Two big land deals at Berlin auction

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Nov. 5, 2015) More than 600 acres of land and several million dollars changed hands last Friday at a pair of auctions held at the Atlantic Hotel in downtown Berlin.

In one sale, the 384-acre former Beach Club Golf Course in Berlin sold for $1.3 million to an unidentified investor. Meanwhile, 245.1 acres of farmland on Route 818 near Route 113 sold for $1.25 million to Adham Abouassali, a developer from the Frederick area.

The latter property includes four parcels and an estimated 191.3 tillable acres and is contiguous to the former golf course.

Abouassali said he heard about the sale through the website of the auctioneer, Atlantic Auctions Inc.

"I've always been attracted to land," he said. "My hobby is gardening, but not farming, necessarily. It's a big garden."

He said was unfamiliar with the town prior to reading the auction listing, but became interested in the property after reading about the recent "Coolest Small Town" designation. Berlin's proximity to the beach in Ocean City also didn't hurt, he said.

"It's a very cute small town," he said. "The location of it is wonderful and really the sky is the limit as far as what you can do with it. It's a huge endeavor if you want to develop it and at this time I am pondering over the picture of it."

Abouassali said moving to the area was a possibility, adding that would not happen "in the short term."

"It's lovely to be part of a small town like this, and, of course, the close proximity to the water. That would be the eventual goal, yes, to move, but not right away," he said.

He said he would like to hear what the town's vision for the property is and that he would take a measured "walk before you run" approach toward development.

Opened in 1991, the former Beach Club Golf Course closed in October 2010. The property is zoned A-1, general agriculture.

Town Administrator Laura Allen said neither of the buyers had contacted the town as of press time.

Berlin Mayor Gee Williams, meanwhile, said the purchases represent the first significant land acquisitions since the turn of the century.

According to Williams, the 245.1-acre property, commonly called the Davis-Taylor Farms, was the subject of a proposed tech-sector development in the late 1990s and early part of the 21st century.

A successful referendum was held in 2000 to annex the property into the town. Then, less than a year later, Williams said, the development deal collapsed.

"Nationally, the tech bubble, for investors, had literally burst," he said, adding that the ripple effect directly affected the proposed expansion in Berlin.

Williams said another investor attempted build a multiuse residential complex on the property in 2008, but the so-called "Great Recession" derailed that.

He said a large portion of the property is zoned R-1 residential and the remainder is zoned industrial.

The former golf course, Williams said, is not annexed into Berlin.

"From most anybody's point of view, both of those investments are significant," Williams said, adding that "a wide range of things" could be developed on either property.

"I don't think any of them are going to be industrial," he said. "The Maryland Stadium Authority is doing a study about an area – that might be possible."

"Things that will bring the community uses and benefits that we don't already have would be, I think, the best," he added.

Both properties, Williams said, would likely become part of the conversation when the town starts holding formal discussions on future growth in Berlin "between now and next spring."

"Certainly, this winter it is our expectation that we'll begin the community conversation about longer-term

(Nov. 5, 2015) For the first time since 2009, according to County Development Review and Permitting Director Ed Tudor, a new residential planned community is coming to Ocean Pines.

The Worcester County Commissioners on Tuesday approved the development, named Triple Crown Estates, to be located on the north side of Gum Point Road, east of Route 589, following a public hearing. No one spoke against the project, but traffic concerns involving access to Gum Point Road and Route 589 via dirt roads during construction were addressed in the approval of the development.

The first phase of the project, called Step I, indicates there will be one point of access into the planned community via the King Richard Road extension. Though nothing has been formally planned, there is an area set aside for future growth of the community.

Parcels one, two and three, the former Beach Club Golf Course in Berlin, were purchased by an unknown investor at an auction on Friday for $1.3 million. Frederick-area realtor Adham Abouassali bought the 245-acre Davis-Taylor Farms for $1.25 million, as seen in parcels four, five, six and seven.

growth,” Williams said. “We want to look at the longer view as to what should the town of Berlin be like in a generation.”
“These two investments, at the level that they were, show that it’s just a matter of time before they inevitably are developed,” Williams continued. “Hopefully, between the town and the county continuing to work closely together, we can make sure it’s for the best possible use for not only people currently in town, but for our residents as we incrementally grow in the future.”

New development coming to Pines

Duck Isle I-IV, Salt Grass Cove and Harbor Village residential developments in Ocean Pines.

Steen said when the development passed the county's technical review committee in July that this community would be using a new type of basic floor plan, called the "Triple Crown Twin Home." The units will feature one-car garages and, like so many other custom homes, a number of features buyers can add or subtract as they see fit.

Steen said in a previous interview he thought the homes would retail in the range of $350,000.

The development will be situated on about 92 acres, 90 of which are described as "uplands." About 1.25 acres are non-tidal wetlands and the remaining area is private tidal wetlands. Nearly eight-tenths of an acre in the neighborhood is located in the Resource Protection district.

Almost half of the land area is open space, most of which — about 32 acres — is classified as "natural open space" according to planning documents. About three acres has been set aside for active recreation, and nearly 11.5 acres for passive recreation, including most of the existing forest area.

Lot setbacks have not been proposed at this time, according to planning documents.

"We've got to go with what the market can handle. This is for a downsizing person, or someone who has a summer home here but now wants to live here full time," Steen said previously. "Young families too, but this is not 55 and over."

Full build-out is not expected for three or four years, he said.

With these homes also come all the Ocean Pines amenities.

"I had seven board members — unanimous approval. If the residents were not going to be members of Ocean Pines, I wouldn't have had that. All of these people have to join the Ocean Pines Association and have access to the amenities," Steen said in July.

AGH conducting health survey

(Nov. 5, 2015) Atlantic General Hospital is in the process of conducting a community health needs assessment survey.

The purpose of this anonymous survey is to obtain opinions concerning health and healthcare in the communities so that Atlantic General Hospital and Health System can better plan to meet residents' healthcare needs in the future.

To participate in the survey, community members can visit www.atlanticgeneral.org/Community-Health-Needs-Assessment-Survey.aspx. It takes less than five minutes to complete.

The survey is also available at Atlantic General Hospital's flu clinics and the annual Healthy Happenings Health Fair on Saturday, Nov. 7.

Only basic demographic information is collected, and all survey responses are confidential.

"We want to know what residents think about their healthcare options," said Kim Justice, vice president of planning and operations. "We value their opinions and hope that community members will choose to participate."

OC, Berlin residents busted bringing heroin from Delaware

Detectives watched two suspects enter, then exit, ‘open air drug market’

By Zack Hoopes
Staff Writer

(Nov. 5, 2015) The bust of two local men last week provided further insight into the ongoing battle over the trafficking of heroin across the Maryland-Delaware border.

Dominick Papa, 50, of Ocean City, was arrested for driving without a license after allegedly transporting Samuel McKinnish, 46, of Berlin, into Delaware to buy heroin.

The arrest was made by Ocean City police officers assigned to the Worcester County Criminal Enforcement Team, which includes police from several county jurisdictions who are deputized to operate anywhere in Worcester.

Dfc. Mike Richardson said in his report that, while working with other detectives on a detail in Ocean Pines, he saw Papa driving north on Route 589. Richardson wrote that he recognized Papa from other incidents, and knew that Papa drove despite not having a license. Richardson also reported that he saw a passenger in Papa’s truck and that person was later identified as McKinnish.

Richardson and other detectives trailed Papa north to Polly Branch Road in Selbyville, Del., which Richardson wrote is a “known drug location” by agencies in both states.

Detectives saw Papa’s vehicle enter and then exit a block of Polly Branch Road, between Roosevelt and Washington Avenues, which was described as an “open air drug market,” according to the report. They waited until Papa drove back over the Maryland line and pulled the car over at Peerless Road and Route 113.

Papa was arrested for driving without a license and no contraband was found on his person, Richardson wrote.

McKinnish, however, consented to speaking with detectives, although Richardson wrote that he clearly informed McKinnish that he did not have to. McKinnish, when told that detectives were certain he had purchased heroin, admitted to buying “two bundles on Polly” but had already done several of the packets in the vehicle.

Richardson allegedly found 12 small Ziploc bags with wax packets of heroin. The packets were stamped “Tyson” in red ink, Richardson noted.

McKinnish was arrested for drug possession and released on his own recognizance. A trial is scheduled for Feb. 1, 2016.

Thompson says Pines still discussing bridge options

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Nov. 5, 2015) Following up on a previous meeting, when the Ocean Pines Association considered the benefits repairing or replacing bridges on Ocean Parkway and Clubhouse Drive, General Manager Bob Thompson provided an update on both fronts last Thursday.

According to an estimate provided to the association board of directors, repairs would cost $243,100 per bridge.

Working with design firm Davis, Bowen & Frieda Inc., Thompson said the association would seek permit approval for repairs by Nov. 6. He estimated a request for proposals would be released by Dec. 15, with bids due back by Feb. 15.

Following board approval, Thompson said a contract could be awarded by the end of February. He estimated work would take an additional six weeks per bridge and said bridges could remain open during that period, operating with one lane.

“Simultaneously we’re working [on] bridge replacement,” Thompson said, adding that the design firm is working on cost estimates for two types of bridges: precast concrete and timber. “We’re going to give you pros and cons of both.”

Thompson said the directors would be able to review designs for replacement of both bridges, using both sets of materials, during the next regular board meeting, Nov. 19.

“From there, we’ll refine the cost estimates [from the firm] ... which includes construction costs, mobilization costs, detour costs and engineering costs,” Thompson said.

By February, Thompson said the board would be able to review projected costs and benefits for repair or replacement of both bridges.

“We need to have firm costs to replace the bridge and repair the bridge, so we’re smarter about that decision,” Thompson said. “At the same time, we’re also going through what’s the application process for funding for replacement – what timeframe, what type of funding solution, state or federal funding, [is available].”

Director Dave Stevens said the estimate needed to include other expenses related to replacement.

Thompson said those costs were in his numbers, which include $20,000 for preliminary steps and preparations and a 10 percent contingency of $22,000.

OCEAN PINES BRIEFS

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Nov. 5, 2015) The Ocean Pines Association Board of Directors discussed the following items during a public meeting at the community center on Oct. 28:

GM report

General Manager Bob Thompson provided an updated timeline on the new Manklin Meadows racquet center.

He said the association recently received the final design drawings and would release a request for proposals for construction by Nov. 15. Bids are due back by Dec. 15 and should be reviewed by the directors during the December board meeting.

Construction likely would begin in January with a finish date of April 30, 2016.

Major amenities

Thompson said golf and aquatics finished ahead of budget in September, while net revenues at the yacht club also finished above budget.

According to Thompson, the yacht club's five-month profitable streak is its first. The facility finished $11,735 over budget for the month and has shown a $145,669 year-to-date improvement over the previous fiscal year.

Golf finished $20,131 over budget for the month and aquatics was $25,691 ahead of budgeted numbers for September.

No new parking lot

The directors voted unanimously against a proposal by a local developer to convert a property near Nicholas Lane to a parking lot.

According to Board President Pat Renaud, Robert Douglas contacted him about building the lot, which would have been adjacent to Nicolas Lane and across the street from a shopping center. Originally zoned wetlands, Douglas had obtained a variance from the county to build a 30-space lot.

Tabled item

A motion to approve 2016-17 budget guidance, drafted by Tom Terry, was tabled.

Following more than 40 minutes of discussion, Dave Stevens made the motion to table, suggesting the directors continue the talks during a special session to be announced later.

The budget guidance follows recommendations from the Budget and Finance Committee. Terry introduced the motion during the previous board meeting last month and invited the directors to submit suggestions to his draft. Stevens said he sent three specific suggestions, but Terry said he received them too late for inclusion.

A previous item of contention, the notion of so-called "rollover" items in the budget, was removed entirely from the language.

Annual hydrant flushing, Nov. 10

(Nov. 5, 2015) The town of Berlin will be flushing all municipal hydrants on Tuesday Nov. 10, beginning at 9 a.m.

Mayor Gee Williams said that if residents experience any discoloration in water while the distribution system is being flushed, let it run for approximately one minute to clear it up.

The hydrant flushing will be complete in all neighborhoods within 24 hours.

The rain date will be Thursday, Nov. 12.

The town appreciates everyone's cooperation and patience during this annual routine hydrant maintenance.

Questions and concerns should be directed to Water Department Superintendent Marvin Smith at 410-641-2414.

Stevens, Collins reignite golf debate on Ocean Pines BOD

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Nov. 5, 2015) If last Thursday's board meeting is any indication, the golf debate in Ocean Pines is far from over.

Less than a year after the OPA Board voted 4-3 to oust Billy Casper Golf and install Landscapes Unlimited as course management, several directors are asking whether Landscapes has fulfilled its promises towards transparency.

According to Director Dave Stevens, the community's contract with the company contained several reporting provisions due not later than Oct.15. Stevens said that included a draft of a business plan to be reviewed by the board and the general manager.

"After review and modification ... the business plan shall be submitted for including in the budget and it shall include an operations plan, a maintenance plan, a food and beverage plan, sale and marketing plan and a membership plan," Stevens said, apparently reading directly from the contract during the public meeting in the Ocean Pines Community Center.

"My question is did we get that information on Oct. 15?" Stevens asked.

General Manager Bob Thompson said that information was delivered to him and given to board liaison Bill Cordwell. He added that the documents did not require board action, and were therefore not sent directly to all of the directors.

"My job is to provide it to the board liaison, which I've done," Thompson said.

Stevens, however, was not satisfied.

"I don't know about the other members of the board, [but] I think we have several that would like to see that information," Stevens said. "We would like to have those plans."

Stevens said there were other meetings, referred to in the contract, that he was interested in as well, including quarterly meetings where the golf company's senior management would speak with "up to three" designated representatives from the board of directors.

"I do not know that our board has designated three representatives to go to that meeting, or whether or not that meeting has been held," he said.

Thompson said the meeting was scheduled for early November. The designated board members, he added, were board President Pat Renaud, Cordwell and Tom Terry.

"What authority gives the president the right to designate who those representatives are going to be without even a discussion in front of the board? I do not believe he has that authority,” Stevens said. “I suggest we schedule that [discussion].”

Directors say lack of transparency issue with OP golf

“We have a new contractor [and] we’re trying our best to make that contract successful, and what you have as our liaison to that contractor is three people who are adamantly opposed [to the company],” Stevens added, noting that Cordwell and Terry voted against hiring Landscapes. “To take those three people and say that this is the way we’re going to get along with this new contractor is just plain ludicrous. It’s not fair representation.”

During his tenure as board president, Stevens said, he presented the names of three board representatives to the other directors in a similar situation with Casper and asked for objections. Moreover, he suggested, his representatives were more familiar with golf than those Renaud appointed.

“Was there a board meeting that ‘unappointed’ them or was that just done arbitrarily?” he asked.

Stevens then turned to Casper, insisting that its lack of transparency ultimately led to the company’s dismissal.

“Over four years of our past contract, we received little or no information from what was going on,” he said. “We never had – except during the budget time when they brought the suits – we never had a face-to-face meeting [with Casper].”

Director Tom Terry disagreed, saying Casper and the board met at least once in the county club before Stevens’ tenure, which started in Aug. 2014 and included one term as board president.

Thompson also called Stevens’ comments “factually inaccurate.”

“You’ve been provided an opportunity to see the information as board president. I tried to share it with you multiple times,” he said. “To say we didn’t receive the information is just not [true].”

The bottom line, according to Director Jack Collins, was that the new management contract was written to give both the board and the membership more information and access.

“That was the spirit of that contract,” he said. “I don’t see a problem why it can’t be opened up to all the members of the board and all the members of the golf community, as well as the community in general,” he said. “Why can’t that be televised, like this particular meeting is being televised, so that the members of golf community can realize who they have as a manager?”

“I think that is really, really healthy and extremely democratic and very, very useful,” Collins added.

Stevens warned that, if the relationship between the board and Landscapes did not improve, the community could see a “repeat of Casper.”

“I think the situation is completely unsatisfactory right now,” he said.

Reached for comment on Monday, Renaud said the association is working to set up a meeting with Landscape executives. He did not know if those meetings would be public.

Delmarva Health Pavilion opens in Ocean Pines

‘Building One’ of facility anchored by Peninsula Regional Medical Center

(Nov. 5, 2015) More than 100 people turned out during the opening of the new Delmarva Health Pavilion in Ocean Pines last Wednesday, filling up the lobby of the first in a planned five-building complex anchored by Peninsula Regional Medical Center.

Developer Palmer Gillis and PRMC President and CEO Dr. Peggy Naleppa spoke briefly, then several local political leaders, joined by key medical staff at the facility, participated in a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

Gillis said the project had been on his mind for several years, adding it was a “cold, windy, rainy day in 2008” when the property was first put up for auction.

“Four years prior to that I had this idea that putting a medical facility ... right next to the largest neighborhood in Worcester County would be an ideal place,” he said. “I think the community will be happy with what services [PRMC] are providing in this facility and what services they can provide in the next facilities.”

The $6 million, 20,000-square-foot Building One consolidates several family practices in Berlin and Ocean Pines, and includes a pharmacy and cardiovascular and pulmonary rehabilitation facility.

Naleppa said PRMC has had a

State and county officials eyeing traffic concerns

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Nov. 5, 2015) State and local officials say they're aware of traffic concerns associated with the new Delmarva Health Pavilion on Route 589, and that several solutions are being explored in the short and long term.

Most of those options, however, seem to be conceptual at this point, as all levels of government struggle to find a way to make more happen with an ever-shrinking pool of tax dollars.

The facility, which opened its first building last Wednesday with Peninsula Regional Medical Center as the anchor tenant, will add four more buildings that total more than 100,000 square feet when all phases are completed.

Cheryl Jacobs, Vice President of the Ocean Pines Association Board of Directors, said she recently spoke with State Highway Administration District Engineer Donnie Drewer, who put her in contact with State Del. Mary Beth See CAROZZA Page 13

Carozza calls for ‘short-term’ fixes at health center

“What we’ve done is we’ve brought it to the attention of the appropriate people,” Jacobs said.

Carozza said she and Drewer have spoken “as individual concerns have come up,” and that she’s also been in contact with the Ocean Pines Board of Directors and the Worcester County Commissioners to develop what she called a “consensus recommendation.”

“Before you develop a recommendation on how to move forward I think we first have to understand what is the volume we’re talking here [and] what is the situation as it plays out, so if there’s going to be recommendations for either more signs or other options we have all the facts to back that up,” she said.

Carozza said that dualization of the highway was likely off the table for the foreseeable future, but that more immediate solutions could include increased signage and an “educational component.”

“That’s something that could be a short-term solution that I would think we might be able to look for immediate support for that,” she said. “I think we really need to break the issue down into what do we need to protect safety on the immediate basis, and then long term, as we see this build out and understand the usage, what do we need to do as far as an investment for the [future].”

PRMC Vice President Christopher Hall, on hand during the ribbon cutting on Oct. 28, said developer Palmer Gillis is taking the lead when it comes to traffic concerns.

“He works with the State Highway Administration, since the State Highway controls Racetrack Road ... to provide different cutoffs,” he said. “They’re actually doing some interchange work in the near future on [Route] 90, and he’s also working with the Ocean Pines community to find other ways to provide access.”

At the county level, commissioners Diana Purnell and Chip Bertino both admitted no immediate actions were forthcoming, “We’re working together with the state, but quite frankly we don’t have any answers today,” Bertino said.

Developer Palmer Gillis speaks during a ribbon-cutting ceremony at the Delmarva Health Pavilion in Ocean Pines last Wednesday.

Developer Gillis says access to Ocean Parkway best option

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Nov. 5, 2015) Developer Palmer Gillis has heard the traffic concerns related to the new Delmarva Health Pavilion in Ocean Pines and says he is working on solutions.

The only rub, according to Gillis, is that he's having trouble finding willing partners.

Officials at the county level suggested converting Route 589 (Race-track Road) to a dual highway where the center is located near Ocean Pines' North Gate. But that would be more than a decade off. Meanwhile, the OPA Board of Directors have told Gillis they are not interested in providing access from the facility to Ocean Parkway, despite the developer's offer to pay the entire cost of construction.

Speaking during a phone interview on Monday, Gillis said medical offices near neighborhoods are generally seen as highly compatible.

"Consider 200 apartments or a Shore Stop or a fast food restaurant – some of the alternative uses for that space – and you're going to generate a whole heck of a lot more traffic," he said.

Gillis said the pavilion would be well maintained, with special attention paid to the condition of both the building and the landscaping. Moreover, he said the facility would be staffed with "high-paying, long-term professional jobs" and promised to use a third of the 21-acre property as a buffer between the houses nearby.

"Those components in itself make it a good neighbor," he said. "You add in the fact that [medical offices] are typically open Monday through Friday and you don't have a lot of conflict with the neighborhood. The interfacing with the neighborhood is really about as ideal as you can get."

In Easton, Gillis is continuing work on a medical offices complex that will, when fully developed, have 145,000 square feet of space – 45,000 more than what's projected in Ocean Pines. That facility shares an access roadway with the neighborhood.

"The neighborhood in Easton is very compatible and very receiving of that amenity of having full-tilt medical services," he said. "They want it."

Similar facilities he's developed in Salisbury and Millsboro, Del. also share access with the neighborhoods they border.

In Ocean Pines, at present, Route 589 is the only access point to the pavilion and exiting cars can only turn right.

"An Ocean Pines resident, if they're coming out of the North Gate and going south, they have to make an illegal left turn into the project, or if they're leaving the project they have to make an illegal U-turn or they've got to go across the bridge and do a U-turn onto Ocean Parkway," he said. "The other alternative would be to continue up Racetrack Road until you hit [Route] 113."

Gillis said making a U-turn just off the North Gate bridge is "just silly," although he admitted, "I have done that myself."

The subject of providing alternative access to the pavilion through Ocean Parkway was broached with the OPA Board before the August elections and discussions "have not been met favorably," Gillis said.

For now, Gillis is hoping the newly opened Building One at the Delmarva Health Pavilion creates enough good will in Ocean Pines that providing access to Ocean Parkway becomes an offer the community can't refuse.

"I would say in winter or early spring is the time to bring that up. I would like to bring it up sooner, but I don't like confrontation and I don't like dissension. I'm a wimp," Gillis said with a laugh.

"I really, truly believe this is the best thing for the community and it doesn't cost the taxpayers a penny," he added. "I really wanted to get the building open, I wanted people to see the quality of the structure and the quality of the occupant and what a fantastic neighbor they're going to have."

"I believe that the majority of Ocean Pines residents are going to want this," Gillis continued. "Opening up access to Ocean Parkway is an ideal solution to this issue. It's just a matter of the political process catching up to that idea."

participants in the program are currently enrolled veterans and military students.

“It is important for Americans to remember and honor our vets every day of the year,” said Fred Howard, event organizer and United States Navy veteran. “Veterans allow Americans to enjoy freedoms and liberties.”

Students from the Air Force, Army, Marines, National Guard and Marine Corp Reserves will be giving a welcoming address, singing the National Anthem and the Pledge of Allegiance.

The invocation and benediction will be given by guests from the American Legion Post #166.

Three veteran students from the Marine Corps who were deployed in Afghanistan and Iraq will share five-minute speeches.

“Most of them [Iraq and Afghanistan veterans] knew they were going into combat, which makes their decision to join very commendable,” Howard said.

The college has about 255 veterans registered for the fall semester and it has the largest student veteran’s population on the Eastern Shore. To allow veteran students to participate in more than one Veterans Day event, Wor-Wic has its ceremony on the day before Veterans Day.

It is the fourth year PRMC has provided this event, free parking will be available in Garage B and military IDs are required.

Ocean Pines needs to find middle ground

To expand or not to expand facilities in Ocean Pines to serve the public beyond the needs of the community is one of the key questions the homeowners association’s long-term plan and its town meetings needs to address.

Problem is, a simple yes or no answer won’t suffice. While there will be both detractors and proponents for almost every individual item ultimately listed in the plan, the community needs to sharpen its focus on what its real objective should be: to provide facilities adequate for association members only or to continue on the path of providing services scaled to serve the greater area.

In recent years, certain projects have generated considerable controversy because their scopes were such that they had to draw on public support from outside the association to make financial sense.

Further complicating the equation is that IRS rules dictate that the public, not just association members, must be allowed to join income-producing programs so that any profits from those amenities are tax exempt.

The Yacht Club and indoor pool are examples of building to a market greater than Ocean Pines, while the new community center falls at the other end of the argument – it was built to serve just the community, but is now considered by some to be too small because of growing requests for its use.

It could be that the answer to the big question the plan is supposed to address is yes and no.

There has to be a middle somewhere, but deciding where that might be will depend on establishing what the community wants to be in the years ahead – a services and recreation center for the surrounding area, or a nicely appointed community that is concerned only with those who reside within its boundaries.

New comprehensive plan for Pines

Committee working to update document with SU-led group

(Nov. 5, 2015) The last comprehensive plan for Ocean Pines was written in 1998. In 2000 a supplemental report was requested by the board of directors that provided specific tasks to assist in the implementation of the plan.

In 2002 the plan was again modified by the inclusion of the 2000 Census data, and to project the build out of the community in seven years. The plan has not been updated since.

However, in 2008 Zogby International was commissioned by the Ocean Pines Association to conduct a mail-in survey of property owners in Ocean Pines.

Then, in 2010 the board of directors again reestablished the comprehensive plan committee. The purpose of the new comprehensive plan is to serve as a guide for making community decisions regarding growth and development. This new plan will be a culmination of a cooperative effort of community residents and staff.

The new plan will represent a future vision of Ocean Pines along with recommendations for achieving that vision. It is not intended to be a static document, but will be reviewed and updated periodically to reflect changes in development trends, shifts in the economy, or changes in the community’s goals and objectives.

From 2010 through most of 2013 a substantial amount of data was collected, but little progress was made on the document due principally to a significant turnover of committee volunteers.

In 2014 the committee was introduced to the staff of the Business, Economics, and Community Outreach Network (BEACON) of the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at Salisbury University. By August 2015 BEACON was under contract to the Ocean Pines Association (OPA) to assist with parts of the new planning process.

BEACON is now working to assess the collective vision of internal and external stakeholders of the OPA as part of the association’s long-term planning efforts, including the comprehensive planning process. Based on these findings, the BEACON team will design a scenario analysis model and accompanying decision support tools to assist policy makers of OPA to explore the costs, benefits, consequences, as well as economic, employment and fiscal outcomes of a variety of community planning scenarios.

BEACON’s work is divided into two stages. During stage one, current in progress, the BEACON team has examined current community conditions using existing internal and external data and information sources. Once the data and information from these sources were reviewed and cataloged, the members of the BEACON team conducted a series of phone and in-person interviews to validate and clarify their understanding of what was reviewed, including the history and the status quo of the organization, as well as some of the stated long-term planning decision points found in these documents.

By the end of October, the BEACON Team, using their findings from documents and interviews, will have convened up to three focus groups with OPA staff, elected officials and volunteers; internal and External stakeholders, and others as needed to determine what questions should be included in an online community-vision survey.

Once the survey instrument is finalized, validated and approved by the OPA Board of Directors, it will be made available to all members of the OPA community. The findings from this survey will then be pre-

Wentworth gives OP board review of ‘15 elections

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Nov. 5, 2015) Elections Committee Chair Bill Wentworth provided a detailed annual report to the Ocean Pines Association Board of Directors during a public meeting last Thursday.

According to Wentworth, 6,707 of the 7,403 eligible voters cast ballots during the last election that saw Tom Herrick (1,669 votes) and Cheryl Jacobs (1,480) earn seats on the board.

Only 37 of those votes had to be counted by hand, some because of what Wentworth called “faulty” ballots.

Thirty-one ballots were rejected, nearly 22 of which were rejected because voters selected more than two candidates. Two ballots were thrown out for being in improper envelopes, two were rejected because multiple ballots were mailed in the same envelope, and five were mailed back blank.

Wentworth said the committee spent $7,462.34 during the election, including $4,715.06 for printing and mailing and $1,437.50 for computer-related costs.

An additional $1,309.78 was spent on a special insert included in this year’s ballots.

The Gazette reported in July that a layout error in the candidate questionnaire associated with Ocean Pines’ quarterly newsletter mistakenly printed the same response from Herrick as the answer to two separate questions. After some debate, the association decided to send corrected versions of the Q&A as an insert with the ballots.

Board member Tom Terry asked who was responsible for the flap.

While Wentworth said he and the committee have the final word where ballots are concerned, he added, “We had no control whatsoever with that information that’s sent out by OPA in the [quarterly report].”

Jacobs suggested the committee publish the full scope of its findings during the annual meeting, when election results are made public, in order to educate the voting populace on common themes of user error.

“When we publicize the results, we [could] also publicize the problems that occurred and make people aware of the fact that they lost their opportunity to have a say because you didn’t follow the procedure,” she said. “Emphasize that along with printing the results.”

Wentworth thanked committee members, OPA staff and board liaison Pat Renaud with helping the committee achieve a “smooth and successful” election.

“This success is the result of dedicated members who believe in the resident’s right to vote for governance and also in preserving the integrity of the ballot,” he said.

sented at a series of town hall meetings (up to three). At the conclusion of stage one, the board will be engaged in the discussions of the next steps for the project.

Based on the findings from the activities of stage one, the BEACON team will develop a scenario analysis model that will simulate viable long-term community planning and implementation scenarios.

The outcomes of these simulations will then be incorporated into custom-designed, interactive dashboards that will enable OPA decision makers to visualize the measurable outcomes of potential planning and development decisions. These outcomes will include costs and benefits, as well as the economic, employment and fiscal impacts for each scenario.

Once the BEACON project is concluded, the comprehensive plan committee will work on developing and finalizing the Ocean Pines comprehensive plan using the outcomes of the scenarios developed. The comprehensive plan, together with the interactive dashboards, will be a living document for the community.

The next committee meeting is Monday, Nov. 9 at 4 p.m. in the Ocean Pines Administrative Building. The public is invited to attend, and the results of the two forums will be discussed.

Seaside Plumbing sets up new shop near ‘action’ in OP

By Josh Davis
Staff Writer

(Nov. 5, 2015) Family owned and operated, Seaside Plumbing recently moved from a home office to a new headquarters on Friendship Road in Berlin.

Owner Josh Martin, who runs the company with his wife, described the business as “mom and pop.”

“We slowly, slowly grew until we finally outgrew our home office,” he said. “We also wanted to be closer to the action, because Ocean Pines is a huge amount of our work.”

Providing residential and light commercial services in the Maryland/Delaware area, the company is looking to grow its service calls on par with its remodeling and new construction work, Martin said.

He said the company has worked with notable local builders including T & G Builders Inc. from Ocean City, Miken Builders Inc. from Bethany Beach and Boardwalk Builders Inc. from Rehoboth Beach.

“We really haven’t been pushing service as much,” he said, adding that service calls generally include leaky faucets, clogged drainpipes and broken toilets. “We just want to remind the community we’re here for them and that we do field service calls.”

Seaside Plumbing recently moved from a home office to a new space on Friendship Road in Berlin.

Seaside boasts a sewer camera and inspection system that allows plumbers to analyze problems using high definition video, as well as other technology that lets workers pinpoint the exact location of clogs.

For the customer, that means quicker solutions and less digging in the yard.

“It seems like a simple thing, but not a lot of plumbing contractors have it,” Martin said.

Martin said this is the time of year property owners should be thinking about winterizing – especially those who operate seasonal rentals or plan on being on vacation for an extended period of time.

He remembers getting a service call in Ocean Pines with water pouring out the front door.

“The owner was out of town for the season and decided not to have his home winterized,” he said. “The damage was extensive and the home was practically destroyed.”

“We highly recommend that you shut your water main off when you leave your home for any extended periods of time, and also winterize your home,” Martin added. “A few dollars spent on a winterization will end up saving you tons of money in the long run.”

Seaside is also active in the community with groups such as the Maryland chapter of Contractors for a Cause, a nonprofit based in Worcester County that helps provide handicapped access to wounded veterans.

“That’s a great organization,” Martin said. “It’s such a small community and it’s such a tightknit group that we all really have to take care of each other.”

I guess it's in the blood and I have learned not to fight it too terribly much. After all, as we get older, we start feeling the finality of life around us and it thus becomes our responsibility to keep our family memories alive, generation after generation.

For one, my nickname as a child was Pokey; a gift from my father still used by some of my siblings at holiday-time. I much prefer Pokey to Pablo and Pauly, so feel free to use it if you like.

Another memory that brings great joy to me is travel. In our childhood, we saw a great deal of this country, from Texas to New York, Florida to Arizona. But mostly we saw the Skyline Drive. It was so drastically different from Annapolis that we loved the adventurous feel as we sat in the suicide seat of our oversized Polara station wagon, making faces at the cars behind us as we were facing backwards. It wasn't unusual, after we had raised enough hell, to warrant "hands on the back of the seat where I can see them" treatment for hours on end when my dad had had enough.

But we never learned. And just as our parents took us on trips, so do we at least try to take our kids on as many trips as possible. While we don't travel as much as I would like (it is expensive, isn't it?), there are a couple of places that are on the list; New Orleans and Kansas City.

Our youngest son is completely into a road trip to the Big Easy, after watching the movie "Chef" and falling in love with the idea of wanderlust, music and food. From there, or at least for me, a natural progression is just to head northwest through Texas and on to Kansas City so the family can see how barbecue is really done.

After a national conference in 2014 and five days of meat sweats, I find it imperative to offer up the city to my family as I remember her; a city slathered in smoke and barbecue sauces of many flavors.

And hopefully there will be some good memories that they will be able to hand down to their kids as time goes on. Time is a funny thing. It takes so long to make a good barbecue, but as soon as you're done, you're wondering how it went by so fast. Reminds you of life, doesn't it?

KC Barbecue Country Ribs

Enough for four

10# Country-style pork ribs

For the brine

1/2 gallon water

1/2 cup Brown sugar

1/2 cup Salt

1 Tbsp. Dry thyme

2 Tbsp. Granulated garlic

2 tsp. Onion powder

1 Tbsp. Black peppercorns

1 Tbsp. Paprika

1 quart KC Barbecue sauce (recipe follows)

1 quart Pokey's Homemade Hot Sauce (recipe follows)

Hickory and Oak wood chips for smoking

1. Make your brine and pour over the ribs. If you can vacuum-pack them, all the better. Otherwise, just cover and refrigerate for eight hours

2. Rinse thoroughly and place on a cookie rack to drain. If you have enough time, allow to dry in the refrigerator, uncovered for about four hours. This extra step helps to make the pellicle, which is a tacky surface that allows the chemicals in the smoking process to adhere to the pork

3. Smoke at 220F in a good smoker for at least three hours, checking to see if more time will tenderize the pork. You want it to have a bite to it, but you don't want rubber erasers. You're looking for that middle ground

4. Meanwhile, prepare the BBQ sauce and in the last hour of smoking, baste the ribs

5. Serve slathered with sauce and don't be shy. In Kansas City, it's all about the sauce!

KC Barbecue Sauce

Makes about 1 quart

1.5 cups Ketchup

1/2 cup Molasses

1/2 cup Brown sugar

1 cup Cider vinegar

1 tsp. Dry mustard

1 tsp. Chili powder

1 tsp. Paprika

1 Tbsp. Granulated garlic

1 tsp. Onion powder

1. These are the usual suspects in a standard KC BBQ sauce. Combine in a sauce pan and bring to a low simmer

2. Cook for about an hour and a half, and adjust for thickness and personal preference. It is a very sweet-tart sauce, which I absolutely love. You can take it wherever you like

Pokey's Homemade Hot Sauce

Makes about 1 quart

1 cup Frank's Hot Sauce

1.5 cups Cider vinegar

3 Garlic cloves

1 Shallot, halved

2 Tbsp. Granulated Sugar

1/2 cup ketchup

2 whole Roma tomatoes

Water to thin

1. Combine all ingredients in a saucepan and bring to a simmer

2. Cook for about an hour and transfer ingredients to a good blender

3. Carefully blend until perfectly smooth and adjust seasoning to your preference

4. Set aside until ready to use
