen works from Andy Warhol's famous Sunday B. Morning series.

The series includes Warhol's prints of Marilyn Monroe and Mao Zedong, as well as the Campbell's Soup and Flowers series.

Gallery Director Kelly Lehman said classes from several schools, including more than 80 students from Worcester Prep, have visited the gallery since it opened on Aug. 28.

"It gives them the opportunity to see 20th Century art and learn about different movements and different artists right here in their hometown," Lehman said. "A lot of these kids live right here in Berlin and nearby, and we're just trying to teach them the importance of art history and how that correlates with some of the art projects they'll be doing."

Lehman said many of the older students have enjoyed seeing the artwork in person, while younger students have had fun with the Andy Warhol themed paint-by-numbers coloring sheets she hands out following the tour.

When the fourth grade class came in on Monday, the students filed in and sat, cross-legged, on the floor of the large main room of gallery, surrounded by the colorful serigraphs.

Lehman, who sat on the floor with the students, talked about Warhol's upbringing in Pittsburgh, his early days as a commercial artist, his transformation into a fine artist and the "Factory" days, and his lasting legacy as the father of Pop Art.

The exhibition was a hit for 9-year-old Maria Phillips.

"It's a little hard to point out the differences [in the prints], especially on the Marylins, but it's nice to see the different colors," she said.

Claire Windrow, 9, also said she enjoyed the show.

"What I like about it is that it's different," she said, adding that she liked Flowers series in particular.

Tittermary, also known as "Mrs. T," said the students would have the opportunity to make their own artwork in the style of Andy Warhol during their next project in art class.

"They can either choose to draw their own version of the soup can – or do a print – or they can do their own self portrait in his style," she said. "It's nice to have the inspiration of seeing it in reality, and it's just beautiful."

Wilsey called the tour a "great experience" for her students.

"We're just so blessed to have this so close to the school," she said. "Mrs. T has been talking about this in art class, so for them to come and see it firsthand is just an awesome thing for the kids."

Original Tyndall complaint asked for $8M

Tyndall had requested $2 million in compensatory damages and $6 million in punitive damages in the original complaint.

On July 16 of this year, Hollander rejected the company's motion to dismiss the complaint.

The Bayside Gazette, on July 23, reported that Hollander's 63-page opinion included an evaluation by a clinical psychologist that concluded Tyndall had "developed a Major Depressive Disorder ... experienced through his affiliation with the fire company."

Hollander wrote in the opinion, "Tyndall has produced evidence that Trimble and Simpson—men almost twice his age, and in supervisory positions—subjected him to a prolonged, continuous barrage of derogatory remarks, to which Tyndall repeatedly objected." Hollander added, "Considering the facts ... a reasonable juror could find that such conduct was deliberate, intentional and outrageous ...

[and] extreme, beyond any typical workplace offenses or indiscretions, and 'utterly intolerable in a civilized community.'"

She also added, "To be sure, Tyndall may not succeed in his claim. But, it is not the province of the court to make factual findings or to resolve factual disputes."

In September, a trial date was set for Jan. 11-22, 2016, at U.S. District Court in Baltimore.

Then, following a conference on Oct. 7 presided over by Judge Stephanie Gallagher, a settlement order was signed. Details of the settlement were not disclosed.

According to the order, the action was dismissed and each party was ordered to pay "its own costs unless otherwise agreed." The order added that if details of the settlement were not fulfilled within 30 days, the case could be reopened.

Attorneys from both parties did not return calls for comment.

Wells pushing public art projects in town of Berlin

couldn't even find space to write and everybody gathered around to see what everyone else wrote," she said. "It was well received and the public really enjoyed it.

"I'm a huge proponent for public art and I'm hoping to bring what I started in Sykesville now to Berlin," Wells added.

Submissions can be drawings, short definitions, or even essays, according to Wells.

"For the younger kids, I'm looking for drawings," she said. "You never know what a child is thinking until you see them draw a picture of it. So many different kids have different views of life and, hopefully, it will be interesting to see the different takes of what kids think community really is.

"Some people may think community is family, some people may think community is their neighbors, or maybe the playground," Wells continued. "Each person has his or her own definition."

Each entry will qualify children for a chance to win a prize donated by Berlin shop World of Toys. First place in two age categories, 6-10 and 11-17, will each win a toy.

Entries must be dropped off at the Visitor's Center, on 14 South Main Street, by 4 p.m. Friday, Oct. 16, 2015. Entries will be displayed Oct. 19-28.

Wells will also use the occasion to feature several downtown businesses that have taken advantage of DHCD façade grants.

"I have flyers here with before-and-after pictures, so people can see all the great things that Community Legacy Grant funding offers through DHCD, which is heavily involved with the Community Development Network," she said.

The flyers will be put in the windows of businesses that used the grants, along with art from the "What is Community?" project. The Visitor's Center will also display winning work.

Following the contest, Wells said the town would turn the entries into a permanent notebook-style display at the Visitor's Center.

"I want people to feel curious. I want people to think and to learn. That's the goal of this campaign," Wells said. "Hopefully, in doing this, these kids can think of ways to volunteer and to make our community better."

Berlin green lights new A&E mural project

Council, Historic District Commission each offer unanimous approval

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) A week after the Berlin Arts & Entertainment committee announced its intention to bring three new outdoor murals to downtown Berlin, the project cleared its first two hurdles of town government.

On Oct. 7, Berlin's Historic District Commission unanimously approved a plan for the first mural, which would go on the north-facing wall of the Visitor's Center on South Main Street.

Members of the committee and muralist John Donato were present and said the cost of the first phase of the mural, $2,500, would be covered by a private donation. Committee member Robin Tomaselli said the group had been working for more than two years to find the right location for the mural and that public art was a requirement if Berlin wished to keep its Arts and Entertainment District designation through the state.

Currently the town only has one such work of art, at Stephen Decatur Park.

Delaware native Donato, an experienced muralist, has a background in graphic design and photography. He was educated at the University of Maryland and recently finished a mural at nearby Most Blessed Sacrament Catholic School in Ocean Pines.

Tomaselli said students at Buckingham Elementary School in Berlin would help develop the concept and design of the mural.

"Buckingham, to us, happens to be a school that represents, really, everybody in Berlin – every person of color and socioeconomic status," she said. "If every child in that school can be a part of it ... then that is inclusive of that entire school community."

Donato said the mural would be done in five removable panels that would be attached to the wall. The panels would not cover the windows of the Visitor's Center.

The mural would be weatherproof, he said, and could be made with a protective coating that would make graffiti easy to remove.

Commission member Mary Moore said the project sparked her imagination.

"[The Visitor's Center] is probably one of the most unattractive buildings in town," she said. "I think it's a very creative idea."

She asked that the committee bring a concept drawing back before the Historic District Commission when possible.

On Tuesday, the Berlin Council weighed in on the project, unanimously passing a resolution to allow the mural and to back a $2,500 grant application to the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development.

During the meeting, Tomaselli said she thought excitement from the first phase of the mural, when completed, would help with fundraising efforts for future phases.

Berlin Mayor Gee Williams said he met with the committee during the previous weeks and openly supported the idea, saying it could make South Main Street a "must see" part of downtown Berlin.

"I believe this project can be the catalyst to take the arts and entertainment experience in Berlin to a whole new level," he said. "I think this can be another source of permanent pride, and I love the fact that it's a living project."

Councilmember Dean Burrell agreed.

"I think the concept is brilliant," he said. "I think using the panels is splendid. If this is your idea, you really have a fantastic one."

Burrell also praised the committee for wanting to work with the students at Buckingham.

"It just feels like a feel-good project," he said.

Committee taps Donato for multiple murals

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) The Berlin Arts & Entertainment Committee last week announced its intention to bring multiple outdoor murals to Berlin.

In doing so, the committee called on a man who brings a diverse background of experience to the task, muralist John Donato.

Donato, 53, grew up on an apple farm in southern New Jersey and went to the University of Maryland, where he earned a degree in advertising and design.

After doing freelance work for a few years, Donato said he jumped into the corporate world in the Washington, D.C. area, where he focused on land and community development, as well as marketing and public relations.

"I was basically a suit-and-tie guy," he said.

Eventually, Donato moved to the Eastern Shore and worked in the development field on the coast. In 2004, he moved to Ocean View, Del., where he still lives and works.

Donato said he started "dabbling" in painting around that time. Then, in 2008 when the economy soured, he decided to start his own business that focused on fine art.

That year, while participating in a show in Ocean City, N.J., he was approached by a school principal, who asked him to do a mural with contributions by the students.

Using everything he'd learned in advertising, marketing and design, Donato developed a program that would incorporate curriculum into the project, bringing more than 700 schoolchildren together over "Literacy Week," a theme that they had already been studying.

With the school's help, the program stretched out over a month and culminated in the creation of the mural.

"That was the very first one and I said, 'OK, everything I've done makes sense,'" Donato said. "Everything I've learned makes sense. Let's apply it here, but with art.' That was it."

Donato hopes work matches Berlin's 'spirit of innovation'

Donato said he has used that approach ever since, while adapting it to a number of different circumstances, to accomplish the same basic goal – to engage a community in creating a lasting work of art that has broad appeal.

Last year, Donato was commissioned to work on an indoor mural at the Most Blessed Sacrament Catholic School in Ocean Pines. It was that project that led the A&E Committee to select him for the multi-mural assignment in Berlin.

The committee chose the side of the Visitor's Center facing South Main Street for its first mural.

Berlin's Historical District Commission preliminarily approved the project last week, and the Town Council voiced its support Tuesday.

One of Donato's first contributions to the plan – a five-panel mural that travels through phases of past and present Berlin – was to involve nearby Buckingham Elementary.

"I became an artist late in life because I wasn't really exposed to it that much," he said. "One of my gifts that I want to give back to the community is I want to see art become a more important part of early learning.

"I believe art is just as important as science, engineering, technology and math – the STEM programs," Donato continued. "Art should be in there because there is a creative component that will support and bolster those other areas of learning. I think it's important for communities to be creative."

Donato said the project is in the design phase, but suggested that a seasonal theme will help tell a story of Berlin's history in five different panels of art.

"What is it becoming and what its past was, and all the value of Berlin is going to be incorporated," he said. "We'll start getting into formulating – what are all the things we want to put in this mural, then how are we going to make this a nice, cohesive story, then what are the images going to be?"

He said a preliminary sketch would be presented to the town before work starts, and that the mural would then be painted on removable panels in phases, with work likely starting in the new year.

Because of the paints and other materials he plans to use, Donato said the mural should last "probably 50 years."

"It might fade a little bit, but not a lot," he said. "It will probably outlive me."

Donato said he hopes the finished project will serve as a calling card for the town.

"Since it is the Visitor's Center, it's the first impression of the community," he said. "Berlin has so many cool things going on and I think it's a great opportunity to give a really good first impression, and at the same time be something that's fun to look at."

"I think it should give some awareness about the history of Berlin, bring some awareness of what is here now, and then bring some awareness of our hopes and dreams – where are we going and where could we go?" Donato continued.

All that information, he said, should come from the students at Buckingham.

"The kids are going to inherit this town, so you want to hear what they have to say," he said. "You want to hear what their hopes and dreams are. They're the ones that are going to inherit what we leave behind."

"I'm very excited about the project," Donato added. "In my world of muraling, this is one of the purest forms of community muraling. This is truly like a whole town getting together to create something that I haven't seen someplace else."

"For Berlin, that is what Berlin is all about," he said. "I don't think it's a coincidence that they're the ones that actually go after a project like this. Their whole makeup is exactly in that spirit of innovation."

BERLIN BRIEFS

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) The Berlin Mayor and Council discussed the following items during a public meeting at Town Hall on Tuesday.

New construction

Engelhart said the town had a good year with new home construction, especially with “fill-in” lots. A total of 11 new family dwellings, not counting Cannery Village, have been built this year in Berlin.

Business returning

Wells said Berlin Organics, located just off North Main Street near Leaky Pete’s restaurant, would be reopening soon.

The business recently renewed its business license, according to Wells.

Wells also said the “pop up” shop located within the Berlin Coffee House, made possible because of a DHCD grant, would open during Berlin’s November 2nd Friday art stroll on Nov. 13.

The shop will exclusively feature “Make it in Maryland” items as part of the state’s Manufacturing Extension Partnership, described as “Maryland’s first and only program dedicated to manufacturers within the state to showcase companies, demonstrate the value of manufacturing within Maryland and highlight manufacturing successes.”

Sidewalk update

Following several months of work, the town has obtained easements for a new sidewalk on Branch Street.

Public Works Director Jane Kreiter said the project should go out for bid within the next few weeks and could be finished within three-to-four weeks after a bid was selected, depending on weather conditions.

When pressed by the council, Kreiter agreed the project would be done by early spring 2016, at the latest.

Last walk

The final “Walks with Elected Officials” is coming next week.

District 3 Councilmember Elroy Brittingham will host a gathering with constituents on Oct. 20 at 6:30 p.m. at the Multipurpose Building on Flower Street.

Previously, councilmembers Lisa Hall, Troy Purnell and Dean Burrell have held “walks.”

Better brochures

The council unanimously approved a resolution by Economic and Community Development Director Ivy Wells to redesign the town’s official brochure and downtown business map.

Wells is applying for a state Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) grant for $7,500 to pay for the redesign. She said the new map would include a historical component, as well as a walking tour.

Redesignation

Managing Director Jeff Fleetwood (formerly human resources director) said the town would be redesignated as a “Sustainable Community” during the Maryland Municipal League’s Fall Conference in Cambridge. The conference will be held Oct. 26-28 at the Hyatt Regency.

The designation, available through the state’s department of planning, opens the town to additional tax credits.

Bertino to host town hall mtg.

(Oct. 15, 2015) Chip Bertino, Worcester County Commissioner for the Ocean Pines district, will host a Town Meeting on Saturday, Oct. 24, at the Ocean Pines branch library at 10 a.m.

Commissioner Bertino will provide information on issues and developments occurring within the district and the county.

Sonny Bloxom, Worcester County attorney, is the guest speaker. Commissioner Bertino will be joined by Commissioner President Jim Bunting during the question and answer part of the program.

Berlin PD make 'significant' heroin bust

Mumford, 19, charged with possessing more than 60 packets of drug

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) Berlin police last Thursday announced the first significant heroin bust in the town in more than a year, as 19-year-old Richard Tye Mumford Jr. of Bishopville was charged with possessing more than 60 packets of the drug, with intent to distribute.

Berlin police said they received a "concerned resident's tip" of drug activity at the Bay Terrace Apartments on 517 Bay Street on Oct. 8.

Officers arrived at the scene at approximately 11:30 a.m. and saw what they considered suspicious activity involving a 1998 Buick Park Avenue in the parking lot of the apartment complex.

Police approached two men standing near the car. One fled and the other was questioned and released, according to police.

When police approached the driver, Mumford, a 5'6", 135-pound African-American, they reported smelling a strong odor of marijuana coming from both his person and the car itself.

A search of the vehicle turned up the heroin packets as well as a loaded .38 caliber handgun, four cell phones and $470 in cash.

Police reportedly also found a "large caliber bullet hole" near the glove compartment.

The car was impounded and Mumford was taken to Worcester County Jail and charged with six counts including possession, intent to distribute and four counts related to possession of a handgun.

Bond was initially set at $25,000.

Officer Aaron Titerence with the Berlin Police Department said the amount of heroin seized was not unusual in this kind of circumstance.

"Sixty, 70 to a hundred bags is usually what a typical dealer will carry on them at a time," he said. "You'll see up to thousands of bags at a stash house or in a dealer's actual house."

Titerence said the street value of the individual bags could vary from as little as $10 to as much as $50 each.

According to Maryland Judiciary Case Search a preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 3.

The incident is still under investigation by the Berlin Police Department and the Worcester County Sheriff's Office Criminal Enforcement Team.

Wor. brewers take part in pair of craft beer festivals

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) Several Worcester County breweries took part in a pair of craft beer festivals – Double Down in Ocean Pines and the Good Beer Festival in Salisbury – over the weekend.

Double Down, held Oct. 9-11 at the Casino at Ocean Downs, featured Tall Tales and Fin City breweries, as well as wine from distributor Reliable Churchill.

The outdoor event, held near the harness racing track, benefited local nonprofit Diakonia.

“This is our third year we’ve been doing it and Ocean Downs has been awesome to work with,” Diakonia Volunteer Coordinator Susan Blaney said. “They do three food drives, nine weeks out the year, collecting food for us.”

“For us that means we get about 400 pounds of food each day [from the casino],” Blaney continued. “We have the largest food pantry in Worcester County and it means a lot that we have all that food donated to us.”

Blaney said Diakonia provides 50-60,000 meals per year and more than 22,000 bags of groceries to struggling families in the county.

“That’s 100,000 pounds of food,” she said. “The community makes that happen.”

Candice Meyer, from Tall Tales Brewing Company, poured Some Beach Island Ale, Evil Apple Ale, Midnight Pumpkin and Red Headed Step Child during the event.

“These events help people try something they might not have tried before,” she said. “They let people know our brand a little bit more and hopefully get people out to the brewery.”

Shelly Bruder, owner of the Bruder Hill boutique in Berlin, ran one of several vendor tables during the event. She also donated proceeds from her sales to Diakonia.

“It’s a wonderful event, because it’s about giving back to the community and we love giving back to Diakonia,” she said. “I love being involved with them any chance I get.”

Meanwhile Good Beer, held at Pemberton Park Oct. 10-11, included dozens of craft breweries from across the country.

Worcester County participants included Burley Oak Brewing Co., Fin City Brewing Company, Assawoman Bay Brewing Co., OC Brewing Company and Backshore Brewing Co.

Brewers gearing up for Shore Craft Beer Fest, Oct. 24

Brewmaster Vince Wright and his wife, Fin City Assistant Brewer Michele Wright, were both on hand during the event.

“The turnout is fantastic, the weather is fantastic and there are a lot of great beers to try today,” he said.

Wright said the event also helped prepare the brewery for the upcoming Shore Craft Beer Fest in Ocean City.

“Anything local that we can do, we love,” he said. “We travel a lot with our beer. Last week we were out in Hagerstown, and that’s a jog for us, but any time we can do something close to home we’re all about it.”

One of the longest lines during the two-day festival belonged to Berlin’s Burley Oak.

Brewmaster Bryan Brushmiller gave a beer talk on sour beers during the event, focusing on the brewery’s homemade strain of lactobacillus, the bacteria responsible for the “tangy” taste in sour beer.

“We talked about the souring process and the technicalities of souring wort, and in using kettle sours versus barrel-aged sours,” he said. “We also talked about the benefits of canning, because we do sour beer in a can.”

Adam Davis from Backshore Brewing Company in Ocean City shows off his trademark VW bus during Saturday’s Good Beer festival in Salisbury.

Brushmiller also said Burley Oak is the first American brewery to put a dry-hopped sour beer in a can.

“I think people like sour beers because it’s a sensory experience you usually don’t get,” he said. “It’s just a new way to use your tongue. IPAs were really popular for a while because it was that bitterness on your tongue, and now we’re putting that sourness on your tongue.”

“I’m going to say sour is the new IPA,” he added.

Adam Davis from Backshore Brewing Company credited the clear skies and generally pleasant weather with the large turnout during Good Beer.

“Last year it poured and two years before that it was pretty awful weather wise, but we’re doing really well so far,” he said. “We’re pouring a lot of beer.”

Davis said Backshore would bring its Boardwalk Blonde and Downtown Sugar Brown to next week’s Shore Craft Beer Fest, as well as the Breakfast Porter and Autumn Harvest he collaborated on with Jason Weissberg from Assawoman Bay Brewing Company, Jerry Franklin from 3rd Wave Brewing Co. and Doug Griffith from Xtreme Brewing.

“I’m excited for them. I’ve never put beets in a beer before, so that will be certainly interesting,” he said of the Autumn Harvest.

“The [‘Breakfast’] molasses porter is a good recipe too,” he added. “I’ve never made that beer specifically, but just looking at the recipe and comparing it to how I would think to brew a porter and the porters I’ve made in the past, I think it will be pretty good. I’m excited for that one too.”

The Shore Craft Beer Fest will be held Oct. 24 in Sunset Park, Ocean City, and will feature 11 different breweries from across the Eastern Shore.

Tickets are $25 in advance or $35 at the door. Designated driver and VIP passes are also available.

Pines Aquatics offering fall programs at Sports Core pool

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) With the calendar turning, the outdoor swimming options in Worcester County are becoming far less attractive, unless you're into that whole polar bear thing.

Thankfully, Ocean Pines Aquatics continues to offer a variety of programs at its heated indoor pools.

On Friday, Nov. 6, aquatics will host a one-day junior lifeguard program from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Public schools are not in session that day, thus creating the opportunity to hold a different kind of class, Aquatics Director Colby Phillips said.

"We have a three-step program, so if you've done the junior guard program before, you can go to the next step," she said.

Second-time participants can become "crew chiefs" under the program, while third-time participants will become "officers." Phillips said attendance during a similar event held last summer was high, leading aquatics to develop the third step.

"You get a shirt based on your rank and you learn different skills based on how many times you've done it with us," Phillips said.

The program is designed for children 7 and up. The cost is $75 and includes a shirt, whistle, first aid pack and lunch.

On the following day, Saturday, Nov. 7, aquatics will host the latest in its popular "Dive-In" movies screenings and will show "The SpongeBob Movie: Sponge Out of Water."

The screening begins at 6:30 p.m., with doors opening at 6 p.m. During the event, children and their families will be able to swim in the pool while the film is projected onto a large inflatable screen.

As a special treat, children who arrive at 5:30 p.m. can meet and greet with SpongeBob himself, which includes a photo opportunity.

"These have been really popular," Phillips said. "We did two or three last year and we usually average about 75 people."

Phillips said a screening of "Frozen," held last year, which included a meet and greet with Anna and Elsa, drew more than 150 people.

"It's a lot of fun for the kids," she said. "We have popcorn and people can bring in a pizza and float around on rafts while they watch the movie."

Tickets are $3 for swim members, $5 for residents and $7 for nonresidents. Families are $20.

Both events will be held at the Sports Core Pool on 11143 Cathell Road.

For more information, call 410-641-5255 or visit www.oceanpines.org/administration/aquatics-administration.

Hobby Horse Race new to Octoberfest in downtown Berlin

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) Along with the usual staples of beer, food and live music, Saturday's annual Octoberfest celebration in Berlin will also feature a number of new activities and events.

One of the more unusual additions looks to be the "Born to be Wild Assateague Hobby Horse Steeplechase Race," sponsored by the Assateague Island Alliance and Macky's Bayside Bar & Grill.

During the new event, teams of three will "gallop" down Broad Street through a series of obstacles while riding, of course, a wooden hobbyhorse.

Organizer Jimmy Pavlik, a manager at Macky's, compared the event to a relay race that is similar in tone – and humor – to Berlin's annual bathtub race.

Ashlie Kozlowski, outreach coordinator with the alliance, said contestants are encouraged to dress in Oktoberfest lederhosen – or in costume as a horse. The alliance will provide hobbyhorses or contestants can make or bring their own.

"We're keeping it fun and light," she said. "We have some jumps and a pool filled with straw just to get people to be silly. DeeJay BK is going to emcee the event, so it's going to be entertaining.

"The best part is that the winners receive a beautiful wreath garland made by Bleached Butterfly in Berlin and then they'll also receive a huge basket of cheer," she added.

Kozlowski said all funds raised during the event would support the non-profit, which she called a "friends" group supporting the Assateague Island National Seashore.

"We're really excited to be partnering with the town of Berlin for this event," she said. "Since Assateague is part of the town of Berlin, we really want to foster that relationship and that connection, and we're very excited to have the town of Berlin highlighted in our event."

She added that the teams and sponsors would each have the added benefit of high visibility during what is expected to be a well-attended event.

“We’ll be providing some entertainment and some community development in addition to providing awareness and fundraising for our organization,” she said.

Signup for the event is $60 per team. All racers will receive a limited edition plastic beer stein.

Sponsors for the event in addition to Macky’s are Bayside Boat Rentals, Bleached Butterfly, 28th St. Pit and Pub and Baked Dessert Cafe. Additional sponsorships are available, starting at $100.

Pavlik said the nonprofit is always looking for new members in the Alliance, which costs $50 a year and includes admission to several events on the island.

Octoberfest brings beer, food, music to downtown Berlin

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) Octoberfest will return to downtown Berlin this weekend with a full day of entertainment planned around the theme of the classic German folk festival.

This year’s event, to be held Saturday from noon to 6 p.m., will include several food vendors and live music from Baltimore classic rock band, Vintage Hi-Fi, at 2 p.m.

Ocean 98 will host the event, with additional polka music starting at noon.

Children’s activities include a giant pirate slide, pumpkin painting and scarecrow making.

For adults, the hobby horse steeple-chase race, similar in tone to the bathtub and high heel races, will run down Broad Street from 1-2 p.m., while an apple pie-baking contest will give competitors the opportunity to win a cash prize of $100. Pies must be dropped off in front of the Atlantic Hotel by 11:30 a.m. Judging will start at 2 p.m.

Burley Oak Brewing Company will host a beer garden, the Atlantic Hotel’s Drummers Cafe will sell bratwurst and Rosenfeld’s Jewish Delicatessen will offer corned beef, pastrami and knishes.

Additional food vendors will include Crush N Crab, Eastern Shore Kettle Korn and Baked Dessert Cafe.

The Berlin Fall Sidewalk Sale will run in conjunction with Octoberfest, as several shops offer discounts on sidewalk displays.

Free parking in Berlin will be available at Berlin Intermediate School on 309 Franklin Avenue, with a complimentary shuttle sponsored by the Casino at Ocean Downs.

Stalled car in 1980 brought two D.C. 'Cruisers' to Berlin

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) Spurred on by last week's Fall Cruisers event in Berlin, resident Sharon Shelton recalled the incident that led to her and husband Frank's desire to move to the small town from the Washington, D.C. suburbs many years ago.

It was several years ago that the couple began to bring their 1974 Chevrolet Nova, "Spirit of America" edition, to Berlin for the cruiser weekend.

In 1980, while vacationing in Ocean City, the car stalled after they filled it up at a gas station on Coastal Highway. They called a tow truck and the driver said he would take the car to Barrett Chevrolet.

"We asked him, 'Where is Barrett Chevrolet?'" Sharon said. "He said, 'It's just over to Berlin.' We asked, 'Where is Berlin?'"

The driver told the couple the town was just a few miles west, on Route 50, and to get directions from the dealership when they called.

On the following day, the Shelton's received a call from Barrett that the car was ready. Frank took a bus from the condominium on 135th Street and then taxied into Berlin.

Sharon recalled being astonished that the total price to repair the car, including the towing charge, was just $78.

"Having had car issues while away from home before, we were expecting something like, 'How much do we owe you?' And they would respond with, 'How much do you have?'" she said.

Then, when Frank pulled out of the Barrett lot, he mistakenly turned right and ended up in downtown Berlin on Main Street.

"He fell in love with the little town," Sharon said, adding that Frank then drove back to the condominium, picked up Sharon and their three children, and drove the entire family back to Berlin.

"We walked around town window shopping and I fell in love with the little town," she said. "The people at the dealership were honest and the people we met were very friendly."

"The town was such a refreshing change of pace to our hometown, Washington, D.C., where we worked," Sharon continued. "We promised each other that one day, Lord willing, we would move to this quaint little place."

In 2001, the Sheltons made good on their promise, selling their home in Charles County and moving to the River Run Golf Club community.

"Although our mailing address is Berlin, we're not in downtown Berlin, but close enough so we can enjoy all of the cool events there like the Christmas parade, Peach Festival, fall and spring car shows, high heel races, bathtub races, Easter parade and the fiddler's convention," Sharon said. "Our car troubles that day back in 1980 were truly a blessing in disguise."

Town, BFC should settle

Although the sorry tale of the Berlin Fire Company, Zack Tyndall and the Town of Berlin has long since vanished from the headlines, it now appears to be a case closed forever.

With a settlement reached in Tyndall’s harassment suit against the company and others, that aspect of this unfortunate situation has been concluded, but some unfinished business remains.

The fallout from the case also drew in the Town of Berlin, which at one point more or less severed financial ties with the company. To be sure, there were multiple reasons for the break and in some instances it came down to a contest of wills.

As is frequently the result of confrontations between two parties such as these, the public becomes caught in the middle. Right or wrong has nothing to do with it.

The relationship between the town and the company has thawed somewhat over time, but it has yet to fully recover, as the friction between the two remains.

With the end of the dispute between Tyndall and the company, however, now is the proper time to mend some fences elsewhere. If the plaintiff and the defendants in this legal action can agree on what it takes to resolve the matter, then the town and the company ought to be to able to do the same.

When settlements are reached in legal disputes, each participant must be able to accept a little less and give a little more than was originally intended. But they do so because the pursuit of an unattainable objective reaches a point where it no longer makes sense to continue.

That is where this lingering dispute has arrived – at the point where the endless friction isn’t doing anyone any good. Obviously, each side will have give ground and take steps that it would have preferred to avoid.

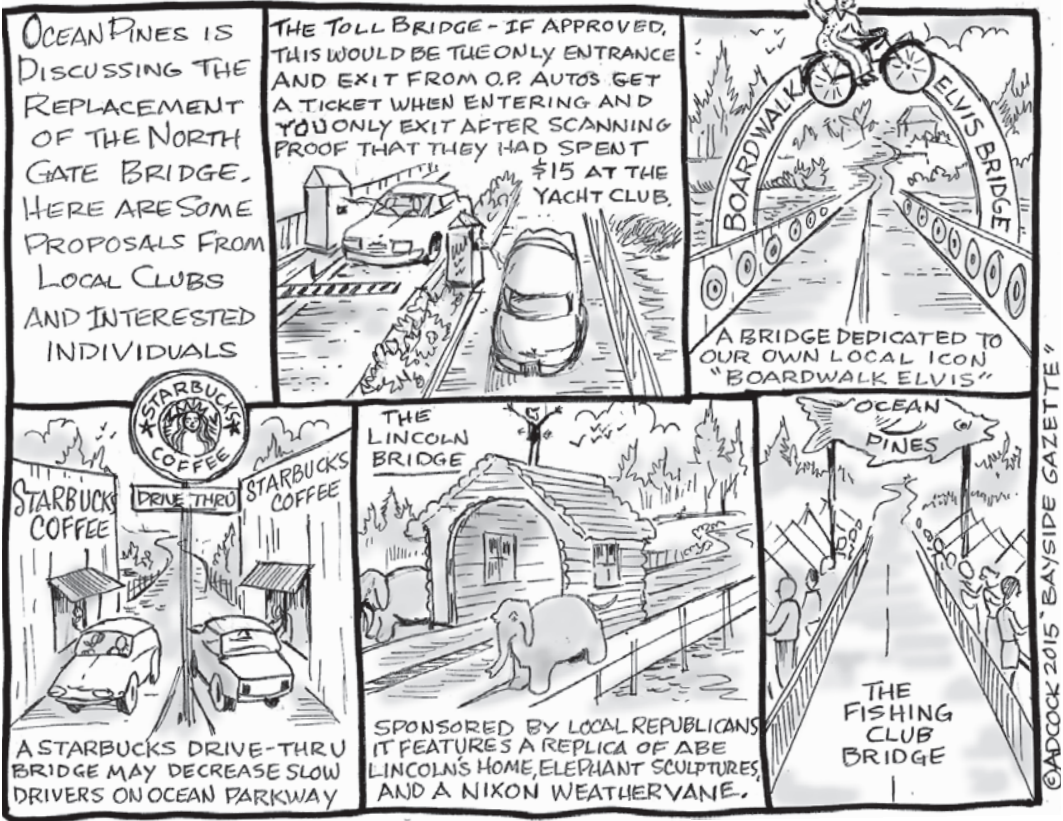

But it is not the good of the company or the good of town government that’s at stake, it’s the good of the town. Let’s settle this disagreement as well.

Making Strides 5K run/walk, Oct. 18

Annual event in Ocean City to raise money for American Cancer Soc.

By Lisa Capitelli
Managing Editor

(Oct. 15, 2015) More than 1,000 people participated in Ocean City’s American Cancer Society Making Strides Against Breast Cancer 5K run and walk last year and about the same number or more are expected to take part in the fifth annual resort event this Sunday.

“Every year, more and more people come out,” said Beverly Furst, chairwoman of the Ocean City run and walk. “Every year it’s been growing and growing and we couldn’t be more happier about that.”

About 119 teams from various corporations, schools, churches and social civic groups registered for the 2014 event. The Ocean City Making Strides was ranked first in the state out of five races last year. The participation goal for the 2015 run and walk is 127 teams.

As of Tuesday afternoon, 74 teams and 371 participants had registered for this year’s event, according to makingstrideswalk.org/oceancitymd.

Runners who have already signed up can pick up their race packets today, Friday, from 4-7 p.m. or Saturday, from 9 a.m. until noon at Wockenfuss Candies, located between Hallmark and Bath & Body Works in the White Marlin Mall, off Route 50 in West Ocean City.

Anyone interested in competing in the 5K run can register during those times or Sunday, beginning at 7:30 a.m. in the inlet parking lot. The cost is $45, and entry fee includes a T-shirt.

There is no cost to take part in the walk.

An opening ceremony will begin around 8 a.m. Sunday. The festivities will include guest speaker, Atlantic General Hospital oncologist, Dr. Roopa Gupta; cancer survivor and state Delegate Mary Beth Carozza will say a few words, and Pink Ribbon Classic at the Beach Series committee member and survivor, Sheryl Mitrecic, will sing.

Ocean City Mayor Rick Meehan is slated to take the stage to welcome participants, and Sen. Jim Mathias will greet the crowd. DJ Rupe will provide the music. MaryBeth Beck of Pilates Zumba and Yoga Fitness Studio in West Ocean City will get runners and walkers warmed up.

Other activities in the inlet parking lot will include corn hole, bra pong, face painting, photo booth and a Wall of Hope. Starbucks will offer free coffee as well. Pink Ribbon and Making Strides merchandise will be for sale.

A tent will be set up where breast cancer survivors can converge. Survivors will receive a sash, T-shirt and goody bag sponsored by Atlantic General Hospital, and food courtesy of Chick-fil-A of West Ocean City and A Bagel And in Ocean Pines. Last year about 80 survivors attended.

Survivors will be celebrated and come together for a photo before the race.

“Making Strides is also a celebration of breast cancer survivorship. Many breast cancer survivors will participate in the walk and celebrate their own victories as well as lending hope and support to those currently battling the illness,” said Josette Castiglione, community manager, Making Strides Against Breast Cancer South Atlantic Division, American Cancer Society Inc. “New friendships will be made and tears of joy will be shed as so many gain strength and hope on this day. Who would want to miss that?"

The 5K run will begin at 9 a.m. in the inlet lot near the Boardwalk. The walk will start around 9:15 a.m. on the Boardwalk.

Spectators and supporters are encouraged to attend.

"In addition to a Making Strides store full of fun pink accessories to raise awareness while making a fashion statement, there will be plenty of people to cheer on. Even if you can't walk or run, be one of the smiling faces along the way clapping as a breast cancer survivor or two walk by, letting them know that you recognize and support their journey," Castiglione said. "Get involved now. There is still plenty of work left to end this disease. There will be plenty of ACS staff and volunteers at the Strides event. Ask one of them how you can help."

Light refreshments will be provided after the run and walk in the inlet lot.

The run will be timed and medals will be awarded to the first-, second- and third-place male and female in each age division. The top overall male and female will win an award as well.

The top fund raisers as of Oct. 18 will also be recognized after the run and walk. Participants will have until Dec. 31 to turn in their final donations.

Free parking will be available in the inlet until noon. Passes will be distributed at the check-in tent at the inlet that morning. They will also be available at Wockenfuss Candies during packet pickup today and Saturday.

This is the fifth year the run and walk is an official Making Strides event. For 10 years before that, it was the Pink Ribbon Classic run and walk, one of a series of local events to raise breast cancer awareness while collecting money for the ACS. The Pink Ribbon Classic run and walk took place in the midtown area, from 61st Street to the Ocean City convention center on 40th Street and back, along Coastal Highway.

Furst, organizer of the run and walk, inquired about the local activity becoming a Making Strides event since the money raised was going to the ACS anyway, but at that time they were only held in urban areas.

When an ACS Making Strides small community model was created, Furst was approached about the Ocean City run and walk becoming a Making Strides event.

"Since the beginning, the Making Strides event has grown exponentially because of more exposure with national branding and recognition," Furst said.

Funds raised through Making Strides Against Breast Cancer walks enable the American Cancer Society to finish the fight against breast cancer by investing in groundbreaking research, providing free, comprehensive information and support to those touched by breast cancer, and helping people reduce their breast cancer risk or find it early when it's most treatable.

The Ocean City event is one of more than 300 Making Strides walks across the country that raise more than $60 million for the ACS each year.

"Uniting with others in the Making Strides walk gives us power to make a real difference in the fight to end breast cancer," Furst said. "At the event, we celebrate survivorship and pay a meaningful tribute to those affected by the disease. Thanks to participants, the American Cancer Society is there for those who are currently dealing with a breast cancer diagnosis, those who may face a diagnosis in the future, and those who may avoid a diagnosis altogether because of education and risk reduction."

Since 1993, more than 11 million supporters have raised in excess of $685 million nationwide. In 2014 alone, 1.3 million walkers across the country raised $64 million to help finish the fight against breast cancer.

The Ocean City Making Strides 5K run and walk is one of several events that make up the Pink Ribbon Classic at the Beach Series, an assortment of local activities to increase breast cancer awareness while raising money for the American Cancer Society.

The 2015 Classic includes a ladies-only fishing tournament; card, game and mahj party; tennis, mah jongg and golf tournaments, Jammin' Out Cancer, Brews for Boobs, Making Strides Against Breast Cancer 5K walk and run and "Pamper Yourself for Charity" raffle.

Most of the events are held in October, which is Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

The Pink Ribbon Classic Series was started in 1996 by a group of volunteers. Last year, the series raised more than $335,000 for the American Cancer Society's fight against breast cancer. The goal is $350,000 for 2015.

Since its inception, the series has raised about $1.5 million for breast cancer research, awareness, programs and services.

Some of the local programs and services in this area include free wigs for patients; the Look Good Feel Better program, which teaches patients how to cope with the cosmetic side-effects of treatment; Reach to Recovery, a one-on-one support visitation program by trained breast cancer survivors for new patients and Road to Recovery, which gives patients transportation to and from cancer treatments.

There is also the Hope Lodge, which provides lodging during treatment; Patient Navigator Program, which helps with the health care system; Cancer Survivors Network and a 24-hour-a-day cancer information center.

Visit makingstrideswalk.org/oceancitymd for more information. Find the Ocean City chapter on Facebook at www.facebook.com/makingstridesoc or at the Twitter handle @OCMDStrides.

This year, 4,730 women in Maryland will be diagnosed with breast cancer. Across the country that number rises to 231,840, and an estimated 40,290 will die from the disease, according to the ACS. Breast cancer is the most frequently diagnosed cancer in women except for skin cancer, and is the second-leading cause of cancerous death in women.

"Breast Cancer is the most commonly diagnosed cancer in women and something needs to be done to change these odds now. We are fighting through Making Strides Against Breast Cancer," Castiglione said. "The American Cancer Society wants to make sure that nobody fighting breast cancer should ever have to walk alone. Money raised will help save lives through groundbreaking research and programs to promote early detection. Funds raised will help to provide patients and family caregivers with access to 24/7 critical information and support. When you support the American Cancer Society you're providing a hand to hold for someone who desperately needs one."

About 100 customers, employees and friends of the CraZy LadyZ stores in Ocean City and Ocean View Del., traveled together to the Mayan Riviera in Mexico this year as part of a travel/donation package offered by the owners of the clothing shop. The travelers raised about $7,000 for Coastal Hospice, which will be presented during an event at Alex's Italian Restaurant in West Ocean City next week.

Travelers raise $7,000 for Coastal Hospice

By Brian Gilliland
Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) Many local groups and organizations raise money for causes, but not many of them do it by taking people on vacation.

Almost every year for the past six years, Jan Patterson, an owner of the CraZy LadyZ clothing stores in Ocean City and Ocean View, Del., has organized a trip and picked a cause and done just that.

This year, the cause is Coastal Hospice, and the check for the donated funds, this year about $7,000, will be presented to the end-of-life care facility next week at an event at Alex's Italian Restaurant in West Ocean City, Patterson said.

"We're just a small shop but we like to do things in a big way," Patterson said. "We've grown every year. This year's trip had almost 100 participants."

Notably, and unsurprisingly since the participants are drawn from the shops' clientele, most travelers are women.

"We're a ladies store and the original idea was for an all-girls trip," she said. "But everyone loved the concept and — beautifully enough — we had 10 wonderful men join us this year."

The group traveled to the Mayan Riviera in Mexico this year, and stayed in the all-inclusive Now Sapphire Riviera Cancun Resort. The trip was booked through CraZy LadyZ employee and travel agent Cookie Breitenbach, she said.

"Our first two trips were cruises and we found that too confining. We're also price conscious because our group is made up of a lot of retirees, but we like to spread out. If someone wants to go shopping or exploring, it has to be in a place where it's safe to do so," Patterson said.

Even the late date — the vacationers just recently returned — was intentional.

"We leave when the schools, colleges and universities reopen," she said.

Early each year, Patterson posts a signup sheet in the stores to gauge interest. Then a destination, donation and charity are identified. Those still on the list as of July 1 are booked to go. Each traveler makes a set donation, and the CraZy LadyZ stores and Breitenbach contribute.

Previous beneficiaries include Worcester GOLD, Women Supporting Women and the American Cancer Society.

Erté exhibition coming to Art in the Fields gallery, Fri.

By Josh Davis

Staff Writer

(Oct. 15, 2015) Nearly two months after the first official exhibition bowed at the Art in the Fields gallery on 9 South Main Street in Berlin, its second exhibition, featuring Erté, will open Friday.

The Russian-born French artist, also known as Romain de Tiroff, is considered one of the progenitors of the art deco movement.

Gallery Director Kelly Lehman said the artist's nom d'artiste, Erté, comes from the French pronunciation of his initials, "R.T."

"His family [had] a very important name in the military, so his father didn't approve of him becoming an artist and didn't like his lifestyle, so early on he moved to Paris," Lehman said.

In 1915, Erté began doing cover design work for the magazine, Harper's Bazaar.

"Some people say that's what really started the art deco movement," Lehman said. "He was also pretty well-known as a fashion designer, doing dresses for famous actresses of the time, as well as jewelry."

Lehman said the exhibition would feature more than 20 two-dimensional works by the artist. The gallery's previous exhibition featured Andy Warhol.

"We'll have all different sizes and all different subject matters, whereas with Warhol we had four subject matters," she said. "It'll be a lot different. We'll go from pop art to art deco, so we're going back in time a little bit."

The foyer section of the gallery will also include works by Salvador Dali and Peter Max.

Lehman said the next exhibition, due in the end of November, would feature abstract artist Ilya Bolotowsky.

Art in the Fields is open seven days a week, from noon to 4 p.m.

For more information, email info@artinthefields.com or visit www.artinthefields.com.

VOLT small biz loan session scheduled for Fri. at OP library

(Oct. 15, 2015) The Video Lottery Terminal (VOLT) small business loan information session has been rescheduled to take place at the Ocean Pines Branch Library on Friday, Oct. 16, from 10 a.m. to noon.

Worcester County Economic Development (WCED), in partnership with the Anne Arundel Economic Development Corporation and Maryland Capital Enterprises, invites business owners and entrepreneurs to attend the session.

VOLT fund managers will present the low-interest loan opportunities that may be available to attendees to help them start or expand existing businesses. To qualify for a VOLT loan, companies must employ fewer than 500 employees and their annual revenues must average $35 million or less over three years.

"VOLT loan funds are available to small, minority, and woman-owned businesses," WCED Deputy Director Merry Mears said. "Most Worcester County businesses meet at least the minimum qualifications for these funds based on the Maryland definition of a small business."

VOLT loan funds are generated from 1.5 percent of all Maryland casino yearly proceeds, as required by Maryland law. Fifty percent of these funds must be used within a 10-mile radius of Maryland's operating casinos, including Ocean Downs.

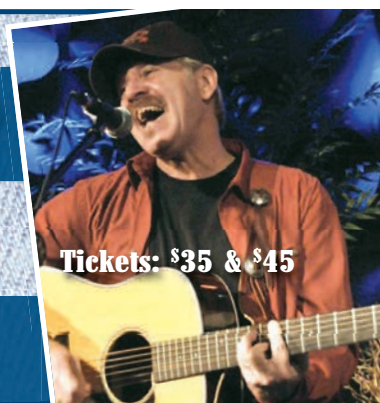

The session is free, but pre-registration is recommended. To register for the session or to learn more about the advantages of starting or growing an existing business in Worcester County, contact Mears at 410-632-3112 or mmears@co.worcester.md.us.

Hope & Healing comes to Kindred Spirit Farm, Oct. 24

(Oct. 15, 2015) Coastal Hospice invites children who have lost a loved one to attend Hope & Healing with Horses, a free bereavement camp, on Saturday, Oct. 24 from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Kindred Spirit Farm in Salisbury.

This event is designed for children ages 6-14 who have experienced the death of a parent, grandparent, sibling or other close loved one in the past two years. It is open to both hospice and non-hospice families who reside in the four Lower Shore counties. Children must be accompanied by a responsible adult.

“Children who have lost someone dear to them grieve in very different ways than adults,” said Alane Capen, president of Coastal Hospice, which hosts the event. “They may find it harder to express what they are really feeling.”

Hope & Healing with Horses teaches children and their families strategies to express grief and reduce stress and isolation and gives them a chance to connect with others who have experienced a similar loss.

The day camp uses horses as a tool for emotional growth and learning; the children ride, groom the horses and talk to them. Horses offer the children a simple but profound relationship and allow them to connect to a living being without the risk or rejection or criticism.

Campers from last year's Hope & Healing with Horses hosted by Coastal Hospice. The 2015 event for children who have lost a loved one will take place on Saturday, Oct. 24 from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Kindred Spirit Farm in Salisbury.

Chaplains and social workers from Coastal Hospice, who are trained in bereavement support, conduct the camp and guide the children and their families through their feelings.

No previous experience with horses is required. Children should wear closed-toe shoes for riding, and must be accompanied by a responsible adult. There will also be grief support activities for the adults who accompany the children.

Lunch is provided. The event will take place rain or shine at Kindred Spirit Farm, 3191 Johnson Rd., Salisbury.

This event is free, but registration is required by Oct. 21 by calling Melissa Dasher at 443-944-5846. Coastal Hospice asks registrations be honored once they have been made.

Founded in 1980, Coastal Hospice is a nonprofit health care organization that cares for individuals facing life-limiting conditions but who want to remain as active and engaged as possible. Coastal Hospice cares for patients in their home, nursing home, assisted living facility or at Coastal Hospice at the Lake. The organization serves Wicomico, Worcester, Dorchester and Somerset counties.

Pineapple salsa cools off jerk skewers

I have had one hell of a day. After an eventful day at school, to say the least, during which students argued and then studied and cooked foods of Florida, it was time to spend an hour on the phone with my cousin who wants to move to Ocean City from Wisconsin.

By Paul Suplee,
CEC PCIII

Getting a restaurant job in the wintertime. I had to let him down gently that this might not, in fact, actually happen as planned. I mean; after all, I have colleagues who are looking for work in the winter, and they're locals. When the city makes money a hundred days a year, it's hard for anyone to find off-season gigs, but I digress.

After a quick sprucing-up after going home for all of two minutes, it was off to a friend's ribbon cutting ceremony in West Ocean City. Dana Bartholomew and Kyle Hughes opened their new studio in Teal Marsh Shopping Center, and what a great time that was. We love Dana's photography, and meeting Kyle for the first time was great and their studio looks awesome. Who doesn't love supporting local business, especially when there's such talent as is found in one space?

Then, it was time for the ride home; that magical 12-minute drive from West-O to Ocean Pines during which I listened to the local classic rock station not only play The Who's "My Generation" and Cheap Trick's "Surrender," but then the all-too-good Rush wonder-song "Tom Sawyer." It was like a Ferris wheel of musical adventure as I made my way back to the Pines, but my night was not over. No, it was not quite over yet.

After enduring what I consider my personal duty to watch the GOP debate recently, it was also my painful duty to watch the Democratic debates this evening on CNN. Both forums were struggles for me, as I have a hard time believing any politician, but yes, this was proving to be an entertaining day, after all. It was the perfect way to end a very, very long day.

At least it was entertaining and informative. I will not go into specifics, nor should you try to ascertain the party with which I may affiliate (or run from this season), but suffice it to say that I learned a great deal about the three candidates who really didn't matter in the debate and the two who are the obvious front-runners on the Democratic side. Mayhap this presidential election will be the most fantastic one in my voting years. One can only hope.

And as the night is coming to a close, I relish in the fact that I have grub in the icebox left over from class. I left for work 17 hours ago, and I'm feeling hunger pangs that will soon be quelled by Jen's jerk chicken skewers, which were off the charts. A quick heat-up in the toaster oven will set the tone, and topping them off with the cooling pineapple salsa will ensure a good night's sleep. Yes, I'm convinced that this will work.

Elections aside, it was a great day; one on which my patience was tested, my mettle was measured and my food was properly cooled and reheated according to HACCP principles. And after this late-night snack, I will be able to put this day in the books. That works for me.

Jerk Chicken Skewers

Makes 4 entrees
1.5 pounds chicken breast, cut into 2-inch cubes
1/2 cup sour orange juice
3 thyme springs, picked
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. ground Allspice
1/2 head garlic, peeled and smashed
1/4 cup finely minced fresh ginger
1 Scotch Bonnet or Habanero pepper, finely minced salt and pepper, to taste
juice of 2 limes
4 scallions, finely sliced
2 red bell peppers, cut into 2-inch squares
Pineapple salsa (recipe follows)

Place the chicken in a bowl and toss in the rest of the ingredients (except for the salsa)

Marinate for two hours
Soak your wooden skewers (if you're using wood) in water for at least an hour

Remove from the marinade and preheat the grill

Skewer the chicken and red pepper on the skewers, disbursing the ingredients evenly so that all of the skewers have similar cooking times

Grill the skewers until done. If the grill is too hot, start them here and then move them to an oven to finish. No one will ever know the difference!

Serve hot with your nice, cooling pineapple salsa on top.

This dish goes great with rice and beans (morianos y cristianos is an old standby) or as a standalone if you're all paleo or something like that

Pineapple Salsa

Makes about 2 cups
1 golden pineapple, fine dice without the core
1/4 cup cilantro, chiffonade juice & zest of 1 lime
3 scallions, finely sliced
1 jalapeno, finely minced
1 cup Cucumber, peeled, seeded and minced

Combine all ingredients and allow to sit for at least an hour to allow the flavors to marry. You can increase the heat of this by adding habanero/ Scotch Bonnets or by adding more jalapenos.

Refrigerate until ready to use
