

Berlin Little League 2-1 in regional tourney

By Josh Davis

(Aug. 9, 2018) The Berlin Little League All-Stars stayed alive on Tuesday, slugging out an 18-7 win over

Mamie Johnson Little League of Washington, D.C. in the 12-year-old division of the Little League Mid-Atlantic Tournament in Bristol, Connecticut.

The tournament is the last stop before heading to the 2018 Little League World Series finals in South Williamsport, Pennsylvania. Berlin advanced to the tournament after winning the Maryland state championship game 6-0 over Chesapeake City Little League, July 28 in Hagerstown.

Playing in Bristol, Berlin is now 2-1 in the double-elimination tournament. The team shut out Milton, Delaware on Sunday, 6-0, then fell to the Middleton, New Jersey Little League team 6-2 on Monday.

Playing on Tuesday morning against the Washington, D.C. squad, Berlin jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the first inning thanks to a two-run homer by Owen Knerr.

D.C. scored five times in the bottom of the inning, but Berlin reclaimed the lead for good in the third, pulling ahead 8-5.

The Berlin All-Stars added two more in the top of the fourth, three in the fifth and five in the sixth inning to finish with the 18-7 win.

Foster Smith, coming on in relief during the first inning, pitched four frames and allowed two runs on five hits, striking out three and earning the

Library branch gets grand opening

By Josh Davis

(Aug. 9, 2018) Just about a month after its July 10 soft opening, the new $6.25 million Berlin branch of the Worcester County Library on Harrison Avenue had its official grand opening ceremony Tuesday.

With the threat of rain looming, a crowd of close to 100 people moved indoors to an upstairs lobby and gathered around a small podium.

Speaking first, Worcester County Commissioner President Diana Purnell raved about the "gorgeous facility."

Purnell said she toured the library earlier that day and marveled at children enjoying a new section designed just for them.

"They were having a great time. They were having a really good time!" she said. "This is a great investment in

Working with officials from the library and local government helped

(Aug. 9, 2018) Results of the 2018 Ocean Pines Board of Directors Election are scheduled to be announced Friday, immediately after ballots are counted, and those results will be validated during the annual membership meeting Saturday morning.

Ballot counting will start at 9 a.m. in the Marlin Room of the community center on 235 Ocean Parkway and the annual meeting is scheduled for 10 a.m. in the community center's Assateague Room.

Also on the annual meeting agenda are legal, financial and auditor's reports, as well as reports from Association President Doug Parks and General Manager John Bailey.

Bailey said the meeting would include the Sam Wilkinson Volunteer Award given for community service. It will go to Debbie Donahue this year.

An allotment for public comments, five minutes or less, is also on the agenda.

"The most fun part of the whole meeting is the Q&A and member comment period at the end of it," Bailey said.

At least 100 lot owners must attend the annual meeting in order for a quorum to be established. Without a quorum, no old or new business can be conducted, according to an association press release on Friday.

About 10 minutes into the annual meeting last year, homeowner Ted Aranow proposed that a motion to remove then interim General Manager Brett Hill be added to the agenda.

Dave Stevens, then the association president, told Aranow he could make a motion from the floor at the appropriate time, but that it could not be officially added to the agenda.

"I would point out that those motions from the floor are in no way binding on the board of directors," Stevens said at the time.

However, that no longer appears to be the association's stance.

Parks, in an email Monday, said, "If it is determined that a quorum is in attendance, a motion can be added to the meeting agenda during the 'Approval of Agenda' portion of the meeting."

Director Slobodan Trendic in an email Monday added Resolution B-03, on meetings of association members, provided additional guidance.

The resolution states, in part, "Association members or their agents shall be permitted the use and privilege of the floor" and "A member or member's agent desiring to address the meeting or make any motion shall rise and, on being recognized, proceed to the podium or a microphone and give his or her name and address."

Inaugural Soundwave Festival dubbed success

Organizers pleased with turnout during three-day event held last weekend

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(Aug. 9, 2018) Organizer Brad Hoffman said he was pleased with attendance during the inaugural Soundwave Music and Arts Festival, held over three days last weekend at the Mid Atlantic Youth and Sportsplex (MAYS) in Pittsville.

He estimated the festival of rock, blues and jazz acts including G-13, Blue Miracle, Joey Harkum and Blind Wind drew close to 1,000 people.

Bands, altogether numbering nearly two-dozen, set up outside on a large stage and indoors in an air-conditioned venue that also featured arts and crafts vendors. There were food and drink vendors, family friendly games, and several bounce houses for children set up throughout the sprawling 58-acre property.

“Attendance, for a first-time event like this, I think is solid,” Hoffman said. “Usually in your first year you market and push real hard, and you do the best you can to expose an event ... We’re putting a lot of eyeballs on the festival this weekend and people are definitely talking about it.”

Hoffman, CEO of Live Wire Media and a producer of several notable area events, said Soundwave was particularly close to his heart.

“Twenty-five years ago, I created an event called Localpalooza that was a music event with local bands that really launched me into my production, marketing and media career,” he said. “Twenty-five years later, after doing Ocean City Jeep Week, working on the DEW Tour, the Susan G. Komen Race For Cure ... now I’m feeling like I want to do something for the community that would bring all the musicians and the artists together out here in a beautiful complex. And I also wanted to build something a little different. I have an 11-year-old daughter and this is the exact kind of event I would like to bring her to.

“This place is amazing,” Hoffman continued. “John Barrett, Jay Phillips and Mitch Parker who own it have been great hosts, and they really want to see the community come together over here.”

Opened last year, MAYS has already hosted events like the HoganLax tournament in June and later this month will be home to Jeep Jam, an annual offshoot of Ocean City Jeep Week formerly held at Berlin Falls park.

Hoffman said Soundwave had already been “locked in” for a second year in 2019.

“We’ll probably do a spring version that can kind of tie into the whole Salisbury University crowd and then look at bringing a little more country music, because I think the country vibe feels good out here,” he said. “You only have one chance at a first impression and I think the first impression on this event in this complex has been amazing.”

Barrett, a Berlin resident, also said he was pleased with the inaugural festival.

“Brad and his crew have done a great job putting all the musicians together,” he said. “We’ve had some beautiful weather and we’ve had some sponsors come out, and they’re real excited about the growth and the future of it. We’re just looking forward to that and we’re absolutely going to do it again.”

Both Hoffman and Barrett said they were looking forward to bringing part of Ocean City Jeep Week, Aug. 23-26, to the MAYS complex.

Construction on an obstacle course for Jeep Jam was well underway as of last weekend and Hoffman said a “Jeep Jam Jamboree” concert was planned for the event.

“The people in Berlin were great to work with, but they’re moving in another direction [at Berlin Falls] and it was very important that we found a new location for Jeep Jam,” Hoffman said. “People like to drive down the beach and come to the Ocean City Convention Center to see the vendors and purchase products and services, but ...half the reason people came to Ocean City Jeep Week was to then come out to four-wheel.

“Right behind us now you can see they’re building an amazing obstacle course. Chris Cropper and his team over there at C.C. Customers are busy every day,” he continued. “They’re moving a lot of heavy rocks, telephone poles and big mounds of tires – exactly what these jeep people want to see. So, it’s going to be an all-new and fresh Jeep Jam course.”

Although based in Wicomico County, Barrett believes the new complex could equally benefit those in neighboring Worcester County.

“[Hoffman] has these great events like Jeep Week that have been going on for years in Ocean City and Worcester, and we’re just going to pull a little of that over to Wicomico,” he said. “I think the two counties should work together and just become a great mix of everything.”

During the HoganLax tournament, for example, Barrett said 300 teams participated and filled up hotels, shops and restaurants in both counties.

Ocean Pines Fun Fact

Edward Durrell Stone Jr., a landscape architect from Florida planned the initial layout of Ocean Pines, including canals, streets and neighborhoods.

Stone was known as the planner of the White House Rose Garden and son of the architect who designed the Kennedy Center and National Geographic buildings in Washington D.C. along with the home of George Marshall, the late owner of the Washington Redskins, and his then wife silent-screen actress Corinne Griffith.

Jack Kent Cooke later became owner of both the home and the Redskins.

Warm reception for Berlin library gether that we can have the best of the best, and that's what we've done here today," she said.

Berlin Mayor Gee Williams said he and others were "awestruck by this wonderful facility."

"We certainly look forward to generations experiencing something that I think has set a new standard for informational technology in our county and in our region," Williams said.

Williams said the library provided a wealth of information, cutting-edge technology, public meeting space, and beauty inside and out.

"As a lifetime resident of Berlin, I do not believe I've ever witnessed so much excitement about a public project as I have seen for this new library," he said. "The anticipation and response is [evident] in every neighborhood within our town, but what I think is particularly rewarding is to have witnessed the genuine excitement the new library has generated among our young people."

He said that was obvious earlier this spring, when children in an afterschool program of the Kiwanis that met at Buckingham Elementary School carried out "an extraordinary book drive."

Williams said the students put up posters throughout the school asking for children's book donations.

"The students had high ambitions and set a goal of collecting enough donated books, stacked one on top of another, to reach the ceiling of their classroom," he said. "In just a few weeks, the books they collected would not only have literally broken through the classroom's ceiling, but through the school's roof. With the generous support of Buckingham students in every grade, they collected over 1,000 children's books for our new county library in Berlin."

Ron Cascio, president of the library board of trustees, said the building was the newest and the finest in the Worcester County.

"None of this could've happened without the funding, approval, partnerships and dedication of many enti-

Foundation, and private donors who supported the new library.

"A special thanks to Berlin native Joe Moore, for shaking down his life-long friends," Cascio said.

"You didn't have to say 'shake-down!'" Moore said, drawing the biggest laugh line of the ceremony.

Cascio also credited Worcester County Chief Administrative Officer ties and individuals," Cascio said.

He singled out the board of trustees, former Library Director Mark Thomas, current Director Jennifer Ranck and the county commissioners, in particular Jim Bunting who "presided as president during most of the design and the construction process."

He also thanked the State of Maryland, Town of Berlin, the Humphreys Foundation, Worcester County Library

Harold Higgins, Assistant CAO Kelly Shannahan, Budget Officer Kathy Whited, Building Administrator Bill Bradshaw and Maintenance Superintendent Ken Whited.

the best of his wonderful buildings that grace our area.”

Additionally, contractor Whiting-Turner “oversaw many talented sub-contractors and craftsman whose excellent work will show through for decades to come,” Cascio said.

“I’d like to personally thank the many men and women, most of whose names we’ll never know, for the hours of pain, sweat and blood they gave to this fine building, its site work and landscaping,” he added.

“It was our intention from the start to provide this wonderful community with not just a library building, but a learning center, and to keep the project close to the town center,” Cascio said. “We also wanted to attempt to influence the decision makers that there could be a better way to acquire this building and to deliver to the people of Worcester County, Berlin and its visitors the finest, most efficient, affordable, long-lasting building we could.

“Only time will tell. It would be nice to hear from those, using it centuries from now, just how well we did,” he added.

Also during the ceremony, State Sen. Jim Mathias, Delegate Mary Beth Carozza and Delegate Charles Otto presented a citation on behalf of the Maryland General Assembly.

Ranck, in a separate interview Tuesday, said the success of the new library is already evidenced by the unusually high turnout during summer learning events.

“The children’s programs are doing very well this summer,” she said. “People in general are very excited to come into the quiet space to read and study, and there’s just more room to spread out.”

She said the staff is delighted with the new building, which is several times larger than the old library on Main Street.

“We’re all very excited and we’re always coming up with new ways to use the new space to benefit the community,” Ranck said.

County and library officials on Tuesday unveil a commemorative plaque in the front downstairs lobby of the new Berlin branch of the Worcester County Library, on Harrison Avenue. Earlier that afternoon officials from the town, county and state gathered for an official ribbon cutting ceremony and grand opening. The new $6.25 million library was opened in July and is several times larger than the previous library, on Main Street.

Commissioners also recognized at library opening

By Josh Davis

(Aug. 9, 2018) Following a Tuesday afternoon ribbon-cutting ceremony for the new Berlin library on Harrison Avenue, the Worcester County Commissioners gathered in the downstairs lobby for a separate unveiling of a commemorative plaque.

The inscription credited the seven-member commission, as well as County Chief Administrative Officer Harold Higgins, the Worcester County Board of Library Trustees, Library Director Jennifer Ranck, contractor Whiting-Turner and architect Jeff Schoellkopf.

County Commissioner President Diana Purnell said the new library “represents an investment in our county as a whole, and in Berlin and in our children.”

“We’re really pleased, because the job is well done,” she said.

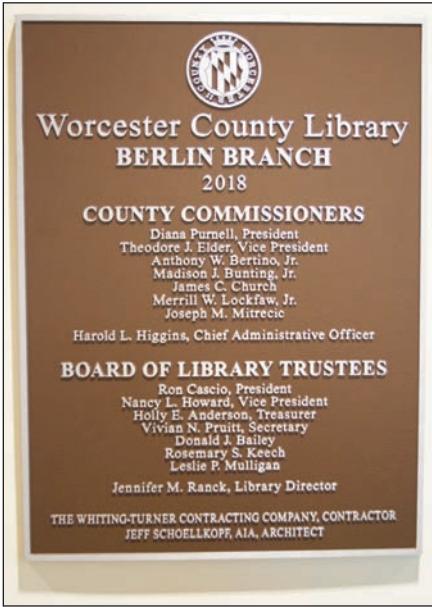

Purnell said the library benefitted Worcester senior citizens.

“If you think about your seniors that don’t have a lot of interaction with the community, they can come here, they can feel relaxed, they can feel safe, they can use the computers, they can do all those things,” she said. “That’s very important.”

Commissioner Ted Elder said the new building also thrilled him.

“This is our future for our children’s education and it’s just a tremendous investment,” he said. “It’s built to stay a long, long time, it’s an extremely efficient building and it’s really been a great, great collaboration of people that brought this together.”

“This is one that you have to look to as a template for the way you put things together,” Elder added.

Horn responds to Hill lawsuit; trial date set

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(Aug. 9, 2018) In an Aug. 2 court filing, Ocean Pines Association Director Colette Horn denied allegations in the lawsuit brought by former interim General Manager Brett Hill that the rejection of his application for the 2018 board of directors election violated association bylaws.

Hill filed suit in Worcester County Circuit Court against Horn and the Ocean Pines board on June 6 after they disqualified him as a candidate because he had not paid his property assessments by the May 15 deadline stipulated in the election rules. On June 27, he tried to block the election by submitting an amended petition for writ of mandamus, injunctive relief, brief of fiduciary duty and a temporary restraining order.

The request for a restraining order was denied on June 29 as not in compliance with Maryland rules, according to Maryland Case Search.

Horn's answer, filed by attorney Thomas J. Whiteford, denied allegations by Hill that he "has been an owner of record for property on 102 Port Arthur Court, Ocean Pines, MD 21811 through membership interest in Build Pines, LLC since June 30, 2005."

The answer did not dispute that Hill was an owner of record for property on 3 Windward Court in Ocean Pines, although that property is subject to an Aug. 20 sheriff's sale.

Horn admitted to reviewing board applications on May 15 and accepting all candidates with the exception of Hill on May 16.

She denied Hill's claim that the May 15 cutoff date for assessment payments was invalid because the May 1 assessment invoice had an overdue date of May 31.

Also denied were allegations of breach of fiduciary duty and suggestions that two other applications were accepted, despite violating Ocean Pines bylaws.

According to court records, a settlement hearing was scheduled Nov. 19 and a trial was set for Dec. 17 in Worcester County Circuit Court in Snow Hill.

Suspects being sought in fatal hit and run on Whaleyville Rd.

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(Aug. 9, 2018) Police had no new information as of Tuesday on the fatal hit and run last Friday night that claimed the life of 75-year-old Sharon Bonewell of Bourbonnais, Illinois. What is known is that two unidentified people fled the scene after the crash.

According to the Maryland State Police, a three-vehicle collision occurred around 10:30 p.m. on Whaleyville Road, between Peerless Road and Murray Road.

Police said a dark gray 2017 Dodge Grand Caravan traveling east crossed over the solid double yellow line in the road and into the path of two passenger cars: a black 2017 Nissan Altima and white 2017 Kia Rio.

The Grand Caravan struck the Altima on the front passenger side and "veered and struck the guardrail, overturned, and went off the shoulder of the roadway coming to rest on its roof," police said.

The Rio "only received superficial damage," according to police. The driver of that car, 53-year-old Cynthia Roberts of Dover, Delaware and two juvenile passengers, were said to be uninjured.

However, all four occupants of the Altima, all residents of Bourbonnais, Illinois, were injured during the crash. The driver, 44-year-old William Butler and one juvenile passenger, received minor injuries and were taken by ambulance to Peninsula Regional Medical Center in Salisbury.

Two other passengers, Bonewell and 43-year-old Carla Butler, received serious injuries and were taken to the Level III Emergency/Trauma Center at PRMC.

Police said Bonewell was transported via medevac by the Maryland State Police Aviation Command, Trooper 4 and later succumbed to her injuries.

According to police, witnesses near the collision saw an unidentified black male driver and white female passenger exit the overturned Grand Caravan and "run east from the crash scene."

"They were then observed getting into a blue passenger car which left the scene. No additional information regarding the blue passenger car was provided. Witnesses said the female occupant was limping as she ran from the scene," police said.

Ron Snyder, Maryland State Police public information officer, on Tuesday said there were no further updates and no additional information was available regarding the blue passenger car.

Fire and EMS units from Showell, Berlin and Ocean Pines went to the scene and "extricated the trapped occupants of the passenger car, and provided emergency medical treatment and transport," police said.

The Maryland State Police Crash Unit assisted in the investigation, which is continuing. Anyone with information is asked to contact the duty officer at the Maryland State Police Berlin Barrack, 410-641-3101.

“We settled down after that first inning and giving up a bunch of runs,” Coach Cameron McDonough said. “We struggled out of the gate, but Foster Smith did a fantastic job coming in and steadying the ship.

“He got us back to where we could get out of trouble and get back in and keep hitting – and we definitely did that today,” he added.

Over three games, Knerr leads the team with four homeruns and eight RBIs.

Lukas Loring and Stephen Wade have three RBIs each, and Alex Navarro and Adam Gardner have driven in two runs each.

Navarro, batting .500, leads the team in average.

Also driving in runs during the first three games were Case Tilghman, Kannon Cropper, Nate Berzonski and Smith.

Riley Calloway leads the team with five steals.

On the mound, Wade leads the Berlin All-Stars in strikeouts with 11, and has yet to allow an earned run over 4 2/3 innings. Wade and Smith have each earned wins.

Knerr is 0-1, but leads the team in innings pitched at five, and is second in strikeouts, also five.

Berlin’s next game is scheduled today, Thursday, at 7 p.m. against either Delaware or Pennsylvania. The championship game is Aug. 11.

McDonough, during a fundraiser for the team in Berlin last Friday, predicted success in the tournament.

“This is a really good group,” he said. “We’re really excited and I think we’re going to do well up there.”

McDonough was also on the coaching staff in 2014 when the 13-year-old intermediate all-stars finished second in the U.S. in the Little League World Series in Livermore, California. That team went 6-0 in regional play and 15-2 overall, averaging nearly 12 runs per game.

‘I know, for them, it’s super special ... They grew up their whole lives watching the Little League World Series on TV and seeing other teams from the this area have success at that level, so I know it means a lot to them to be able to go and share in this experience.’

Berlin Little League Coach
Cameron McDonough

“This is much different for me,” McDonough said on Friday. “My son [Tristan] was on that other team and I had those guys for five or six years leading up to that, so I knew them inside out.

“This group here, I would say they’re more talented,” he continued. “They don’t have as much experience playing together, so that other group was a real tight-knit group, but these guys are getting there. This team is, overall, more talented.”

The all-stars last week held several fundraisers to help pay for travel and other expenses and a GoFundMe, as of Tuesday, had raised $2,805 of a $5,000 goal.

McDonough said the team would continue to fundraise as it attempts to climb through the regional tournament and compete for another appearance in the Little League World Series finals.

“We’re trying to cover hotels and stuff like that for all the families to be able to go,” McDonough said. “We had a long week up there in Hagerstown, Maryland when we were up there for eight nights, so we’ve already had those expenses and we’re just trying to take the pressure off the families.

“The community has been wonderful. It’s been unbelievable, the outpouring of support,” he added.

As for the kids?
“I know, for them, it’s super special,” McDonough said. “They grew up their whole lives watching the Little League World Series on TV and seeing other teams from the this area have success at that level, so I know it means a lot to them to be able to go and share in this experience.”

Clarke, Bailey quarrel over country club renovation plan

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(Aug. 9, 2018) Updated renovation plans for the second floor of the Ocean Pines Golf and Country Club last Friday nearly derailed an otherwise routine board of directors meeting on reserve accounts.

Included in the more than three hours of deliberation were updates on three significant capital items that needed to be plugged into the reserve study: country club and administration building renovations, and the purchase of new financial software.

General Manager John Bailey said $400,000 was budgeted for software, while the reserve study identified $496,000 for the purchase and implementation of new systems.

Continuing costs would then become part of the operating budget, rather than expensed as capital or new capital funds, Bailey said. He said a decision on the purchase would likely occur in September or October.

More difficult to nail down were costs to renovate the second floor of the country club, Bailey said, with a request for proposals scheduled for release this Friday and due by Sept. 7.

Plans include new meeting rooms for community groups, as well as banquet space for the golf operation.

However, several optional additions are also going out to bid, including an elevator and new roof, which could significantly drive up the total cost, Bailey said.

Bailey said architectural firm Davis, Bowen & Friedel Inc. estimated the current renovation plans would cost just under $1 million, but additional items and contingency costs could drive that closer to $1.2 million – or higher.

Director Ted Moroney said additional complications arose after a roofing contractor, hired last year, was apparently let go before he could finish the job. He said the contractor was paid about $35,000 out of a $70,000 agreement, and a second contractor was paid about $43,000.

"In fact, there is about 1,000 square feet of roof that was never fixed at all," Moroney said. "The second contractor notified OPA of a whole lot of ... errors and problems with the roof that had been done by the contractor that we terminated."

He said a consultant was then hired to determine the extent of the issues.

"That report was provided by public works to the [acting general manager] at that time. I don't know whether it ever got to the board or not," Moroney said.

"Basically, we have no warrantee on the roof ... the contractor was not licensed to be able to do that," he added. "Part of the fix-up there is to fix any of these issues."

Moroney went on to say some of the walls associated with "a half-million dollar" renovation of the country club's first floor, done last year, "are bowing in due to water inflation" because of the leaky roof.

"There's a great video they've got at the back door of Tern's Grill ... of the water pouring inside the building," Moroney said. "We've got an envelope problem that needs to be addressed."

"It makes no sense to pour [more money] into the building and then end up having the thing leaking continually," he added.

Also an issue is whether the project had drifted into "mission creep," a military term used to describe a gradual shift in objectives resulting in a longer and more costly commitment than originally planned.

Bylaws and Resolutions Committee Chairman Marty Clarke said the second-floor renovations were originally budgeted at $500,000 and didn't include an elevator or a roof, although Bailey and others disputed the validity of that estimate.

"What I'm hearing is a classic example of mission creep," Clarke said. "The mission should be to maintain the existing country club – to take care of the deferred maintenance. And what we're doing is doing our very best to drive the cost right off the Richter scale."

Clarke pressed Bailey on whether there were secret plans to drive up the renovation costs to instead gather support for an entirely new building.

Bailey said it was his understanding those discussions were had several years ago and, with the hundreds of thousands already spent on renovations, "I don't know that many people in the community will want to say, 'flush that.'"

"I think that train left the station a couple of years ago," Bailey added.

"You're not answering the question," Clarke said.

"No, you don't like the answer, Marty," Bailey said.

When Bailey flat out said that was not the plan, Clarke replied, "That's just not true."

Clarke went on to say there were plans for a new building and Bailey had asked if he would support it.

"If you had asked me to two years ago and I'd been here, I'd say, 'tear the damn thing down and start new.' But we already made that decision. We've gotta move on now," Bailey said.

"Your question to me was, would I support tearing it down after we'd spent the money on the first floor and building a new building," Clarke said.

"And your answer was?" Bailey asked.

"Absolutely not, I'll sue you!"

Clarke said.

Association member Pete Gomsak said he previously supported building a new country club but, "I think the train has left the station, as J.B. has said."

"I maintained then and I still maintain today that we will end up spending more money for the decision to try and retain that old building over time than we would have spent had we knocked it down and built a new one," Gomsak said. "That having been said, that argument is over."

"However, the board of directors and the community can ultimately make a decision," he continued. "The board, for example, or even a group within the community, could decide to put something up for referendum. And, in that unlikely event, the community, by voting for the referendum, could make such a decision. Is that going to happen? I don't think so, but it's certainly within the realm of our governing system."

Also discussed were renovation plans for the Ocean Pines Administration Building that includes the police station.

Bailey said original plans were to expand police quarters into the existing footprint of the building and move some of the administrative operations to the country club.

"That's no longer in the plans for the country club. All that's going to stay in the admin building," Bailey said.

He said plans were modified to instead extend the building into the police parking area.

"The police department would actually end up with a little more square footage than what was planned for them just by renovating the existing footprint," Bailey said. "The estimate from 2016 ... was $360,000."

He said the new estimate was $600,000, including $50,000 budgeted this fiscal year for architectural and engineering drawings.

Committee recommends increasing reserves

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(Aug. 9, 2018) If recommendations from the association budget and finance committee mean anything, Ocean Pines homeowners next year could be paying more in assessments because of increased collections for several reserve funds.

General Manager John Bailey said annual assessment collections for reserves currently total about $1.677 million, roughly $200 per homeowner.

Budget and finance committee members on Friday, during a meeting with reserve specialist Doug Greene of Design Management Associates Inc., recommended increasing collections for general replacement reserves, bulkheads, and roads and bridges.

Across the board, committee members recommended using a 3 percent construction inflation rate and 2 percent return on “income from invested reserve funds” be used in calculations.

For general replacement reserves, committee members recommended establishing a minimum threshold of $1 million and a 4 percent annual increase in collections.

Budget and Finance Committee Chairman John Viola said the “minimum threshold” represents “an amount at which the ending balance of the fund should never fall below.”

The recommendation for bulkheads was a minimum threshold of $250,000 and a 4.2 percent annual contribution hike.

Reserves set aside for roads and bridges, said by everyone in the room to be underfunded, were recommended by the committee to increase 3.7 percent.

Additionally, committee members recommended collecting $450,000 for roads and bridges in fiscal year 2020, in addition to the $325,000 received each year in casino impact funds and $50,000 in county and state funding.

Viola said the $450,000 would help the association catch up on road depreciation, which has historically not been collected by Ocean Pines.

The minimum threshold for roads and bridges was recommended at $500,000.

Committee members and Bailey several times during the meeting stressed the reserve study was a planning tool, with some aspects called “very fluid.” The Design Management Associates reserve study would have to be updated regularly as items moved up and down the priority list, Bailey said.

The new board of directors, following the Aug. 11 election, would receive an updated copy of the study and could vote on whether to accept it during a regular board meeting in September, Bailey said.

“In the meantime, we’re good to start plugging in numbers for budget [planning],” Bailey said.

He said the study, once approved, would also be posted on the Ocean Pines website.

Viola, in an email Monday night, said he did not yet know what the impact on assessments would be if the board accepted the committee recommendations.

“I was waiting for the DMA calculations, then we would estimate,” Viola said.

Pete Gomsak last Friday offers his view on the long in-progress Ocean Pines reserve study. Also pictured is Budget and Finance Committee Chairman John Viola, who supervised the meeting on reserves.

Coastal Hospice welcomes new media relations person

(Aug. 9, 2018) Kat Gunby joined the Coastal Hospice team as the new community and media relations coordinator this spring.

She is responsible for agency communications, public relations and marketing to promote the mission and services of Coastal Hospice.

Previously, Gunby was the director of prevention services at Worcester County Health Department. Earlier in her career, she also managed the Lower Shore health insurance exchange connector entity, which connected residents to health benefits via Maryland Health Connection.

Gunby holds a Master of Public Health degree from University of Maryland at College Park. She also holds a B.S. in journalism, news-editorial and a B.A. in philosophy from the University of Colorado at Boulder.

Before her career in health, Gunby worked as a journalist and then served as the public information officer for the Mississippi Emergency Management Agency. She is a native of Jackson, Mississippi but has made the Eastern Shore her home for almost nine years.

Her position falls under the recently reorganized Advancement Department headed by Director Heather Duma. By bringing marketing and public relations under the same umbrella as fundraising and development, Coastal Hospice is better positioned to advance its mission into the community through communications, media, public awareness and education, and promotion of fundraising events.

Founded in 1980, Coastal Hospice is a nonprofit health care organization that cares for individuals facing life-limiting conditions but who want to remain as active and engaged as possible.

Coastal Hospice cares for patients in their home, nursing home, assisted living facility or at Coastal Hospice at the Lake. The organization serves Wicomico, Worcester, Dorchester and Somerset counties.

County reviewing Berlin tattoo regulations

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(Aug. 9, 2018) While the Worcester County Commissioners yet to comment on a Town of Berlin request for new tattoo regulations, Worcester Public Information Officer Kim Moses confirmed on Friday that county officials are reviewing their formal response.

The Berlin Town Council voted 3-1 in May to send a letter of support on behalf of its tattoo ordinance committee to the commissioners. The committee is asking for an amendment in the county code to allow the county health department to handle inspections of any potential new Berlin tattoo businesses.

The letter was sent on May 25, according to Town Administrator Laura Allen, but as of last week, officials were still awaiting a reply.

Moses, in an email Friday, said, "The county received the letter from Berlin officials to amend existing tattoo regulations and has been reviewing all aspects of such changes. The town's letter and recommendations from local and state health experts will be presented to the commissioners for their consideration in the near future."

The proposed tattoo amendment, which committee members said would only affect Berlin, was not on the Worcester County Commissioners' meeting agenda on Tuesday.

Berlin Mayor Gee Williams also emailed a statement on the subject last Friday.

"The Mayor and Council (are) looking forward to the county commissioner's response to our request to amend Worcester's tattoo ordinance solely for our town," Williams said. "We are not asking for a change in the tattoo regulations that would impact any other municipality or the non-incorporated areas of our county. I trust everyone recognizes this recommendation was made after several months of an open and thoughtful process in our town."

"As with many other aspects of life in our community, we ask that Berlin be allowed to be Berlin and the same consideration be given to any other town in Worcester County to live its own unique style and standards within the laws of Maryland," Williams said.

During the tattoo committee's July 31 meeting, Berlin Town Attorney David Gaskill said he would contact County Attorney Maureen Howarth to provide her with a copy of the proposed ordinance and try to arrange a meeting.

"I just think if the county commissioners are even remotely interested in this we'll get a hearing. If they're not, we won't," Gaskill said at the time.

The committee is scheduled to meet again on Sept. 11 at 6 p.m. in Town Hall.

Ocean Pines Association Briefs

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(Aug. 9, 2018) The Ocean Pines Association Board of Directors discussed the following items during a public meeting in the community center on July 27:

Honoring Jacobs, Herrick

Association President Doug Parks recognized two directors, Cheryl Jacobs and Tom Herrick, during what was likely their last meeting. Both were elected to three-year terms in 2015 and opted not to run for reelection this year.

"I'd like to officially recognize two individuals, directors Jacobs and Herrick, for their service to Ocean Pines," Parks said. "Their contributions have been many and I'd like to publicly thank them for the service to the organization, and thank them for the time and effort they put in to help making Ocean Pines who we are today."

Treasurer's report

Based on the June monthly financial report, Association Treasurer John Viola said revenues were over budget by about $8,000 and expenses were over budget by $43,000.

He said legal fees of $26,000, information technology contract services of $12,000 and accounting fees of $5,800 drove the expense overage. According to Viola, the legal services budget for the year had already been met.

Year to date, he said Ocean Pines is about $138,000 off budget, largely because of legal overages ($35,000), information technology contract services ($38,000) and general maintenance ($46,000).

Viola said the association had $14.3 million in cash as of June 30 and $10.4 million in three reserve accounts, including roads and bulkheads.

eral years ago but never finalized, and presented to the board for approval.

He said renovations plans for the second floor of the country club were moving along, with architectural drawings "pretty well complete" and procurement documents coming soon. Bailey said a request for proposals was scheduled to release on Aug. 10 and due back in September.

The board is expected to consider bids when it reconvenes after the Aug. 11 election. Currently, the target date to finish the renovation is March 8, 2019.

On drainage, Bailey said an interesting problem had been uncovered, namely that those responsible for Ocean Pines ditches was "a murky, legal mess." He said the association was apparently responsible for some sections, but not for others. The outcome, he said, was about "as clear as the mud in the ditches."

Appointments

The board unanimously approved several appointments to advisory committees: Frank Brown to the budget and finance committee, and Donna McElroy, Henry Dow, Roger West and John LaRue to marine activities.

General Manager's report

General Manager John Bailey said final changes would soon be made to the reserve study, which was begun sev-

Little League success a credit to community

Here they go again, those Berlin Little Leaguers, who have managed to prove once again that small town teams can play some pretty good baseball.

Even though Little League boundaries are governed by population — no league boundary can have a population greater than 20,000 to maintain parity between leagues — the resources within these areas can vary.

Kids playing in the Scruffyville, Arkansas district, for instance, probably don't have the same advantages as those participating in the Millionaire Row, New York Little League. It's not likely, after all, that they're having many bake sales in the Hamptons to support their teams.

What can make up the difference, however, is the degree of commitment from a league's officials, parents and coaches. And in that regard, Berlin's organization must be a top tier effort, considering the repeated successes that the league has enjoyed in recent years.

It is, says one admirer of this area's organized baseball, almost a religion here. Considering all the other things kids might be doing with their spare time other than playing ball, that's a good thing.

The league's multiple successes also are a source of town pride and that's almost as much fun to watch as the games themselves. With so many disconcerting things going on these days, there's something reassuring about seeing so many people excited about this pursuit of the traditional American pastime.

Although Berlin's Maryland state champions will be facing the Pennsylvania title holders after this paper hits the streets on Thursday, (watch it tonight on ESPN at 7 p.m.) and we can't know the outcome, the team should be congratulated for a tournament well-played, just as league supporters should be applauded for putting together another great year.

Another successful library book sale

Editor,

We would like to thank all of the volunteers who helped with the 19th annual Friends of the Ocean Pines Library Book Sale this past weekend and Monday.

The categories of helpers and volunteers (80-plus) included: set-up crew on Thursday, membership sign-up on Friday, rovers, checker and cashiers on Friday, Saturday and Monday, our food service volunteer, the special collections volunteer, and all the breakdown crew who gathered 100 boxes of leftover books that went to local charities on the Eastern Shore.

We also thank the volunteers who helped people to their cars with their purchases. And finally, to the staff of the Ocean Pines Library, who tolerate the disruption on the last weekend of July each year, thank you.

On the 19th year of the sale, records were again broken, bringing in over $11,000.

This sale would not be possible without the generous donation of books from the Ocean Pines community, and the ongoing sorting of those donations by the "Backroom

Gang."

This is not the end of the book sale. Recently published books in good condition are sold year-around in the back of the library near the turtle tank. Please stop by and check those shelves.

Our sale dates in 2019 are July 26, 27 and 29, and all proceeds go to the Friends of the Ocean Pines Library

In defense of OPA culling of geese

The following was also sent to Ocean Pines Association General Manager John Bailey and Environment and Natural Assets Committee Chairman Tom Janasek

Editor,

Listen gentlemen, not ALL of us are upset about the geese being culled. In fact, I'm delighted by it. I'm certainly PRO environment, but in order to maintain it in healthy condition culling has become a necessity.

People have indeed had an impact, not always good, and by forcing out many of their natural predators, we became overrun with the damn geese.

A mother goose with her goslings holding up traffic is one thing, but a flock of fat stubborn ganders just chilling in the middle of the road on a regular basis is all together different. I wouldn't intentionally run them down, but I certainly wouldn't lose sleep over hitting one. Harsh, maybe, but there it is.

We built our home in OP in 1975. Before that, we had a camper in White Horse Park for three years. I have SEEN some stuff here.

And one thing I personally witnessed was two truckloads of Canada geese being brought in and released at the South Gate pond in the early 70s "for aesthetic purposes." So, who was here first?

And one more thing, a little crude; the people who are anti-culling are complaining that the dog poop around the pond is way worse than the goose poop? They've never owned geese.

The poop that they think dogs are to blame for is goose poop. I know. My grandparents kept geese, and a gander can out-poop a large Labrador retriever!

I can hear my mom-mom yelling now, "watch out for the goose s!" Well, you get the idea ...

Anyway gentlemen, I just wanted to give you a little sup-

EVENT WRAP

On Tuesday evening, hundreds in Berlin and Ocean Pines celebrated National Night Out, a national day of outreach designed to bring communities closer to local law enforcement. In Berlin, children like 5-year-old Zion Whaley of Bishopville won free bikes raffled off by the Berlin Police department, while non-profits and other groups offered arts and crafts and other free activities. In Ocean Pines, where the event was held for the first time, police greeted community members, volunteers from the Kiwanis Dawg Team handed out free hotdogs, and magician Wild Willy Woo-Woo entertained children.

Deep discounts at Summer Sidewalk Sale

By Josh Davis
Associate Editor

(Aug. 9, 2018) Berlin's oldest event doesn't have anything to do with peaches, bathtubs or fiddlers, but rather it's the sidewalks themselves.

The annual Berlin Summer Sidewalk Sale, according to organizer Steve Frene, turns 64 this year.

"There aren't many things older than me, but this is one of them!" Frene said. "It's the longest running event – it outdates the Christmas parade and everything."

Frene said the Sidewalk Sale dates back to the days of the Style Guide, when the popular clothing store would shut down the street and put discounted merchandise outside on racks and, over three days, clear out the summer inventory to make room for fall and winter fashions.

When Style Guide closed, Frene said his wife, Victorian Charm owner Debbie Frene, carried on the tradition. Next year Victorian Charm will celebrate 25 years in business.

This year, Frene said participating shops will include Victorian Charm, Heart of Gold Kids, World of Toys, Bruder Hill, Fathom, the Church Mouse, and Treasure Chest.

"We'll start Friday at 10 a.m. Always start early for the best selection and shop through Sunday for the best price, because what we don't sell off by Sunday afternoon, we discount even deeper," Frene said.

He said Victorian Charm would drop prices on clothing, jewelry, handbags, tote bags, duffle bags and accessories. He said all sales were final and transactions would be limited to cash-only, although there are several ATMS in downtown Berlin.

"Check with individual merchants on their particular policies," Frene said.

Heart of Gold Kids owner Emily Cook Vocke has participated in the Sidewalk Sale during the last three years.

"It's always gone really well," she said. "This year we're putting out lots of summer stuff, like clothing and accessories. Like everyone else we're getting ready for fall, so it's the perfect time to stock up for next year's sizes for summer."

World of Toys owner Olga Kozhevnikova said she planned to put out four or five tables, including summer products by toy manufacturer Melissa and Doug, with discounts of up to 50 percent off.

"We'll put out some games and puzzles, and some overstock items and Playmobil items," she said. "We do it every year and the biggest day is always Friday. We always recommend for people to come the first day for the best selection."

Bruder Hill will offer 10-60 percent off of select items, to include "a little bit of everything," according to Larnet St. Amant.

Fathom will offer discounts on summer fashions, co-owner Hunter Smith said.

Helen Wiley of the Church Mouse will sell clothing and other items priced at $5 and below. She said proceeds would assist the school supply drive for Berlin nonprofit Worcester Youth and Family Counseling Services.

Additionally, the Treasure Chest will sell Alex and Ani bracelets for $10, as well as Christmas decorations and other items.

JOSH DAVIS/BAYSIDE GAZETTE

Steve Frene of Victorian Charm helped organize the Berlin Summer Sidewalk Sale, returning this weekend, which happens to be the longest-running event in the history of the town, more than six decades old.

Say ‘cheers’ to anniversary of OPA with cocktail party

(Aug. 9, 2018) The Ocean Pines 50th Anniversary Committee continues to ferment enthusiasm by offering area residents an opportunity to relive an Ocean Pines tradition with a cocktail party to celebrate the community’s golden anniversary.

The party, sponsored by Atlantic General Hospital and Embrace Homes Loans, will take place at Ocean Pines Golf Club’s Tern Grille, located at 100 Clubhouse Drive, on Saturday, Aug. 11 from 4-7 p.m.

“Our committee of dedicated volunteers has put together a wonderful, fun and relaxing event,” said Terri Mohr, 50th Anniversary Cocktail Party organizer. “We are looking forward to a few hours in a beautiful setting to connect with many of our neighbors in Ocean Pines while enjoying a signature cocktail.”

Mohr said Still Rockin,’ a local band, will perform live during the event. Entertainment will also include an exclusive tasting event by Spirits of Patriots, a Somerset County-based craft distillery, and an Ocean Pines history trivia game hosted by Worcester County Tourism Director Lisa Challenger.

“The event will be a neat mixture of infused entertainment and sweeping golf course views,” said Denise Sawyer, marketing and public relations director of the Ocean Pines Association. “I believe this year’s wave of excitement in Ocean Pines is mounting and residents and nonresidents should definitely experience every moment of it.”

Tickets are available for purchase at the Ocean Pines Community Center, 235 Ocean Parkway, and the Ocean Pines Administration Building, 239 Ocean Parkway, for $30 per adult or $50 per couple. Tickets include one signature drink, appetizers and an anniversary souvenir shot glass for each attendee.

“We hope everyone will join us in celebrating 50 years of Ocean Pines’ history with a look back at where the community started while also looking forward to an exciting future in the Pines,” Mohr said.

For more information about the 50th Anniversary Cocktail Party, contact Mohr at terri.mohr@mchsi.com or 443-827-0546.

For more information about the Ocean Pines community or 50th anniversary events and sponsorships, contact Sawyer at 410-641-7717 ext. 3006 or dsawyer@oceanpines.org.

Golden Tilefish, if you can find it, is golden

Ah, the White Marlin Open is here. And, for the first time since 2012, I'm not working this ravenous party of anglers, revelers and spectators, but rather fishing. By the time you read this, we will have one more day of throwing in the lines and, with any luck, we will be standing at the scales on Friday. But, we all know that the odds are stacked heavily against every boat out there.

By Paul Suplee,
MBA, CEC, PC-3

On day one, with 312 boats fishing, only seven qualifying fish were weighed. As the week progresses, we sit amazed as we are every year at the prize money of the top-ranking fish.

But you're not here to read yet another rundown of the tournament. I know you're here for the food; I get it. And as delicious as most of the offshore fish can be (tuna, dolphinfish, wahoo and even marlin especially when smoked), one fish stands out for me.

Years ago when I was working at The Reel Inn (2012 to be exact), anglers would bring their catch to us and we would prepare it for them. The usual suspects would show up, but on occasion someone would catch a Golden Tilefish, one of the best and most succulent seafoods, period.

This fish has a very sweet meat and works well with an assortment of cooking methods. But one of my favorites is simply to cut it into small pieces and flash-fry it to give you little crispy chunks that are as tender and moist as can be.

One of the best parts about this type of preparation is that it is wide open for you to serve with a plethora of sauces; think tartar, remoulade (a tad spicier), tomato-caper (Pacific coast of Mexico) or a good New Orleans fashioned tasso-laced sauce. If you're not familiar with tasso ham, it is a Nawlins ham made from slabs of pork shoulder that are then cured and smoked. Yes, it is as delicious as it sounds, and it only takes a day to make as opposed to seven days or a year for more time-consuming charcuterie.

But, with the smokiness of the tasso and the tart nuances from the fresh summer tomatoes and white wine, this sauce is the perfect accoutrement for the fried tilefish.

If you can't find tile anywhere (more than likely, you will only be able to get this through local markets or commercial boats), you can use rockfish, mahi or even catfish (the latter would make sense considering the recipe style). But, if you can find tile? Game on! You will definitely thank me for this one.

And, while I wish all of the anglers tight lines and the best of luck, I have to hope that you will see Team Ole School fishing on Hot Spot at the scales.

Fried Tilefish, Tasso-Tomato Sauce

serves 4

- 1.5 pound Tilefish filet, cut into one-inch pieces
- 1/2 cup Cornstarch
- 1/2 cup Wondra refined flour
- 2 Tbsp. Paul Prudhomme Redfish Seasoning

- 3 large eggs
- 1 cup Buttermilk
- 2 Tbsp. Finely ground cornmeal
- Duck fat, for frying
- 2 cups Tasso-Tomato sauce (recipe follows)

1. Have the sauce ready to go, as the frying of the tilefish won't take very long at all
2. Make sure that the tilefish is pat dry with paper towels and set aside
3. Have three pans or dishes set up in a row. In the first pan or dish, sprinkle a little bit of the Wondra
4. In the second one, whisk the eggs, buttermilk, salt & pepper to create the wet part of the breading
5. In the third pan, combine the cornstarch, Wondra, cornmeal and small amount of redfish seasoning. Be judicious in this process, as you have to balance the seasonings, especially the salt. Since you're adding it at different points of this recipe, you can definitely overkill it
6. When you are all set, simply toss the tilefish bits in the first dish, dredging (dusting) them
7. With only a few at a time, transfer them to the wet coating
8. Remove and place in third dish to bread the pieces, coating evenly
9. Set on paper towels until ready to fry
10. Heat the oil to 375F and fry the tilefish in batches to ensure that the oil doesn't drop too rapidly when you drop the food in
11. Cook for about two minutes or until the tilefish is done. Remove to paper towel to drain and

- serve immediately with the Tasso-Tomato sauce
- 12. Serve with a well-seasoned rice

Tasso-Tomato Sauce

makes about 2 cups

- 1 Tbsp. Whole butter
- 2 Garlic cloves
- 1/2 Small white onion, finely diced
- 1/2 cup Diced tasso ham
- 2 large fresh tomatoes, peeled and seeded
- 1/2 cup Dry white wine
- 1 tsp. Fresh oregano, minced
- 1/2 tsp. Fresh thyme leaves
- Salt & Pepper to taste

1. Place the butter in the pan and cook until the "foaming subsides," Graham Kerr-style
2. Add the garlic and onion, stirring readily to ensure that the garlic doesn't burn
3. Cook for three minutes and add the ham, cooking until you have a little color on it
4. Add the tomatoes and cook for four minutes and add wine
5. Cook until the alcohol has burned off (technically it never all will, but with wine it will be nominal after a few minutes)
6. Add the herbs and adjust to your taste with salt & pepper
